FOREWORD

I am conscious of a great debt of gratitude to America and Americans. When I came to America over two years ago, I had no presentiment that before I returned to India, I would have written and published, not only a series of articles, but also a book on Astrology.

I came to America to study and to take back with me to India, what knowledge I could absorb of those strictly modern and material sciences for which this country is famous. My ambitions in this direction have been more than realized. Difficulties of language and expression, which might otherwise have presented serious handicaps, have been minimized by the kind assistance and the patience of everyone with whom I came in contact. I am therefore more than grateful that the opportunity has been given to me, to contribute, in return, something of my own, concerning the culture and philosophy of my country.

For Astrology is definitely a part of Hindu culture and philosophy. In India, Astrology is held in highest reverence. The daily Uves of a majority of the people of India, particularly those of culture and refinement, are patterned and guided by the precepts and formulae of Astrology. To Hindus, as individuals, Astrology is the science of right living, or rather discriminative living—that living, which is ruled by choice rather than by necessity. It is a science, which in essence and motive is philosophical and religious, rather than material.

For it has its roots in the very oldest of all philosophical systems—that which is contained in the ancient Vedic teachings and writings, the antiquity of which stretches further and further back in time, with each new archeotological discovery.

Even today, in India, the genuine astrologer is usually a very wise and learned man, a scholar of Sanskrit, with a profound knowledge of the ancient philosophies and quite familiar with modern scientific thought. He and his disciples and assistants are wards of the State and are supported by endowment from the ruling Princes—from public funds—from voluntary contributions. The genuine astrologer in India, never advertises and never accepts a fee.

The literature on Astrology in India, is almost limitless in its quantity and its scope. Many manuscripts still exist which are of incredible age. A continuous record of Astrological knowledge may be found, which goes back almost without a break to 4,500 B.C.

I know of one amazing manuscript on Astrology which is at present in the palace of one of the Maharajas of Southern India. No one knows how old it is, but it was undoubtedly written several hundred years before the Christian era. It is written on several leaves of the Tad-padra tree and contains numerous astrological charts, together with diagrams of hand and palms of nearly every type. So accurately are these charts constructed that they can be applied to any time, day, month year and place of birth. Directions and delineations in conjunction with the charts are given in the manuscript, which enable the astrologer to give a detailed account of the Ufe of any individual with an amazing degree of accuracy. When it is under stood that, at the exact time of birth, the exact positions of each of eleven planets and certain fixed stars, in relation to a particular location on the surface of the Earth, (the place of birth,) must be known, before such delineation can be made, the mathematical precision and scientific knowledge of the heavenly bodies, possessed by the writers of this ancient manuscript, is little short of miraculous.

One of these ancient sages and astrologers, Parashara by name, Uved about 1,500 B. C. Copies of his manuscripts are still in existence. He made a specialized study of Astrology in relation to health, disease and death. His works contain such detailed information regarding the human body and the ills, to which it is subject, that modern medical science must advance considerably, before many of these facts will become known and accepted.

Another astrologer, who Uved about the same time, was named Ranavira. He speciaUsed in female astrology in relationships between the sexes from an astrological, philosophical and psychological standpoint. His manuscripts on marriage, childbirth and kindred subjects were numerous and copies of them are still to be found in various parts of India. It is my intention, during the next few years, to make at least a portion of this knowledge, available to Western readers and students of Astrology.

*I have been encouraged in this undertaking, by the intense interest in Astrology, which I have encountered in America. During my stay here, I have received so many requests for information on the subject, that I finally decided to give instruction to earnest and serious students. As an outcome of these classes. I was persuaded to write a series of articles, I wish to express my sincere thanks to Mr. Paul Clancy, editor of Ameri- can Astrology Magazine for the opportunity to place these articles before the public. The response to them and the number of requests received for books could not be ignored.

The writing of the articles and the book, has been made possible through the help and encouragement of my friend and collaborator, Mr. William Bonyun. My gratitude to him cannot be adequately expressed. The difficulties in expressing the ideas contained in the Sanskrit texts and of transposing these ideas into their equivalent English meanings, have been enormous.

There will no doubt be something lost in this transposition. If so, I crave the indulgence of my renders and will welcome any suggestions or criticisms or questions regarding any part of the text which may not be entirely clear and understandable.

INTRODUCTION

William Bonyun

Since the beginning of the Christian Era, the question of the scientific origins of Astrological knowledge, as bequeathed to us by the ancient civilizations of Egypt, Babylon, and Greece, has been the subject of controversy. Modern scientists have not hesitated to brand Astrology as a superstition, and even its kindest critics refer to it as a pseudo-science.

Nevertheless, Astrology is without question the oldest science in the history of man. It is the real Science of the Stars. Modern scientists will assert that Astronomy is the Science of the Stars, but such a statement is only partially correct. Astronomy is, and always was, only a part and a very small part of Astrology. It was used only as a means to an end.

In any standard dictionary, the definition of Science will be found to be similar to the following, taken from Funk & Wagnalls' Standard Dictionary :—

"A knowledge of facts, laws and proximate causes, gained and verified by exact observation and correct thinking—also, the sum of universal Knowledge—an exact and systematic statement or classification of Knowledge concerning some subject or group of subjects, or any department of Knowledge in which the results of investigation have been systematized."

If this be a correct definition of Science, then indeed

fs Astrology the greatest of all Sciences, since its precepts and formulae were accumulated and established over a period of thousands of years of observation by men who—as we shall discover, when ancient records, long inaccessible, gradually become available to Western civilization—employed orthodox and strictly modern scientific methods in arriving at these formulae. They systematized the results of their research as few scientists of today are capable of doing. For today is an era of specialization and few, if any, serious attempts have been made to synthesize the various branches of scientific inquiry and knowledge into one comprehensive whole.

The ancient Star Scientists were adepts at synthesis. Astrology is indeed a synthesis of all branches of knowledge. It includes in its various ramifications such modern sciences as Astronomy—Medicine—Biology—Chemistry—Physics and many others. It also includes still another branch of knowledge, one which is today highly controversial and which only recently has been accorded the dignity of scientific analysis. This branch of knowledge is that which has to do with the operation of the mind and emotions of man and is broadly termed —Psychology.

That Psychology, as a science, is claiming the attention of investigators the world over, has been evidenced in more or less recent years, by the published results of scientific research conducted by such men as Jung—F. W. Myers—Van Schrenk-Notzing, and many others. Wide publicity has been given in this country to such books as "Man the Unknown" by Dr. Alexis Carrell, and experiments are being conducted in the Psychology Laboratories of many of our leading Universities, some of the amazing results of which have recently been published.

Perhaps the most outstanding of such experiments are those being conducted at Duke University under the direction of Dr. J. B. Rhine. The results of these experiments appear to have proved the existence of some method by which facts may be communicated from one person to another, independently of or at least extraneously to the five known senses.

Supplementing and enlarging on Dr. Rhine's experiments are those being conducted on a nation-wide basis by the Zenith Radio Corporation, the results of which, as proof of extra sensory preception, are already extending beyond the bounds of mathematical possibilities.

It is true that Astrological Science in all its implications extends into deep and far-reaching metaphysical and philosophical domains, but after all what Science does not ? The mathematical concepts of Einstein, Eddington and others have already crossed the border from the domains of fixed form, and materialistic limitation into so-called fourth dimensional territories. Why should scientists, therefore, • scoff at the implications contained in Astrology ?

They seem to have forgotten or at least have decided to completely ignore the fact that most of the so-called exact knowledge now in their possession, which concerns the actual movements of the stars, planets and other heavenly bodies, is a legacy handed down to them by the ancient star scientists, the Astrologers. They have arbitrarily accepted part of this knowledge, and just as arbitrarily decided to discard the rest without any investigation whatever. For Astrology, while embracing all the other Sciences was divided by the ancient Scientists into two main sections :

- (1) That which dealt with the observation and recording of the relative positions and motions of the celestial bodies in time.
- (2) That which dealt with the observation and recording of the correspondences between these positions and :
 - (a) Natural phenomena occurring on the earth, such as weather, tides, earth-quakes, floods, volcanic eruptions, growth and evolution of plant and animal life.
 - (b) Human physical Phenomena, such as child-birth, death, menstruation of the female, illness, disease, accident.
 - (c) Human psychological phenomena, such as love, hate, envy, jealousy, the sex urge, avarice, greed, and the physical actions resulting from these emotional states, such as mating, murder, robbery, plunder, rape, combats and wars.

Of these two divisions of Astrological scientific research, that which dealt with the mere observance of the relative motions of the celestial bodies, (Astronomy), was considered as incidental. It was a step—the first step—toward the acquisition of the real knowledge—the only knowledge which really mattered—the knowledge of Man, his origin and his destiny.

This first division,—Astronomy—is recognized to-day as a science, because modern scientists with the aid of modern mechanical devices, continued and extended the observations of the ancient star scientists. The second division is not so recognized simply because on account of rank prejudice and skepticism, it has been ignored almost completely by present day scientists who have made no attempt whatever to study it and rationalize it. And yet there is no logical reason for this. Certainly there are a few well known facts occurring in nature and falling within the scope of the second division of Astrological knowledge, which would seem to indicate that further investigations along this path would confirm the other findings of the ancient scientists. Of these natural facts there are three which are outstanding :

- (1) There does exist a correspondence between the phases of the Moon and the Tides. (Natural phenomenon).
- (2) There does exist a correspondence between the phases of the Moon and the Menstrual periods of the Female. (Human physical phenomenon).
- (3) There does exist a correspondence between the periods of the Full Moon and New Moon and the intensity of emotional disturbance among the Insane. (Human psychological phenomenon).

One of these facts happens to fall within the scope of each of the three subdivisions of the second section of Astrology indicated above. If these correspondences are true of the Moon is it not rather presumptuous to discard as old wives' tales, the rules set down by the ancient Astrologers concerning the correspondences, which after many years of observation, they found to exist between the relative positions of the other planets and stars and the thoughts and actions of normal men and women? After all, these observations and records were made by the same Astrologers, who first catalogued all the Fixed Stars, who tabulated the distances and relative positions of the planets, their orbits, and their periods of revolution, and who calculated with astonishing precision, the cycle of the equinoxes. Surely these men were intellectual giants, and their deductions at least merit investigation.

Astrology, as a matter of fact, is the knowledge derived from the observation and study of the celestial bodies—of which our earth is one—in order to determine all possible relationships or correspondences which may exist between them and this earth on which we have our being. Such observation surely should not confine itself to mere mathematical measurements and calculations of time, space, volume and mass but should concern itself also with all other relationships which might conceivably exist. To simply dismiss as impossible any suggestion of correspondence between these time-space measurements and the events which occur on this Earth or else-where is to wilfully close the path to an interesting and exciting scientific adventure. That some of our modern scientists are on the eve of embarking on such an adventure is indicated by certain sign posts :

We find Ray Moulton, a scientist and astronomer of the highest rank, advancing the theory that there is order in the universe, which embraces not only the regularity of the motions of the celestial bodies, comprising the universe, but also includes the rhythm of the physical, mental and emotional activities of human beings. To quote from his book, "Consider the Heavens.":

"In a fundamental sense the reflected images of the author and the reader are not only reflections of two individuals but partly of the universe itself. Their bodies are composed of its universal materials; during a billion years their sense organs have responded to its various energies; up through a million generations their nervous systems have been progressively attuned to its harmonies. Their memories have developed through its repetitions; their emotions through its changes; their reasoning powers through its orderliness; their religion through its insoluble mysteries. They are expressions of its infinite complexities."

More recently we have the published results of research work conducted by Dr. Harlan T. Stetson of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. Dr. Stetson recently spoke of these findings to the Amateur Astronomers' Association of New York, and later compiled them in a book on "Sun Spots." These results seem to demonstrate that a quite definite series of correspondences exists between the regular appearances of the so-called spots on the sun and major business depressions occurring on the earth.

To quote:

"Four of the last five major business depressions have followed from two or three years after a period of maximum sun-spot activity."

It may interest Dr. Stetson to know that in some of the ancient Hindu books on Astrology—written in Sanskrit and still in existence in private libraries in India, --some of them rewritten from original manuscripts which date back hundreds of years before the Christian era—there may be found complete expositions of his theory by the old Hindu Astrologers, who were quite familiar with the fact that certain disasters, not alone those resulting from natural phenomena, but also those resulting from human relationships and activities, always corresponded with the appearance of sun spots. The disasters, together with the descriptions of the sun spot phenomena, are described in these old books in much detail.

Let me also quote from Dr. Esther Harding's book "Woman's Mysteries," published by Longmans, Green in 1935. Doctor Harding studied with Jung in Zurich:

"The nature of woman is non-personal and has nothing to do with her own wishes, it is something inherent in her as a feminine being and must not be regarded merely as something personal. Indeed, the very fact that woman has been accorded certain prerogatives and is not judged exclusively by masculine standards is evidence enough that humanity recognizes she is ruled by inner laws which are different from those governing men. To understand woman then, it is necessary to take into account her moon like character and to gain insight into the law of change which governs her.

"For to woman life itself is cyclic. The life force ebbs and flows in her actual experience, not only in nightly and daily rhythm, as it does for man, but also in moon cycles, quarter phase, half phase, full moon, decline and so' round to dark moon. These two changes together produce a rhythm which is like the moon's changes and also like the tides, whose larger monthly cycle works itself out concurrently with the diurnal changes, sometimes increasing the swing of the tides and at others working against the tidal movement, the whole producing a complex rhythm hard to understand."

Unfortunately those scientists, who seem to be open-minded enough to make investigations, which transcend the regions of physical phenomena, are in the minority. Most modern scientists are still weighing and measuring masses of inert matter and astronomers continue to spend huge sums of money and untold time and effort in order to extend their domain into realms of space and to discover new worlds; to what purpose? This tendency is aptly illustrated by an excerpt from a news item in the New York Times of very recent date, headed "SKIES YIELD CLUE TO ALL-STAR UNIT," to quote:

"Whereas observations so far have led to the hypothesis that matter becomes more uniformly distributed farther out in space, Dr. Shapley found that one southern galactic stream studied so far was "lop-sided," containing an eightfold concentration of matter in one part as compared with other parts.

"That is, one part of the cosmic stream contains eight times as many 'island universes' as the other part, each 'island universe' in turn being composed of tens and hundreds of billions of stellar systems.

"The Harvard finds, according to Professor Ernest W. Brown, Yale Astronomer and mathematician, indicate that the spiral nebulae, those gigantic cosmic systems with spiral arms, are small-scale models of the form of the universe as a whole.

"These cosmic streams observed by the Harvard astronomers, Dr. Brown said, might well be the arms of a still larger cosmic spiral.

"The universe as a whole, Dr. Brown stated, might be conceived now as consisting of an endless system of spirals, smaller spirals forming a part of a larger spiral, which, in turn, forms but a small part of a still larger cosmic spiral, and so on, ad infinitum.

"He illustrated this by quoting the familiar verse about 'big fleas have little fleas on their backs to bite 'em, and the little fleas have still littler fleas, and so on, ad infinitum.

"Replying to a question, he said that he did not accept the concept of the relativity theory- of a finite, closed universe. According to his view, the universe is infinite, extending in ever-widening spirals into a space that is also infinite."

As the risk of being accused of levity by these august scientists one is tempted to say at this point "So what!" With al! the expensive telescopes and intricate measuring devices at their command, they have, as a matter of fact, added little or nothing of value to the empirical and statistical knowledge concerning the celestial bodies, which the ancient scientists possessed and which was acquired by them without the use of modern mechanical devices. The Astronomers of today eagerly and greedily accept the treasure chest bequeathed to them by their progenitors, the Astrologers, but reject and discard the treasure which it contains. They content themselves with weighing and measuring and testing the chest itself but do not think to investigate the treasure within. Perhaps they have lost the Key.

But it does not follow that because Modern Science has scorned to make any thorough investigation of the facts behind Astrology, that there is lack of interest or lack of belief in Astrology in modern times. The indications are indeed, that never before in history has there been a more blind and superstitious belief in Astrology that is now found among the masses of the people throughout the world, and this is evidence by the amount of literature pertaining to Astrology which finds its way into the hands of the public each year.

In America alone last year, more than two million dollars was spent by a gullible public on the purchase of so-called horoscopes. Most of these horoscopes are plain buncombe. They are for the most part standardized and the character readings are based on the position of the Sun in the Zodiac. This position, changing each month from one Sign of the Zodiac to another, is supposed to indicate certain characteristics peculiar to all individuals born during that month

Thus, all persons born between the 21st of March and the 20th of April are supposed to have Aries characteristics, and all persons born between the 20th of April and May 20th Taurus characteristics, and so on through the twelve signs. This is not true, since the position of the Sun is only one of the many factors which must be taken into consideration, and it is impossible to correlate the movements of the Sun alone with any particular set of human characteristics or activities. Astrology is far more complicated than this.

In addition to these standardized horoscopes, there are a large number of Astrological text books on the market, and the material contained in them is most varied. Lessons in Astrology are given by individuals in practically every city in the United States, and there are many concerns who sell correspondence courses. Much of the material in these lessons and textbooks has no scientific background whatever, although there are many facts contained therein, which could and should be verified by scientific observation. Thousands of Astrological Ephemerides, or tables of daily planetary positions, are printed each year, and no less than 250,000 of these are sold annually in the United States alone. In Germany, their sale is even larger, and they are sold in every country in the world. These ephemer-ides are printed solely for Astrological use, and are employed only by very serious students of Astrology and by professional Astrologers.

As a result of the superstitious beUef of the masses in Astrology, and because of the lack of constructive interest in scientific circles, the ranks of professional Astrologers are filled with charlatans who prey upon the credulity of the public. Even those who are ethical and sincere in their methods do untold harm, because of the unscientific and sometimes purely imaginary theories which they bring forward, without sufficient statistical data to support them. Ignorant people who follow their advice are often led astray, and the fact of the matter is that astrological knowledge, as we have inherited it from the comparatively recent civilizations of Babylon, Chaldea, Egypt, and Greece is so fragmentary and incomplete that it cannot safely be applied to human problems and destiny.

However, to dismiss the whole Science of Astrology as buncombe, because racketeers are exploiting it in this manner, is to dismiss almost every other science as untrue for the same reason—especially medical science, because of the millions of dollars which are made every year from the sale of worthless patent medicines by unscrupulous quacks.

What Astrology needs is sincere and unprejudiced investigation by scientific minds. Simply to denounce it as a fraud because charlatans exploit it to the ignorant masses serves no good purpose. I make a plea to scientists to :

1. Study its precepts as propounded in the ancient books of India, Arabia, and Persia.
2. Subject these precepts to the same searching analysis which every other branch of knowledge has had to undergo.

No Scientist in modern times has ever investigated Astrology in this manner. Such an investigation would have to be endowed or financed and it is extremely doubtful if the results would yield any financial profit.

Research work, however, would eventually tend to corroborate what the ancient Astrologers have written regarding the relationships, which exist between the motions of the heavenly bodies and the events which take place on the earth, as results or merely correspondences in time. This I do know—having made a study of the subject myself for many years, during which I have collected a mass of statistical data—that if this branch of knowledge were investigated with open minds by scientists, determined to discover facts and facts alone, there would be enough evidence to completely corroborate this theory of correspondences.

There would be found to exist an amazing series of parallels between the regular motions of the planets in the solar system, of which our earth is a part, and the ebb and flow of physical, mental and emotional phenomena peculiar to human life on the earth. Of what use after all, to extend the boundaries of our physical domain by the discovery of new stars, new planets, new universes, new comets, if some attempt is not made at the same time to discover the significance of these phenomena, as applied to living beings and their problems of existence and evolution ?

Shill-Ponde, the author of this book, with whom it has been my great privilege to collaborate, is a second cousin of His Highness, the Maharaja Tukojirao Holkar Bahadur of Indore, India.

His interest in Astrology dates back to his childhood and at a very early age he commenced the study of this subject—a study which has been continuous and has become more intensified during the last twenty years. The many ancient and priceless books on the subject of Astrology in his cousin's library were available to him, and he has himself a library of Astrology which contains many very old books written in Sanskrit. His intention is to gradually make some part of the information contained in these books available to students in the West, as in his opinion the Hindu astrological knowledge ante-dates by many hundreds of years, the knowledge of the * Egyptians and Chaldeans, which is the basis of the Astrological systems at present used in Western countries. He further contends that the Hindu records are continuous and complete, but that the records of astrological knowledge, which we have inherited from the other civilizations, are fragmentary and ambiguous. The present volume is the first of a series of text books of Hindu Astrology, which are at present in preparation. It is introductory and very general and elementary in character, and is designed to appeal to the layman. Therefore, all technical details have been reduced to a minimum. The books which will follow, however, will present the subject in all its technical details and will undoubtedly be welcomed by advanced students of Astrology. The material contained in this book and in the books which are to follow is based on original Sanskrit and Marathi texts, some of which are very ancient.

It has been a great privilege indeed to have had the opportunity to collaborate with Shill-Ponde in preparing these books.

CHAPTER ONE

A BRIEF HISTORY OF ASTROLOGY

Records of Astrological knowledge are to be found in the history of all nations and among the relics of all civilizations, past and present : Let us scan these briefly :

CHINA

Aside from the Hindu records, perhaps the oldest records of Astrological practice are to be found in China. The Chinese developed their science independently and have been almost as scrupulous in preserving their records as the Hindus.

Little if any of this knowledge, however, has been permitted to leave China, and is to be found only among the precious archives and records, still carefully preserved in monasteries and lamaseries in certain parts of China and Tibet.

CHALDEA

Although mention is made by later writers of famous Astrologers in Chaldea, particularly Berosus, who lived about 3000 B. C, no actual manuscripts are available of any of the writings of Berosus if indeed such writings were ever made. But undoubtedly the Science of Astrology was practiced at a very remote period in the history of the Chaldeans and the Astrology of the Greeks and Romans was directly derived from this source.

BABYLON

First mention of Astrology as it was practiced by the Babylonians seems to place the period at about 2500 B. C, but no actual records of literature dealing with the Babylonian contribution to the Science have yet been discovered.

EGYPT

It is evident that the Egyptians knew and used Astrology many thousands of years before Christ, and the earliest Egyptian Astrologer mentioned is Petosiris, a priest who lived during the reign of Nicipsos about 800 B. C. If Petosiris wrote any book on Astrology, however, these have never been found.

The earliest Egyptian authority on Astrology whose works are available today and actually form the basis on which modern Astrology is practiced in the Western world, was Claudius Ptolemy.

Ptolemy was born at Pelusium in Egypt, about 70 A. D., and attended the school of Alexandria. His Tetrabiblos is the source of many of the errors which have been perpetuated in the modern systems, and about which more will be said later.

PERSIA

The earliest Persian Astrologer of whom any record exists was Al Hakim. This famous Astrologer lived and practiced his Science during the reign of Darius. Al Hakim is reputed to have written many books, the most widely mentioned by later historians being the "Judicia Gimaspia." If this book or any other writings of Al Hakim still exist today, this writer has not come across them. However, Al Hakim achieved fame because of some amazing predictions, with which he is credited. Not the least of these was his prediction of the birth of Jesus.

ARABIA

Astrology is and always was held in great veneration by the Arabs. This country was the birthplace of many learned astrologers and wise men. They travelled extensively and brought their knowledge with them into Greece and Rome. Some of their writings have come down to us through the Greeks and Romans, but in such fragmentary form that they are of little use to us today. Such fragments as we have preserved, however, furnish indubitable proof that the technique of the Arabian Astrologers was of a very high order, indeed. Records of a nomad race, however, are difficult to obtain.

INDIA

In India records exist today which point clearly to a highly developed knowledge of Astrology as far back as 4500 B. C. and actual manuscripts are still extant which were written between 3000 B.C. and 1700 B. C. Some of the originals have been destroyed or lost but actual copies of these originals were made by later Astrologers and these are to be found in the libraries of the Maharajas and in the libraries of certain states in India. The author possesses one such manuscript which was written about 1700 B.C. At any rate, actual detailed records of Astrological Science in India are continuous from about 4500 B. C up to the -present day.

The earliest author on Hindu Astrology, copies of whose work are still to be found, is Pita-Maha, who wrote a treatise on Astrology called Pitamaha-Sidhanta. He lived and wrote this book about 3000 B. C. Five hundred years later, another author Astrologers named Vashista, wrote several books on Astrology, Astronomy and Philosophy. His most important work, and one which was used as an authority by all subsequent writers on the subject, is Vashista-Sidhanta, but he wrote many others equally erudite and equally authoritative, among them: PANCH-SIDHANT-KOSHA, SURYA-SID-

HANT, NITYANANDA, BRIHAT JATAKA, ARYA BHAT, MANSAGARI, RANVIR, LAGHU-PARA-SHAR, and others.

E. M. Plunkett in his book "Ancient Calendars and Constellations" writes:—"The opinion of the Greek writers at the beginning of the Christian era may be quoted as showing the high estimation in which Indian Astronomy was held. In a 'Life of Appollonius of Tyana,' the Greek Astrologer and philosopher, written by Philostratus about 210 A. D., the wisdom and learning of Appollonius are set high above his contemporaries because he had studied Astronomy and Astrology with the sages of India."

That a precise knowledge of the relative motions of all the heavenly bodies has been known in India for thousands of years cannot be doubted in view of the evidence at hand.

In a book called "You and Your Hand" by the late Count Louis Hamon, known better as Cheiro, the following statement is found:—"People who in their ignorance disdain the wisdom of ancient races forget that the great past of India contained secrets of life and philosophy that following civilizations could not controvert, but were forced to accept. For instance, it has been demonstrated that the ancient Hindus understood the precession of the Equinoxes and made the calculation that it took place once in every 25,870 years. The observation and mathematical precision necessary to establish such a theory has been the wonder and admiration of modern astronomers. They, with their modern knowledge and up-to-date instruments, are still quarrelling among themselves as to whether the precession, the most important feature in Astronomy, takes place every 25,870 years or every 24,500 years. The majority believe that the Hindus made no mistakes, but how they arrived at such a calculation is as great a mystery as the origin of life itself."

Count Hamon later in the same book states:—"During the Mongolian invasion of India, the invaders destroyed all manuscripts and works on occultism, for fear the conquered races should by such means have an advantage over their enemies. Thus it came about that when India recovered her independence, the new generations had lost forever her priceless records on such subjects as the study of the hand and of Astrology-"

This last statement, however, is not entirely correct. It is true that as always, when a nation is ravished by its conquerors, priceless treasures and records are looted and destroyed. India was no exception to this, but records and manuscripts of incredible antiquity still exist in India and little if anything of the original knowledge has been lost.

That the observations of the Star Scientists in India were carried out over extended periods of time and that some of the results of these observations were the inheritance from still more remote Hindu civilizations seems to be confirmed by the time periods which form the basis of ancient Astronomical and Astrological

Hindu Chronology. The Hindu Calendar starts each year on the 21st of March, with the Vernal Equinox. The ancient Astrologers discovered that the evolution of the earth and the life thereon occurred in progressive chapters or periods. At the end of each of these periods and during the transition between one period and another, complete changes occurred in the physical conditions surrounding the earth accompanied by changes in the structure of the earth and in the forms of life found on the earth. These no doubt correspond in a general way with the Geological Periods, which were developed in more recent times as a result of the study of rock strata and fossils, and the fact that they may not coincide exactly with the time measurements and eras put forward by modern geologists does not detract from their value as evidence of the highly developed scientific thought regarding the earth's evolution which existed in India for many thousands of years ago.

These divisions, four in number, extend altogether over a period of 4,320,000 years, and are as follows:—

First—SATYUGA	—This lasted 1,728,000 years.
Second—TRETAYUGA	—which extended over 1,296,000 years.
Third—DWAPARYUGA	— lasting 864,000 years.
Fourth—KALI YUGA	—a period of 432,000 years.

We are still living in the KALI YUGA. This period is subdivided into epochs as follows:

- | | |
| (1) YUDHISHTARA
SHAKA | — lasting 3044 years, all of which has already been completed. |
| (2) VIKRAM SHAKA | — lasting 135 years, also completed. |
| (3) SHALIVAHAN SHAKA | — lasting 18,000 years of which 1848 have been completed and 16,152 are in the future. |
| (4) VIJAYABHINANDAN
SHAKA | —an epoch of 10,000 years, in the future. |
| (5) NAGARJUN SHAKA | —400,000 years in the future. |
| (6) KALKI SHAKA | — 821 years in the future. |

It will be seen then, according to the ancient scientists that of our present epoch KALI YUGA—5027 years—have already been completed and 426,973 years are still in the future. These calculations were made by men whose intellectual attainments would have excluded all possibility of illogical thought and that their Astrological findings also were the result of painstaking and scientific observation and deduction over long periods of time, seems to be unquestionable.

CHAPTER TWO

GENERAL THEORY OF ASTROLOGY

The Science of Astrology is concerned with the observation of the positions of certain bodies and certain points in the heavens in relation to the earth and with the correspondences between these relative positions and the events which occur on the Earth. That such correspondences do exist is unquestionable. Modern scientific experiments and observation could easily verify this and confirm the findings of the ancient scientists. It does not necessarily follow that the planets and the stars themselves affect or cause such events. It is sufficient to note that certain positions or groupings of the stars or planets in relation to the earth actually do correspond to certain types of events which occur on the earth.

To make the necessary observations and to translate these observations into terms of correspondence with events occurring on the Earth, both physical and psychological, Hindu Astrologers evolved a rational procedure which is based on five main factors:—

1. *The Zodiac—A fixed background to which all heavenly bodies are referred. This background is divided into twelve equal parts. (See Figure 1).
2. The Asterisms—Subdivisions of the Fixed Background or Zodiac into smaller sections marked by the Fixed Stars. (See Figure 2.)
3. The Solar System—The Sun, the Moon and the Planets which, like the Earth, comprise our own Solar system. The motions of these bodies from point to point within the Fixed Background and in relation to the Earth.

4. The Houses—Imaginary space divisions, radiating out vertically from any particular point on the Earth's surface, and marking out divisions of space, traversed by this point during each twenty-four hours, as the Earth revolves on its own axis.
5. Time—Any given moment at which an event occurs.

THE ZODIAC

In order to determine these positions and groupings accurately, Astrologers use a fixed background or plane of reference called the Zodiac. The Zodiac of the Astrologer, modern and ancient, is different from the Zodiac used by the modern Astronomer. The modern Astronomer uses a Heliocentric Zodiac which is a Great Circle extending limitlessly into space, whose center is the Sun. The Astrologer, however, being concerned chiefly with events on the Earth, uses the Zodiac whose centre is the Earth—in other words a Geocentric Zodiac. It does not matter which is used, since the relative positions of the Planets and Stars with reference to the Earth are the same in both Zodiacs. The Geocentric system is more convenient for Astrological purposes and was used by the ancient Astronomers. Because of this modern Astronomers have repeatedly affirmed that the ancient scientists imagined that all the heavenly bodies revolved around the Earth as the centre of the Universe. This statement has no foundation in fact. The ancient Astrologers were concerned with relative positions only, as applied to the Earth, and it was more convenient, even as it is today, to use the Geocentric System.

For Astrological purposes, then, this Great Circle or Zodiacal Belt has its centre at the earth, and from this centre it is divided into twelve equal sections by lines radiating outwards at angles 30° apart (see Figure 1)

These twelve equal sections or divisions of the Zodiac are called the Signs of the Zodiac and are named and numbered as follows:—

Western Terminology	Hindu Terminology
(1) Aries	Mesha
(2) Taurus	Vrishabha
(3) Gemini	Mithuna
(4) Cancer	Karka
(5) Leo	Sinha
(6) Virgo	Kanya
(7) Libra	Tula
(8) Scorpio	Vrischika
(9) Sagittarius	Dhana
(10) Capricorn	Makara
(11) Aquarius	Kumbha
(12) Pisces	Mina

The Zodiacal Circle is in the same plane as the Ecliptic which is the approximate path of the Earth and Planets in their motion around the Sun. The Zodiac, therefore, is merely the Ecliptic extended limitlessly into space. In Western Astrology, the Signs of the Zodiac are designated by certain symbols, but in Hindu Astrology they are referred to by number only as shown above. The Hindu names are also shown.

However, since it will be necessary for the student to use Western tables showing the daily positions of the heavenly bodies in the Zodiac, and since symbols are used in these tables, the reader must be familiar with the signs by symbol. Thus :

Aries ♈	Leo ♌	Sagittarius ♐
Taurus ♉	Virgo ♍	Capricorn ♐
Gemini ♊	Libra ♎	Aquarius ♒
Cancer ♋	Scorpio ♏	Pisces ♓

We now arrive at the first great difference between Western Astrology as derived from the Egyptians through the Greeks and Romans, and Hindu Astrology, which is an original Science, the records of which are continuous and unmixed with other cultures. This involves the determination of the first point of the Zodiac or the first degree of Aries. The original Zodiac as created by the ancient star scientists corresponded with the Constellations or groups of Fixed Stars which are found approximately 30° apart in a belt which appears to encircle the Earth at the Ecliptic. So that originally the first degree of Aries coincided with some Fixed point or Star within the Constellation Aries. The Hindu scientists have always used this Fixed Zodiac and still do. The western .scientists both Astronomers and Astrologers on the other hand use the Vernal Equinoctial point as the first degree of Aries and this results in a Zodiac which changes position each year, due to what is known as the Precession of the Equinoxes.

Since this point of difference is most important, it is necessary to understand the reasons for this difference and to explain to readers, who are not familiar with Astrology or Astronomy, exactly what is meant by the Precession of the Equinoxes.

The Earth has three separate and distinct motions. It revolves like a top around its own axis making a complete revolution every twenty-four hours. It travels in a path or orbit, elliptical in shape, around the Sun, traversing this path in a year. In addition, the earth is tilted at an angle of approximately 23 degrees and at this angle it revolves slowly like a top does when coming to rest, tracing as it does so, the form of an inverted cone, whose apex is the South Pole and whose base is traced out by the North Pole. To complete this cycle of motion requires approximately 25.870 years.

If the Earth were upright or vertical, the Sun would apparently remain at the Equator all the time. Since the Earth is tilted, the Sun each year appears to move slowly back and forth across the Equator from one hemisphere to the other. The point, at which in its journey northwards the Sun crosses the Equator, is called the Vernal Equinox. The point, at which on its return journey southwards, it crosses the Equator again is called the Autumnal Equinox. The Vernal Equinox occurs on March 21st and the Autumnal Equinox on September 21st of each year.

If the Earth, although tilted, did not slowly revalve in a cone shaped path like a top coming to rest, these Equinoctial points would be in the same position with reference to Fixed points in the heavens each year. However, due to this motion, which is in a clockwise direction, the equinoctial points change position with reference to fixed points in the heavens at the rate of approximately 50' a year. In spite of this fact, Western Astrologers continue to use the Vernal Equinox as the first degree of Aries. This is an error which has been made possible, because of the fragmentary and sometimes am- biguous records, which have come down to the Western World, through the Egyptian, Greek and Roman civilizations.

It is true that every 25,870 years, the Vernal Equinox will coincide with the Fixed Star in the Constellation Aries which originally marked the beginning of the Sign Aries. The last time this phenomenon occurred was about 1,698 years ago, or about 239 A.D. But from that date to the year 1937, the Vernal Equinox has retrograded away from this fixed point in the heavens through an arc of $19^{\circ} 41'$. There is, therefore, no scientific or logical excuse for continuing to use the Vernal Equinoctial Point as the starting point of the Sign Aries, since at best this point is a purely imaginary intersection between two imaginary Great Circles, the Ecliptic and the Celestial Equator. On the other hand the Fixed Stars are real and stationary and their apparent motion is the result of the Precessional motion of the Earth. The Hindu star scientists, therefore, continue to use, as they have through thousands of years, the Fixed Zodiac, which was the same in 1937 B.C. as it is in 1937 A.D. and will always be the same.

At the time the Fixed Zodiac was adopted for Astrological purposes, it had been observed that each of the twelve sections, which divided the heavens into zones or segments of thirty degrees, possessed certain definite characteristics peculiar to each section. These characteristics were definitely identified with the particular section of the heavens in which they were observed and each Sign of the Zodiac therefore was eventually distinguished and described by the specific conditions which were found to exist in that section of the heavens designated by the Sign. Thus, certain conditions were found to exist for instance in the thirty degree section of the heavens between a fixed star in the Constellation Aries and another fixed star in the Constellation Taurus. Since this territory was designated as the Sign Aries, this Sign became identified with the specific set of conditions, found by observation to distinguish that section of the heavens. These characteristics or conditions are as true today as they were thousands of years ago when they were first discovered and they will remain true of that section of the heavens through all time. That these conditions and characteristics, peculiar to the section of the heavens between the Constellation Aries and the Constellation Taurus, should move around with the changing position of that imaginary point in the heavens, the Vernal Equinox, is illogical and unscientific to the point of absurdity.

The error, however, was a natural one and originated with Ptolemy. It is a trap into which modern Astrologers fell because they followed the lead of modern Astronomers. From the time of Ptolemy, both Astronomers and Astrologers have used the equinoctial points as the first degree of Aries and Libra respectively, and of course these points, as has been explained, are continually moving in relation to the Fixed celestial points.

For, at the time of Ptolemy, the equinoctial points had once more almost completed another cycle, and were indeed approximately opposite the Fixed points in the Constellations from which they were originally derived. Hence, a confusion arose which has resulted in perpetuating an Astrological error.

The Zodiac, therefore, is used first as a plane of reference in order to accurately describe the position of a celestial body, so that its relation to other celestial bodies may be determined, and secondly to divide the heavens into zones of apparently specific influences. Referring to Fig. 1 again, each sign extends through an arc of thirty degrees. If therefore a planet or star be situated halfway between the beginning of Aries and the beginning of Taurus, the position of that Planet or Star will be described as being fifteen degrees of Aries. If the Planet be situated one third of the distance between the beginning of Gemini and the beginning of Cancer, this position will be designated as ten degrees of Gemini. Positions of planets are described in this manner in degrees, minutes and seconds of the Sign in which they are located.

THE ASTERISMS

It was observed by the ancient Astronomers that many changes occurred within the 30 degree zones mapped out by the Zodiac. It was, therefore, found necessary to subdivide each of the twelve sections or Signs of the Zodiac. Using the belt of Fixed Stars which encircle the Earth at the Equator as markers, they divided the Zodiacal Background into 27 sections, the boundary of each being marked by a particular Fixed Star, located close to the Zodiacal belt. These sections are known as the Asterisms or Nakshatras.

They begin at the same point in the Constellation Aries which marks the beginning of the Zodiac, and since each extends over an arc of $13^{\circ}20'$, there are therefore twenty-seven of them in the complete circle of 360 degrees. Their positions with reference to the Zodiac are shown in the Asterism Map (Fig. 2) and it must always be remembered that this Zodiac is not the movable Zodiac used in Modern Astrology, commenc- ing with the Vernal Equinox, but is the Fixed Zodiac used in Hindu Astrology, which has its zero point of Aries in the Constellation Aries.

The names of the twenty-seven Asterisms or NAK SHATRAS are as follows :—

DIVISIONS OF THE ASTERISMS

The Zodiac, therefore, divides the heavens into twelve equal sections of thirty degrees each. The Asterisms, however, are sections or divisions of the heavens of 13°-20' each. But it was found that changes in conditions and characteristics occurred even within these smaller boundaries and so each Asterism is further subdivided into arcs of 3°-20' or into quarter sections.

The reader is referred to Table No. 1, which locates these quarter sections of the Asterisms in the Zodiacal Belt. We shall observe in a later chapter that it is necessary in certain of the more powerful Asterisms to divide the territory extending over 3° - $20'$ of arc into still smaller units because of the changes which occur even within these smaller sections.

THE SUN, MOON AND PLANETS

The Zodiac and the Asterisms form the fixed background to which all the variables or moving points used in Astrology are referred. A sort of backdrop, in front of which the drama of our solar system is played. The variables which are used in Hindu Astrology and which must be referred, at any given moment of time to the Fixed Background are :

☉ The Sun—(Surya)	♄ Saturn—(Shani)
☾ The Moon—(Chandra)	♅ Uranus—(Prajapati)
☿ Mercury—(Budha)	♆ Neptune—(Varuna)
♂ Mars—(Mangal)	♁ Pranpad
♀ Venus—(Shukra)	♁ Gulik
♃ Jupiter—(Guru)

In addition to the planets, the Sun and the Moon, there are also four more variables which must be taken into consideration. These are points in the heavens whose positions in relation to the fixed background change constantly during any given interval of time. They are :—

1. The Moon's North Node—(Rahu)
2. The Moon's South Node—(Ketu)
3. The Point in the Heavens appearing on the Horizon of the Earth, which is called the Ascendant and whose position with reference to the Zodiac varies according to the daily rotation of the Earth on its own axis and the position of the Earth in its path around the Sun.

4. The Rising Point, a point situated at a certain distance above the Horizon. This point is one of the chief concerns of this book and will be explained in detail in the succeeding chapters.

Pranpad and Gulik have no equivalent in Western Astrology and neither of these planets corresponds to Pluto, which has been discovered so recently* that no scientific data has yet been collected regarding the correspondences which exist between this planet's motions and positions and events occurring on the Earth. It is true that some modern Astrologers have already written books concerning the effects of Pluto, as it occupies each of the twelve Signs of the Zodiac, but these cannot be accepted as authentic by Hindu Astrologers, because the reduction contained therein are not supported by scientific observation.

The Hindus observed the motions and effects of the Planets for thousands of years before tabulating their findings, but the moderns guess at the effects of a Planet when, as a matter of fact, since it was discovered, it has not yet made a complete cycle through the twelve signs of the Zodiac. To accurately arrive at Pluto's effect in each of the twelve signs would require a study of statistical records over a period of at least three hundred and sixty years, since it takes that long for Pluto to travel through the complete cycle of the twelve signs. To collect such statistics from records of the past three hundred and sixty years, always provided they were available, would require a lifetime and a staff of assistants, and certainly could not be accomplished between 1930 and 1937 by any one individual. If observations were started immediately for the future, it would take at least three hundred and sixty years to complete them, and even then, statistical data collected during one cycle, might not furnish conclusive evidence of the truth of the findings.

THE HOUSES

As we have already noted, the Earth revolves around its own axis once in every twenty-four hours. This motion is called the Diurnal Motion of the Earth. If it were motionless in space, the relative positions of celestial bodies referred to any particular location on the surface of the Earth would remain constant, but because of this motion each fraction of time will register a change in position of the heavens in relation to any given location on the surface of the Earth. Therefore, it is necessary to divide each period of twenty-four hours into sections. This gives rise to the construction of the Circle of Houses. This Circle has its centre at the particular location on the earth's surface which is under observation. It extends vertically into space and is divided into twelve equal parts of thirty degrees, each called Houses. (See Figures 3A and 3B). The House Chart is used to refer all variables to the particular location on the Earth's surface, at which a birth or any other event occurs.

The Circle of Houses, however, unlike the Zodiac is not on the plane of the Ecliptic or parallel to it'. It is parallel to the plane of the Earth's Equator and at an angle of approximately twenty-three degrees to the Ecliptic. (see Figure 4.) Therefore, in each case it is necessary to know the Latitude of the given location in order that the Signs of the Zodiac and the Planet's positions in the Zodiac may be transferred to the Circle of Houses peculiar to that place and Latitude.

There are twelve Houses. The First House or Ascending House is always on the Eastern horizon of the Earth and the other houses follow in sequence, 30 degrees of an arc apart, in a counter clockwise direction.
(see Figure 3B.) The Cusp of each house is the line dividing that house from the preceding house. In Hindu Astrology, however, the power of each house extends from a point midway between its cusp and the cusp of the preceding house, to a point midway between its cusp and the cusp of the succeeding house. In other words, Hindu star scientists consider that the cusp of each house is the centre of the activity and power of that house. This subject will be more fully explained in a future book.

The Cusp of the First House is called the Ascendant of the Birth Chart. The Cusp of the Tenth House is called the Mid-heaven. The first, second, third, fourth, fifth and sixth houses being below the horizon are designated as the Night Houses, and the seventh, eighth, ninth, tenth, eleventh and twelfth houses, being above the horizon are known as the Day Houses. The Hindu Astrologers use a rectangular chart of depict the twelve houses. The top point of the chart is the Eastern horizon or Ascending point. (See Figure 3A.) The point directly opposite at the bottom age of the chart is the

the point at the centre right is the Mid Heaven. Western Astrologers use either a circular or a rectangular chart to depict the Houses. (See Figures 3B and 3C.) The Ascendant in these charts is at the left and the Mid Heaven at the top of the Chart.

In Hindu Astrology then, we are concerned with the positions of the Sun, the Moon and the Planets in our own Solar system with reference :—

- (1) To the Fixed Zodiac, whose starting point is the Fixed Star Ashwini in the Constellation Aries.
- (2) To the Asterisms and the Divisions of the Asterisms.
- (3) To each other.
- (4) To the Earth.

We are concerned with these various relationships and positions at a particular moment of time, and with the correspondences, which we find to exist between them and events which are transpiring on the Earth during that same moment of time. It is therefore necessary to construct a chart or map of the heavens, which shall show the positions of these celestial points in relation to each other and to the Earth, for the given moment of time in which we may be interested.

It is also necessary that these factors be translated or referred to the particular location on the surface of the Earth, at which the event in which we are interested is or has been taking place.

It has been found from observation that, of all the foregoing factors, the most important territory at any given moment of time is that section which due to the diurnal rotation of the Earth about the polar axis, appears to be rising on the horizon. This territory is called the ascending house. Its centre is called the As-endant. Its beginning or boundary above the horizon is called the Rising Point.

We propose in this book to examine and delineate the correspondences, which have been found to exist, between the traits of character and the destinies of individuals born on the Earth at any given moment of time, and :

- (a) The Asterisms, or Fixed Stars, which are appearing on the Rising Point at that given moment.
- (b) The Planets which are appearing on, or near the Rising Point at that moment.

These correspondences will be found to be extraordinarily accurate provided the exact time at birth be known. In cases where the time is unknown, the delineations given are so specific, that they will be found very valuable in determining the time of birth.

It must, of course, be understood that although it is possible to give fairly accurate character analyses by an examination of the Rising point and of the Asterisms and Planets in that part of the heavens at the time of birth, yet before a complete analyses of the life—its tendencies, its potentialities and its problems—can be obtained, all other variables must be carefully charted.

Indeed, several charts are necessary to establish all the relationships and the Astrologer must be skillful in judging the various factors involved. Since there are twenty-seven Asterisms, nine Planets, the Sun and the Moon and the Twelve Houses through which their relationships must be applied to the Earth and, in addition, certain points, such as the Ascendant, Rising Point and Moon's Nodes, it can readily be seen that several text books will be required to impart adequately the technique of arriving at these correspondences. The present volume will deal only with the territory immediately surrounding the Rising Point, the Planets and Asterisms found within that territory at the time of birth and the individual characteristics which seem to correspond with these relationships.

First we must understand the mechanics of constructing a chart of the heavens which will show the positions of the Asterisms and the Planets with relation to this territory. Such a chart is known as an Asterism Chart, and the methods of constructing an Asterism Chart, are given in the succeeding chapters.

CHAPTER THREE

THE RISING POINT AT BIRTH

The Ascendant Point is that point in the heavens, which at any given moment, due to the daily rotation of the Earth on its own axis, appears to be exactly on the eastern horizon. Since the Earth makes a complete revolution (360°) in 24 hours, it can readily be seen that this horizon point changes constantly at the rate of one degree every 4 minutes of time. A shift of one degree in the Ascendant, particularly if there are planets or important Asterisms in its proximity, may be extremely important, not only in the interpretation of the character of the individual, but even more so, in the projection of his birth chart into the future. It is essential therefore that the exact time of birth be known. The exact time of birth is the time of the first cry of the newborn infant.

At this stage, however, it becomes necessary again to distinguish between the Ascendant point which is the point exactly on the Eastern horizon and the beginning of the First House, which is a point midway between the Ascendant Point and the cusp of the Twelfth House. This point of difference is illustrated in Figures 3A and 3B.

Ascendant Point and B represent the cusp of the Twelfth House. Then C which is a point halfway between A and B is the beginning of the First House. Let E be the cusp of the Second House. Then F, a point exactly midway between A and E will be the end of the First House and the beginning of the Second House.

It is with the point C, which we shall designate as the Rising Point, and with the territory in its immediate vicinity that we are concerned in this book, and with this territory only. The following instructions have as their object :—

1. To find mathematically the position of the Point C in the Fixed Zodiac at the time of birth.
2. To discover what Asterisms are in the territory in the immediate vicinity of C at the time of birth.
3. To discover what Planets are situated within the limits of the particular Asterism which is at or in the immediate vicinity of the Rising Point C at the time of birth.

When this information has been obtained correctly, the delineations given in succeeding chapters may be used.

As we have already stated, character readings by means of an Asterism Chart are surprisingly accurate—far more accurate indeed than what is known as Sun Sign readings in the terminology of Western Astrology, where the only data used is the date and year of birth and not the time. The Asterism delineations are extremely specific so much indeed that they will be found to be invaluable in determining the exact time of birth in cases where this information has been forgotten or is unknown. Each Aslerism is divided into four parts and many of the Asterisins are still further subdivided, each part having a specific individuality of its own which distinguishes it from the others. In Hindu Astrology, it is not sufficient to know merely which Sign of the Zodiac is rising at the time of birth, since two persons born two hours apart may conceivably have the same sign rising and yet have quite divergent characteristics and careers. It is necessary to know exactly what degree of the Sign is rising, as not only the Asterism must be known but also the particular part of the Asterism.

In order to obtain the Rising Point for the exact time of the birth of an individual, or indeed of any event occurring on the Earth, the following tables or maps must be on hand :

1. An Astrological Ephemeris showing the positions of the Planets, Sun and Moon, in relation to the Zodiac for each day of the year. An Ephemeris is published for each year. It is possible to obtain the German Ephemerides in three volumes, which give this information from the year 1850 to the year 1950 inclusive, but these books, while cheaper in the long run, are expensive for beginners.*

*[If you are interested in your own chart only, purchase either the Raphael Ephemeris or the Heindel Ephemeris for the particular year of your birth. The Raphael is 50 cents and the Heindel 25 cents. They are published each year about October, and show the planetary positions for the succeeding year. The book departments in some of the large department stores carry them, but they can always be obtained from bookstores specializing in Astrological literature. The Heindel Ephemeris is an American publication and may be obtained direct from "The Rosicrucian Fellowship," Oceanside, California. In order to follow the actual examples here given you should have an ephemeris for 1920 and also one for 1933.

- The data required is the following :—
- A. Year of Birth.
 - B. Month of Birth.
 - C Date of the Month of Birth.
 - D. Time of Birth as accurately as possible.
 - E. Place of Birth.

TIME

Since the exact time of birth is important and since all birth charts of the heavens are for a given moment of time, it is essential that the different time systems be understood before going ahead with the instructions for finding the Rising point. The Astrologer must be familiar with four times:

1. Clock Time
 - A—Standard Time
 - B—Daylight Saving Time in U. S. A.
2. True Local Time
3. Sidereal Time
4. Sun Rise Time

Clock Time

The time of the birth of an infant, if it is noted, is usually recorded by clock time. This practice however is not universal. In some contries true local time is used. It is therefore necessary to know first which was used and the difference between them. If clock time was used, it will have to be converted into true local time before proceeding with the mathematical determination of the Ascendant or of the Rising Point. In certain countries, for example the United States during the summer months the clocks are all, by common consent, set one hour ahead. If a birth has occurred therefore during this period, and is recorded Daylight Saving Time, it will first be necessary to deduct an hour, to get Standard Time, and then to convert to True Local Time. Let us then explain what True Local Time is and how the conversion is made.

True Local Time

Clocks are set to standard time, at certain meridians. At Greenwich, England, the meridian is at Longitude $0^{\circ}-0'$ and the clock time at that meridian is the time used by the entire United Kindom. Similarly, in the United States, the meridian which passes through Longitude 75° West is the meridian by which clocks are set for Eastern Standard Time. New York uses this clock time and so does Boston and all the territory in between. Buffalo is also on Eastern Standard Time and all the territory between Buffalo and New York. Eastern Standard Time extends as far West as Toledo, Ohio. But although all this territory East and West of the meridian 75° West Longitude, has the same clock time the actual Sun time or True Local Time varies considerably between the extreme East and West points of the territory.

If the place of birth is exactly on the meridian, the clock time and the True Local Time will be the same. If, however, the place of birth be located East of the Meridian, the actual Sun Time or True Local Time will be further advanced than the clock time. Conversely, the Sun Time for a place West of the Meridian will be earlier than the clock time. The correction formula is as follows :—

- A. For places East of the Meridian— add to the clock 4 minutes of time for each degree of difference in Longitude.
- B. For places West of the Meridian—subtract from the clock time 4 minutes of time for each degree of difference in Longitude.

Example

1. A child born in New York at 9.30 a.m. clock time. (Eastern Standard Time).
New York is approximately 74° West Longitude. The meridian for Eastern Standard Time is 75° West Longitude. Therefore, there is 1° difference in Longitude and since New York is East of the Meridian—4 minutes of time must be added to the Birth Clock Time. True Local Time of birth in this case would be 9.34 a.m.
2. Child born in Boston at 9.30 a.m. (Eastern Standard Time) :—
Longitude of Boston—71° West.
Difference from Meridian—4 degrees
Direction from Meridian—East
Correction— $4 \times 4 = 16$ minutes to be added, True Local Time of Birth—9:46 a.m.
3. Child born in Buffalo at 9.30 a. m. (Eastern Standard Time) :—
Longitude of Buffalo—79° West.
Difference from Meridian—4 degrees
Direction from Meridian—West
Correction— $4 \times 4 = 16$ minutes to be subtracted. True Local Time—9:14 a. m.
4. Child born in Buffalo at 11:20 a.m. (Daylight Saving Time) :—
Correction to Eastern Standard Time—1 hour
Birth Time Eastern Standard Time—10:20

Correction—16 minutes to be subtracted

True Local Time—10:04 a.m.

Longitudes of various places are given in Table No. 2 "Table of Longitudes and Latitudes." In the United States, the time meridians are as follows :—

Eastern Standard Time—Meridian 75° West Longitude.

Central Time—Meridian 90° West Longitude

Rocky Mountain Time—Meridian 105° West Longitude.

Pacific Time—Meridian 120° West Longitude

Sidereal Time

Sidereal Time is the interval which elapses between zenith or midheaven position of the Sun in the Heavens and its return to that exact position on the following day. If the Earth did not move around the Sun, but simply turned on its own axis in a stationary position in space, this interval would be exactly 24 hours. But the earth has moved forward a little each 24 hours in its path around the Sun, which takes a year, so that each 24 hours the Sun appears to slip forward a little, and the elapsed time between identical positions on successive days is a little longer each day. The daily difference is 4 minutes. Western Astrologers use Sidereal Time for setting up "Tables of Houses" from which the Ascendant and the Cusps of each of the Twelve Houses of the Birth Chart may be obtained. Hindu Astrologers have never used Sidereal Time, but figure the Ascendant and House Cusps from the Time of Sunrise. The relative accuracy of the two systems is a matter of mathematical argument, beyond the scope of the present book. The system used in this book is that which is based on Sun Rise Time.

Sun Rise Time

Sun Rise Time varies each day of the year. In the tables of Sun Rise Times (Table 3) the times given are True Local Times and are the same for all places of the same Latitude. From the "Table of Longitudes and Latitudes" (Table 2) obtain the Latitude of the place of birth, or of some town or city of approximately the same Latitude. Then under the date of birth for that Latitude will be found the True Local Time of Sunrise on the day of birth. How to use this information will be explained later.

THE A YANA UNSH CORRECTION

The Ephemerides—German, Raphael or Heindel — give the positions of the Sun, Moon and Planets in the Western or Movable Zodiac whose starting point is the Vernal Equinox which, as has already been noted is an imaginary point, which retrogrades each year in relation to fixed points in the heavens, such as the Fixed Stars. It has been pointed out that, from an astrological point of view, the use of this Movable Zodiac is absurd. It has also been stated that the Hindus use, not a Movable Zodiac but a Fixed Zodiac, whose starting point is a Fixed Star—Ashwini, in the Constellation Aries, a point which remains the same throughout the centuries.

Hindu tables take this into consideration, but these tables are not available outside of India and are printed only in Sanskrit or Hindustani, so that they would be of no value to anyone who could not read these languages.

It is, therefore, necessary to use the Western Ephemerides and to correct the positions from the Movable Zodiac as given therein, to the Fixed Zodiac used in Hindu Astrology. This correction is called the Ayanamsh correction and is obtained as follows : —

A. Subtract 522 from the year of birth.

B. Multiply by 50.1 = seconds.

C. Convert into degrees and minutes.

- D. The final result will be the degrees and minutes of Ayanamsh correction, which must be subtracted from the positions of the planets as shown in Western Ephemerides in order to obtain their positions in reference to the Fixed Zodiac.

Example .

To find the Ayanamsh correction for the Sun on October 9th, 1920—noon, Greenwich time :—

Position as shown in Ephemeris—15:53 Libra

Libra is the Seventh Sign so that the Sun's position may be written thus :—7:1 5:53

Ayanamsh Correction for 1920 = $19^{\circ}-27'$ obtained as follows :—

$ \begin{array}{r} 1920 \\ \underline{522} \\ 1398 \\ 50.1 \\ \underline{} \\ 1398 \\ 69900 \\ \underline{} \\ 700398 \end{array} $	$ \begin{array}{r} 3600)70040(19 \\ \underline{68400} \\ 60)1640(27 \\ \underline{1620} \\ 20 \end{array} $
---	---

This means that, since the last time that the Vernal Equinox coincided with Ashwini, it has retrograded away from Ashwini by $19^{\circ}-27'$. Therefore, in order to express the position of the Sun in the Fixed Zodiac for October 9th, 1920, it will be necessary to subtract 19°-27' from its position in the Movable Zodiac. The result is 7:15:53

Minus 19:27

6:26:26—Virgo 26:2b

Virgo being the Sixth Sign and each Sign containing 30° of arc.

The Sun, Moon and all the planets should be corrected to the fixed Zodiac in the manner just described.

FINDING THE RISING POINT

With the required date and the necessary tables and charts on hand, proceed as follows :—

1. Correct the Clock Time of birth to True Local Time, according to directions given under section headed "TIME."
2. Turn to the Ephemeris for the year of birth and note the position of the Sun in the Zodiac for the day of the month of the birth. This is found under the column headed "Long". The position shown is the noon position at Greenwich, England, Longitude 0°-0'. This must be corrected for the place of birth, therefore :—
3. Turn to the Table of Longitudes (Table 2) and note the Longitude of the Place of Birth. The difference in time between Greenwich and the place of birth will be 4' for every degree of Longitude. If the Longitude of the place of birth be East, then add 4' for each degree. If it be West, then subtract 4' for each degree. The result will be the time at the place of birth which corresponds with noon at Greenwich. At that time, the position of the Sun as given in the Ephemeris for noon at Greenwich will be its position at the place of birth.

4. To find its position at the time of birth, add or subtract 2'-30" for each hour's difference in time. The result will be the position of the Sun in the Movable Zodiac at the time of birth, at the place of birth.
5. From this result, subtract the Ayanaunsh correction figured for the year of birth as shown on page 61. The result will be the Sun's position
6. Turn to the Latitude Table (Table 2) and note in the Fixed Zodiac.
the latitude of the place of birth. If it is not listed, use the nearest place listed.
7. Turn to the Sunrise Table (Table 3) and under this latitude find the time of Sunrise for the day of month of birth.
8. Calculate the hours and minutes which have elapsed from Sunrise to the time of the birth.
9. Consult the "Table of Rising Points." (Table 4). Along the horizontal line of figures, read the degree of the Sun obtained from step No. 5 to the nearest degree. Move down vertically below this point to the Sign of the Zodiac in which the Sun is located. Note the figures at the intersection.
10. To these figures, if the birth is after sunrise, add the elapsed hours and minutes between Sunrise and the time of birth (step No. 8) If the birth is before sunrise, subtract.
11. Look for the nearest figure corresponding with the result of step No. 10 in the "Table of Rising Points." (Table 4.) From this point, which is an intersection, move vertically to the top of the chart and horizontally to the left of the chart. The left reading will give the Sign of the Zodiac and, the top reading will give the degree of the Rising Point.

EXAMPLE

Year of birth—1933

Month of birth—January

Date of Month—10th

Time of birth—11:00 a. m. (True Local Time)

Place of birth—New York City.

1. We are assuming that 11:00 a. m. is the result of the correction from Clock Time to True Local Time.
2. In the Ephemeris for 1933, turn to January. The symbols for the planets will be found on page 46. These symbols appear on the top horizontal line of the Ephemeris. The symbol  signifies the Sun. There are two columns in which the symbol  will appear. One column is marked "Long" the other "Declination." Use the column marked "Long." Looking down vertically under this column until you come to the 10th day of the month, it will be seen that the figures given are 19:50. This indicates the degrees and minutes of the position of the Sun on that day in the Movable Zodiac. . Read upwards vertically until you come to a symbol, in this case . Consulting the symbols for the Signs on page 40 it will be found that  signifies Capricorn. Therefore, the Sun is in 19:50 of Capricorn at noon in Greenwich, England on January 10th. In Hindu Astrology, it would be designated as 10:19:50, since the tenth sign of the Zodiac is Capricorn.

3. This must be corrected to the place of birth. In the Longitude Table (Table 2) the longitude of New York is found to be 74° West. Therefore, from the noontime position at Greenwich (Long. 0°-0') must be subtracted 4' for each degree of longitude or 4×74 minutes = 4 hours—56 minutes: the result of which is 12 hours minus 4 hours—56 minutes or 7:04 a. m. The ephemeris reading for the Sun of 10:19:50 is, therefore, the position of the Sun at the place of birth at 7:04 a.m.
4. But the time of birth is 11:00 a. m., so that to find the position of the Sun at the time of birth, 2'-3 " must be added for each hour of difference, since the Sun travels approximately 60' each 24 hours. The difference between 11:00 a. m. and 7:04 a. m. is equal to approximately 4 hours, so that the total correction would be $4 \times (2'-30'')$ or 10' added to 19:50 = 20:00. The correct position of the Sun for the time of birth at the place of birth, therefore, is 10:20:00.
5. The Ayanaunsh Correction for 1933 is 19°-38', see method on page 61. This has to be subtracted from 10:20:00 to change from the Movable to the Fixed Zodiac, as follows:

10:20:00

or Capricorn 00:22. since Capricorn is the Tenth Sign.

It has been already explained that each of the twelve signs of the Zodiac extends over an arc of 30 degrees, and each degree contains 60 minutes. Since the Ayanunsh Correction, just made, brings the Sun to 22 minutes of Capricorn, for the purposes of our calculation, it will be sufficiently accurate to use zero degrees of Capricorn.

6. The latitude of New York (the place of birth) is found to be 41 N. See Latitude Table, (Table 2.)
7. Looking under Latitude 41 N. in the Sunrise Tables, (Table 3) it will be found that on the day of the birth, January 10th, Sunrise was at 7:22 a m.
8. The difference between Sunrise and the time of birth, therefore, is 11:00—7:22=3:38.
9. Now consult the "Table of Rising Points" (Table 4) and read along the top horizontal line to 0; since we found the Sun after Ayanunsh Correction to be in 0°. Look vertically below this to the intersection with the Sign Capricorn. The figures 20:09 will be found at this intersection.
10. Add to this the interval between Sunrise and birth time obtained in Step #8, 3 hours and 38 minutes= (20:09+3:38)=23:47.
11. Look for 23:47 in the body of the "Table of Rising Points." (Table 4.) It will be found approximately at the intersection of Pisces, horizontally, and 3 vertically. Therefore, the Rising Point is Pisces 3.

CHAPTER FOUR

THE ASTERISMS AND PLANETS RISING AT BIRTH

Let us refer again to Figures 3A and 3B. We have just explained in the preceding chapter how to find mathematically the Point C, or Rising Point,—a point which marks the beginning of the First House and which is some degrees above the horizon, at the time of birth. It has been found that there are correspondences between the section of the heavens in the immediate vicinity of this Rising Point and the physical, mental and emotional characteristics of all people born when the same conditions prevail in this section of the heavens.

There are two things to consider with regard to this particular section of the heavens:—

1. What Asterism or part of an Asterism is on or near the point.
2. What planets if any are in the particular Asterism which is found at or near that point.

The delineations given in the following chapters are based on the foregoing information. If there is no Planet in the Rising Asterism, the delineations given in Chapters 5, 6 and 7 are to be used. On the other hand, if it is found that a Planet or Planets are in the Rising Asterism then the delineations given in Chapters 8 to 16 inclusive are to be followed. The first step after the degree of the Rising Point has been discovered is to find what Asterism or Part of an Asterism lies at or near this degree. This is a simple step. In the example given in the foregoing chapter, the Rising Point was found to be Pisces 3. In order to discover the Asterism at this degree, it is only necessary to refer to the Asterism map (Figure 2.) There it will be found that the Asterism Purvabha drapada extends from Aquarius 20:0! to Pisces 3:20 and since the fourth quarter section of Purvabhadrapada is 3:20 in arc and extends to 3°-20' Pisces we can say:

First:— That Purvabhadrapada is on the Rising Point.

Second:—That the Fourth Section of Purvabhadrapada is on the Rising Point.

If the person is a man, therefore, the delineation for Purvabhadrapada in Chapter 5, Page S8 must be used. For a female nativity, the delineation for Purvabhadrapada given- in Chapter 6, Page 100 would be used. Next, for male charts only, the delineation for the Fourth Section of Purvabhadrapada given in Chapter 7, Page 114 will be used and the two balanced. These delineations will be true, however, only if no Planet has been found in any part of the Rising Asterism Purvabhadrapada. If, on the other hand, a Planet is found anywhere between Aquarius 20 and Pisces 3:20, this Planet will be considered to be in the Rising Asterism Purvabhadrapada and the delineations for that Planet Rising in Purvabhadrapada will be found somewhere in Chapters 8 to 16 inclusive.

The student must next understand how to correct the positions of the planets as given in the Ephemeris for the day of birth, so as to be able to discover their true positions at the time and at the place of birth. For a complete set of Astrological Charts, constructed to give the full analysis of the character and life of the individual, all the Planets for the day of birth must be corrected to their true positions. But for the purposes of a general character analysis such as is obtained by the use of the Rising Asterisms, and which is the only type of analysis with which this book is concerned, it will be necessary to correct only those planets which, after correction, are likely to fall within the territory covered by the Rising Asterism. Let us examine the position of the Planets as given in the Ephemeris in the example for which we have already obtained the Rising Point and the Rising Asterism:—namely for January 10th 1933. 11:00 a. m. New York City. We find the positions to be as follows: —

Sun	19:50	Capricorn
Moon	4:26	Cancer
Mercury	3:01	Capricorn
Venus	25:08	Sagittarius
Mars	19:37	Virgo
Jupiter	23:15	Virgo
Saturn	5:03	Aquarius
Uranus	19:31	Aries
Neptune	9:57	Virgo

It is quite evident that even with the Ayanaunsh correction of $19^{\circ}-38'$, no planet will fall in the territory of Purvabhadrapada (Aquarius 20—Pisces 3:20) so that in this case the delineations for the Rising Asterism alone would be used.

However, since quite frequently there are one or more planets in the Rising Asterism, it will be necessary for the reader to be familiar with the methods used to correct the Planets. The Ephemeris gives the position of each Planet at Greenwich, England, at noon* of each day. It has been shown how to correct the Sun from this noon Greenwich position to the position at the time and place of birth. A similar method must be applied to each of the Planets. The daily motion of each of the more distant planets, Jupiter, Uranus, Saturn and Neptune, is so slow that for the purposes of this book, no correction is necessary for these planets, but corrections must be made for the fast moving planets, ---Moon, Sun, Mercury, Venus and Mars. After this correction has been made for each of the faster moving planets, the Ayanaunsh correction must be applied to each in order to transfer them from the Movable Zodiac of the Western Ephemeris to the Fixed Zodiac of the Hindu System.

Let us refer to the example.

The Correction for Mars to Place and Time of Birth

1. The Greenwich noon position of Mars on January 10, 1933 is Virgo 19:37.
2. The Greenwich noon position of Mars on January 11th is Virgo 19:44.
3. Mars is therefore moving at that time at the rate of 7 minutes in 24 hours.
4. When it is noon in Greenwich, it is 7:04 a.m. in New York. New York is 74 degrees Longitude West of Greenwich, which is zero and 4' for every degree Longitude must be subtracted from Greenwich time to get New York time. $74 \times 4 = 296$ minutes = 4 hours— 56 minutes difference in time. 12 minus (4 hours—56 minutes)= 7:04 a. m.

* The German Ephemeris, 1931 to 1950 inclusive in one volume, gives the midnight positions at Greenwich, and not the noon positions.

5. Therefore at 7:04 a. m., January 10th, 1933, in New York, Mars is in Virgo 19:37.
6. The birth hour, however, is 11:00 a. m. or approximately 4 hours later. And since we have seen that Mars is moving at the rate of 7 minutes every 24 hours, in 4 hours Mars would be 1 minute and 10 seconds ahead of the position Virgo 19:37 or in Virgo 19:38: 10".
7. But this position refers to the Movable Zodiac. In order to transfer Mars to the Fixed Zodiac, the Ayanaunsh correction must be made. We have found this to be 19° -38' for the year 1933 and this must be subtracted.

Virgo 19:38 is written 6:19:38

Subtract 19:38

6:006:00

8. Position of Mars in Fixed Zodiac at New York, January 10th, 1933 at 11:00 a. m. is Virgo 0°-00'

Correction for the Moon to Place and Time of Birth
Greenwich noon position of Moon. Movable Zodiac,
January 10... Cancer 4:26

Greenwich noon position of Moon. Movable Zodiac,
January 11... Cancer 16:46

Daily motion of Moon 12:19

Hourly motion of Moon 0:30:47

Time in New York City when noon in Greenwich=
7:04 a.m.

Therefore, at 7:04 a. m. in N. Y. C. on January 10th, Moon is in Cancer 4:26. But birth time is at 11:00 a.m., approximately 4 hours later. Therefore, since the Moon is moving at rate of 30 minutes and 47 seconds an hour, total correction is 4 multiplied by 30' 47" = 2 degree — 03 minutes.

Add this correction to position Cancer 4:26 (4:26+ 2:03). = 6:29. .

Position of Moon in N. Y. C on January 10th in Movable Zodiac is:-

Cancer 6:29 or 4:6:29.

From that must be subtracted the Ayanaunsh Correction for the Moon — 4:6:29 minus 0:19:38 = 3:16:51. Correct position of Moon, January 10th, 1933, N.Y.C. in Fixed Zodiac = Gemini 16:51.

Applying the same corrections to each of the other planets, we find that on that date and time in New York City their positions in the Fixed Zodiac are as follows:

Sun-	00:22 Capricorn	(10:00:22)
Mars—	00:00 Virgo	(6:00:00)
Venus—	5:41 Sagittarius	(9:05:41)
Mercury--	13:35 Sagittarius	(9:13:35)
Saturn—	15:29 Capricorn	(10:15:29)
Uranus—	29:53 Pisces	(12:29:53)
Neptune- •	20:20 Leo	(5:20:20)
Jupiter—	3:38 Virgo	(6:03:38)

Before the delineations in the ensuing chapters are applied therefore, we must in order of procedure discover the following data:—

First— The degree of the Zodiac on the Rising Point at the time of birth.

Second— The Asterism and section of Asterism situated at this degree.

Third—The Planet or Planets if any which are located within the territory occupied by the Rising Asterism.

If there are Planets in the territory occupied by the Rising Asterism, use the delineations in Chapters 8 to 16 inclusive. If no planets occupy the territory of the Rising Asterism, use the delineations given in Chapters 5' 6 and 7.

CHAPTER FIVE

THE RISING ASTERISMS AND THEIR CORRESPONDENCES IN MALE NATIVITIES

As to their correspondences, the Asterisms are divided into three main groups. These are:—

- (1) Those whose correspondences are Forceful and Positive in character.
- (2) Those whose correspondences are Passive yet Strong, in character.
- (3) Those whose correspondences are Moderate and Tolerant in character.

To the first or Forceful group belong :

Kritika	Chitra	Mula
Ashlesha	Vishaka	Dhanishta
Magha	Jestha	Shatataraka

In the second or Passive are included :

Ashwini	Pushya	Anuradha
Mruga	Hasta	Shravan
Punarvasu	Swati	Purvabhadrapada

The third or Moderate Group comprises :

Bharni	Purva Falguni	Uttarashada
Rohini	Uttara Falguni	Uttarabhadrapada
Ardra	Purvashada	Revati

These groups with their distinctive qualities are particularly important, when congeniality and compatibility between persons are being considered. They must be consulted when determining, for instance, the re-suits which are likely to ensue from marriage or partnership as they will be a strong factor in harmonious personal relationships.

The outstanding characteristics of the Forceful group of Asterisms are :—Courage—combativeness—agressiveness — daring — boldness — stubbornness — the ability to overcome all obstacles by sheer force of thought and action. These people have passionate natures easily moved to anger and uncontrolled passion. Their forceful qualities, if controlled or used constructively, will carry them far and finally their achievements will be so outstauding as to demand respect from a world which is still ruled by force and where the phrase "the survival of the fittest" still applies. Their motives may even be altruistic and philanthropic and force may be used for these ends in the belief that the end justifies the means. But with these Asterisms also correspond such qualities as lead to quarrels, disputes, strife, wars, treachery, murders and all positive evil actions of a destructive nature and persons with these Asterisms on the Rising Point of the chart, should practice self-discipline and control.

The Passive Asterisms on the other hand confer such qualities as :—Truth and honesty of thought and action —a high grade of intelligence—a certain purity of motive which at times borders on altruism. People born with Passive Asterisms rising are generous by nature and possess rather lovable dispositions although they may appear at times to their more forceful associates to be weak, vacillating and over-idealistic in their thoughts and actions. Kindness is the key note of their characters and at times even their truthfulness and honesty is put in the background to serve the needs of their keen desire to refrain from hurting anyone. These people have strong humanitarian tendencies and believe in a Supreme Being and in ultimate good.

Passive Asterisms correspond with a philosophical but sometimes rather too idealistic attitude towards life which may be so out of keeping with the environment of the particular individual as to cause him great unhappiness. However, these people quite often have very strong characters and are able to withstand the uncertainties and vicissitudes of life even better than those of more forceful attributes. They can never be brought to believe that force is necessary to the accomplishment of their ambitions and for that reason they appear at times, to more forthright persons, to employ a certain amount of guile and deceit to further their ends. This, however, is not really the case as essentially they are truthful and honest. It simply means that rather than use the direct methods, which might require force, they prefer to make apparent concessions and to effect compromises which will bring them nearer to their goal and which in the long run will overcome their opponents without really damaging or hurting them

The Moderate Asterisms correspond with a more tolerant attitude towards life yet withal a more selfish one. The natives of the Forceful Asterisms on the one hand use force to attain their own ends and have ambition to attain power and control over their fellow men. On the other hand, those born with the Passive Asterisms rising, while not employing force have ambitions to reform the world and to make it a better place to live in. But those born under the Moderate Asterisms have no such ambitions, They are concerned only with personal welfare and may or may not use force to obtain it, depending on the predominance of other factors in the chart. Their outstanding characteristics are love of family—love of luxury and comfortable living and surroundings—a desire for the good things of life for themselves and their immediate family and friends.

These people are quite indifferent to losses or catastrophes or discomforts of other people just so long as it does not intrude on their personal lives. They live and let live. They do not interfere with the lives of others and resent interference in theirs. They are quite sure that their own thoughts and beliefs are correct but are tolerant and indulgent to the beliefs and principles of others just as long as these do not disturb their own lives in any way. They like to be wealthy, as by this means they are sure of being able to satisfy their personal desires and they are not particularly choosy about how their wealth is obtained as long as there is no element of personal unpleasantness attached to it. Lovers of the arts, epicures, dilettantes are found with the Moderate Asterisms rising at birth.

It is possible by employing the delineation given for the Asterisms and their parts, to determine the exact time of birth in cases where the birth time is known approximately, simply by testing the Rising Point after it has been determined for the approximate time of birth according to the instructions given in Chapter Three. If the delineations as given for the time used do not fit the individual conditions as known in any respect, the Rising Point (and with it the time of birth) may be shifted slightly to reach an Asterism part whose delineation does fit correctly.

In cases where the date of birth is known but where there is no knowledge of even the approximate time of birth, the general delineations of each of the twenty-seven Asterisms are sometimes helpful in arriving at an approximate time. We shall, therefore, first give the general descriptions of each of the Asterisms as they apply to the Rising Point and following these, the specific and detailed description of the many parts into which each Asterism is divided.

In describing these general effects, however, we must first of all understand that each Asterism is both male and female in its character and influence. Hindu Astrologers have always recognized a vast difference between the psychological reactions of men and women and as a result an entirely separate and distinct branch of Astrology has been developed for Females. The general characteristics of the Asterisms are divided as shown below into two groups, those which apply to Male Charts and those which apply to Female Charts:

MALE NATIVITIES

- (1) ASHWINI— (Aries 0°-00' to Aries 13°-20')
This indicates a person with a happy carefree disposition, very intelligent, in fact rather above the average person in this respect. He will be quite successful and his financial status will be such that he will seldom have to worry about money matters. In spite of his ability to achieve success he will be modest concerning himself and his achievements.
- (2) BHARNI—(Aries 13°-20' to Aries 26°-40')
A very vital character, a quality which quite often leads this individual into all sorts of trouble because other people are apt to be jealous, resentful and antagonistic to him. The morals of this man are not above reproach. He will be distinguished in many cases by some sUght physical defect on the lower part of the body, that is below the waist.

- (3) KRITIKA— (Aries 26°-40' to Taurus 10°-00')
A proud dignified and honorable person—an executive type. He is very ambitious and eager for power and has the ability to achieve his desires. He has an innate sense of the importance of his destiny. He expects everything to come to him as his due and usually gets what he sets out to obtain.
- (4) ROHINI— (Taurus 10°-00' to Taurus 23°-20')
This describes a thin person, decidedly underweight, who has a critical and analytical turn of mind. His critical attitude toward everything and everybody develops, unless checked, into a disposition to find fault continually. He is inordinately fond of the opposite sex, but although he may at first be blind to the faults of the object of his devotion, a time will come eventually when his fault-finding propensities will exert themselves even in this direction.
- (5) MRAGA- (Taurus 23°-20' to Gemini 6°-40')
Unless other testimonies in the chart predominate to modify the effect of Mraga rising, these people may be very unpleasant characters. They are inclined to be misanthropic in their attitude toward life and people. They seem always to see the worst side of people and of conditions. They are suspicious of other people's motives and their own thoughts are inclined to be evil and even vicious at times. Unless checked, these thoughts will lead to vicious action and they can be quite dangerous to others whom they dislike. Possibly this attitude is caused and aggravated by some permanent organic disability which is usually the lot of those who are born with Mrga rising.

- (6) ARDRA—(Gemini 6°-40' to Gemini 20°-00')
Corresponds with a healthy, robust body and nature. The attitude and outlook of this individual is entirely physical. Mental effort is foreign to him. He depends entirely on his muscles and his body to meet the demands of existence. Such being the case, laborers, professional athletes and other persons whose occupations are wholly physical may be found to have Ardra rising. Since such people are invariably exploited by those whose mental abilities are greater than theirs, it is extremely unlikely that they will be wealthy or even well-to-do. In fact, poverty is predominant among them.

- (7) PUNARVASU— (Gemini 20°-00' to Cancer 3°-20')

A change of 13°-20' in the Rising Point from Ardra to Punarvasu brings with it a startling change in mental development. In Punarvasu the native is possessed of profound intelligence, capable of delving into and understanding all manner of philosophical and metaphysical postulates. He revels in abstract thought and has a lively and profound imagination. He may be also a poet of high attainment, expressing a fire and vitality in his verse which is the result of an unusually passionate temperament. He will, however, be only moderately successful by world standards during his lifetime although unlike the Ardra native he will not experience poverty.

(8) PUSHYA—(Cancer 3°-20 to Cancer 16°-40')
An earnest, thoughtful character, intelligent and quite religious in his outlook. Quite often a regular attendant at church services and a supporter of church and religious activities. Withal, he is possessed of the qualities which make for success in the material world, and has the ability to rise in position and to command the respect of his associates. He will fill a position of executive requirements and be admired and respected by his immediate family.

(9) ASHLESHA—(Cancer 16°-40 to Leo 0°-00)
The outstanding characteristic of these people is their rather unpleasant and unsociable disposition. They are awkward and gauche in their manners and are not quick to profit by their mistakes because of their inability to adapt themselves to their surroundings and their apparent reluctance to be gracious or kind to others. This attitude militates against success in life and is a barrier to progress. These people should give less introspectively and learn to appreciate the good in other people. They should cultivate the habit of doing things for others.

<1< MAGHA—(Leo 0°-00' to Leo 13°-20')
A proud but not an arrogant nature—poised, self-contained and dignified. This man will command respect because of his quiet dignity of manner and bearing. His position in his community will be secure and his financial standing sound. His weakness, however, is his susceptibility to the blandishments of the opposite sex and he must avoid entanglements which might lead to a loss of dignity, since to this man, such a loss would be a tragedy.

(11) PURVA—(Leo 13°-20' to Leo 26°-40')

A physical rather than a mental type. A healthy constitution not given to worry or anxiety regarding the problems of living. He must guard against impulsiveness since he is apt to act without sufficient thought and as a result he makes many mistakes which are difficult to rectify and which may be disastrous. He is very active physically and will be proficient at various sports, revelling in the joy of mere action, even purposeless action. These people seem never to rest and are constantly in motion. As soon as they have finished one thing they start on another frequently doing several things at a time.

(12) UTTARA—(Leo 26°-40' to Virgo 10°-00')

A proud and arrogant disposition, with a tendency to ride rough shod over other peoples opinions. Uttara natives are extremely intelligent but because of their inordinate pride they accept favors ungraciously even when in need and are ungrateful to those from whom they receive these favors.

(13) HASTA—(Virgo 10°-00' to Virgo 23°-20')

These people are clever, witty and entertaining. They like social contacts and are particularly fond of the company of the opposite sex. When in trouble go to Hasta persons but do not try to pull the wool over their eyes as they are extremely clever and will see through any deceit. They are very likable and are good company, but never very attractive physically.

(14) CHITRA—(Virgo 23°-20' to Libra 6°-40')

Chitra natives are quiet, thoughtful and profound. Very slow in movement and of great dignity in bearing and manner. They like to read books on serious and philosophical subjects and make good students in their youth. They are also extremely clever with their hands, which are strong, supple and dexterous. They like to do things or fashion things with their hands and could be sculptors or artists or surgeons.

(15) SWATI—(Libra 6°-40' to Libra 20°-00')

Indicative of a slow and deliberative character, almost ponderous in thought and action yet intelligent and logical. While he may be slower at arriving at conclusions than most people, on final analysis his reasoning is sound and his conclusions more accurate than others who may be more brilliant. He is very religious somewhat orthodox and his environment permitting will attend church regularly or at any rate participate in some religious activity. Many priests or ministers are found to have Swati on the Rising Point.

(16) VISHAKA—(Libra 20°-00' to Scorpio 3°-20')

The key note of this Asterism is aggressiveness and impatience. These people are overbearing in their desire to get things done. They are very active but not popular, since their manner causes people to actively dislike them and to resent their extreme aggressiveness. They are very proud and because of this, they take offence easily at some fancied slight and their anger makes enemies of people who might co-operate with them if treated differently. They will overcome their enemies through sheer force of character but such people will still remain enemies. Tact and kindness are qualities which they should try to develop.

- (17) ANURADHA—(Scorpio 3°-20 to Scorpio 16°-40')

Usually robust and healthy, yet the native of Anuradha gets very little enjoyment out of life. Probably because he consciously strives after happiness but with continual discontent and bitterness in his heart. He has a deep secretive nature and because of his attitude and outlook on life he is somewhat unscrupulous. "A sweet tongue but poison in the heart," aptly characterizes him.

- (18) JESTHA—(Scorpio 16°-40' to 0°-00' Sagittarius)

A dark and secretive nature is bequeathed to those who have the Asterism Jestha rising at birth. Such people are superficially religious but are hypocrites at heart. On the surface they are respectable, law abiding citizens, ostensible church goers but secretly their morals are loose and their tempers are passionate. Smooth, oily and suave to all appearances, they carry in their hearts schemes and thoughts which might not stand the Ught of day.

- (19) MULA— (Sagittarius 0°-00' to Sagittarius 13"-20)

Corresponds with a shrewd and capable character—an organizer, who is able to handle people and make them serve his needs through tact and diplomacy. A politician. An orator who is capable of swaying his audiences yet who is not sincere but may even be unfaithful to his constituents and ungrateful and unappreciative of favors received if the occasion arises. The type of person who, while one is still in his presence holds one spellbound but who when he leaves, also leaves a lurking distrust behind him. Extremely clever and capable.

- (20) PURVASHADA—(Sagittarius 13°-20 to Sagittarius 26°-40')

This Asterism rising corresponds to rather a low type of character. One who does not wish for and does not get the gracious things out of life. Stupid, yet ostentatious and vulgar, with very few educational advantages. Quarrelsome and loud in appearance and manner. While he must, because of educational handicaps, go through life as a servant or at best an underling, he vainly considers himself above his station in life and will be harsh and dominating but ineffectual if put in authority.

- (21) UTTARASHADA—(Sagittarius 26°-40' to Capricorn 10°-00')

A very good, honest and sincere character corresponds with this Asterism on the Rising Point at birth. A peace loving disposition. Very intelligent and wise. Respected and Liked by everyone with whom he comes in contact. Eager to give and let live. Tolerant to others, giving help where help is required. A good counsellor in times of need or trouble. Such a person makes a good and steady friend, whose friendship is to be valued because it will stand the tests of time and adversity.

- (22) SHRA VA N— (Capricorn 10°-00' to Capricorn 23°-20')

An excellent character, the key note to which is kind heartedness and generosity, particularly to those less fortunate than himself. This man will always be able to accumulate the good things of life without injuring anyone else to do so. He will be disposed to share his belongings with the poor and needy. The extent of his activities in this direction, will of course depend on his station in life. Many social workers and philanthropists have this Asterism rising. He is also very religious and will participate in church activities if his environment permits.

- (2?) DHANISHTA— (Capricorn 23°-20' to Aquarius 6°-40')

Two entirely different types are born with Dhanishta rising. It depends on the part of this Asterism which lies on the Rising Point as to which type predominates. Their key notes of both are optimism and ambition. They both have thick necks and heavy thighs. But there the similarity stops. The reader is referred to page 113 for a more detailed description of the parts of this Asterism.

- (24) SHATATARAKA— (Aquarius 6°-40' to Aquarius 20°-00')

A quiet unassuming person, thoughtful and meditative yet given to sudden outbursts of temper. Lives in the mental world rather than in the physical. Prefers solitude to the company of others. Does not care for small talk and finds social contacts rather tiresome. A light eater and moderate in most things. Many astrologers and philosophers found with Shatataraka on the Rising Point.

- (25) PURVABHADRAPADA — (Aquarius 20°-00' to Pisces 3°-20')

These people are high strung and nervous in temperament. They are not very strong constitutionally. They are rather grave and serious in demeanor and are more interested in the discussion of serious topics than in trivial matters. They belong to the Mental Group and are by no means orthodox, preferring to arrive at their beliefs through a process of logical reasoning.

- (26) UTTARABHADRAPADA — (Pisces 3°-20' to Pisces 16°-40')

This Asterism is a most fortunate one to have on the Rising Point of a birth chart. It usually indicates a man of means, well-to-do if not wealthy. A man who owns property and has the ability to earn money and also to spend it wisely and constructively. Being a passive type, his well being may be inherited or bequeathed to him but if he achieves his own success he will do so without the corollary of someone else's misfortune. He is very intelligent and is charitable and generous to those less fortunate than himself.

(27) REVATI -(Pisces 16°40' to Aries 0°-00)

These people are often distinguished by a birth mark on the thigh. They usually have well formed and beautiful physiques although not necessarily large or robust. They are found of their family and friends and very sociable and hospitable. They may not be born to wealth but they have the ability to accumulate the good things of life through their own efforts and usually will. They will know how to enjoy wisely and well the fruits of their endeavors. These people are wise and intelligent and make excellent counsellors to those who are in trouble or are in a dilemma over some problem of life.

CHAPTER SIX

*THE RISING ASTERISMS
AND THEIR CORRESPONDENCES
IN FEMALE NATIVITIES*

- (1) ASHWINI— (Aries 0°-00' to Aries 13°-20')
Born with this Asterism on the Rising Point, she will possess a modest, clean, wholesome and admirable character. She will have an inherent respect and admiration for older people, particularly her parents, but she will be independent of them, because of her ability to earn her own living and to make her own career. She will have a very good figure and even white teeth. A capable and self sufficient person.
- (2) BHARNI—(~~Aries~~ 3°-20'to Aries 26°-40')
Indicative of a rather quarrelsome and treacherous nature. She will have a tendency towards wicked, vicious and envious thoughts regarding other women, particularly. To her husband and friends, she will be arrogant and overbearing. Underneath it all she is cold, shrewd and calculating.
- (3) KRIKA — (Aries 26°-40' to Taurus 10°-00')
Describes a thin and quite tall woman. One with a weak constitution and rather given to chronic ailments particularly coughs, colds and asthma ; a tendency to be morbid and depressed and yet easily excited as the result of a very nervous temperament. She will no doubt Uve by herself away from her family, as she prefers to indulge her own whims and wishes and will brook no interference with her desires. She has a very jealous disposition and is difficult to please.

(4) ROHINI—(Taurus 10°-00' to Taurus 23°-20')

This woman will have a round face, fair complexion and a very nice figure. Certain parts of Rohini Rising will correspond with a very beautiful face and body ; some of the most beautiful women being born with this Asterism rising. Besides her beauty of face and figure she will have a keen intellect ; she will be an interesting conversationalist, good at discussion and repartee, yet withal an attentive and interested listener—she will be devoted to her parents and her domestic life should be very happy, because her personal inclinations will be clean, honest and upright.

(5) MRAGA— (Taurus 23°-20' to Gemini 6°-40')

Usually this person is born in a wealthy family or at least well-to-do. She will be brought up in a religious atmosphere and will be deeply religious herself. She is an entertaining and interesting speaker and will participate in women's club activities and other social enterprises. If she adopts a public career, she will be successful and honored. She 'is fond of beautiful clothes, perfumes and jewels, and dresses elegantly and in good taste. Her favorite color is green.

(6) ARDRA—(Gemini 6°-40' to Gemini 20°-20')

A critical fault finding disposition is apparently conferred on the woman who has Ardra on the Rising Point. Her disagreeable disposition, coupled with a sarcastic manner and speech, makes it difficult for other people to tolerate her although she is extremely clever in her conversation and many people will be impressed by her speech while still disliking her. She is extravagant to the point of wastefulness, but on herself rather than on others, although at times she will be grudgingly generous to those with whom she comes in contact. She has weak lungs and should be careful of colds and coughs, as there is a tendency towards tuberculosis.

(7) PUNARVASU—(Gemini 20°-00' to Cancer 3°-20')

An excellent Asterism to have rising in a Female Chart. This person will be successful in everything she undertakes. If she elects to have a career of her own she will become very well known and highly respected. If she marries, she will have a husband and children who adore her and her domestic life will be most happy. Her house will be orderly and well kept, as she is very particular and discriminating, and insists on beautiful and harmonious surroundings for herself and family. Her health is good except that she will suffer from gastric complaints and must be careful in her diet.

(8) PUSH YA—(Cancer 3°-20' to Cancer 16°-40')

Distinctly the club-woman type is found here. She is well read, cultured and active in all community and social affairs. In her home she entertains and is found of indoor games, bridge parties and social gatherings at which she is a charming and capable hostess. She will have her own money or her husband will be generous in his allowances to her and she will spend much of it on church and club activities and with charitable organizations. If she cares to adopt some public career she will become very well known.

(9) ASHLESHA—(Cancer 6°-40' to Leo 0°-00')

Not a favorable Asterism to have rising. This person is careless and unclean about herself and the manner in which she dresses. She is not good looking but indeed rather homely. She is distinguished by some disfigurement on the face or body and is rather miserable and unhappy. She has a secretive rather bitter nature and is somewhat harsh and unkind in her dealings with others where opportunity presents itself. If she cultivated kindness and tact, her shortcomings might be forgotten by those with whom she comes in contact but her attitude and appearance are not conducive to popularity.

(10) MAGHA—(Leo 0°-00' to Leo 13°-20')

A frank and courageous nature and a charming and interesting character is the correspondence with Magha rising at birth. Unfortunately these very attributes seem to engender envy on the part of others less fortunately bequeathed. As a result this person is subject to barbs of gossip and all through her life has many secret enemies who are jealous of her in one way or another. This in spite of the fact that her's is essentially an honorable and virtuous character not given to either thought or action which should bring slander or scandal. She is particularly loyal to her family and will do anything to make them happy. As a result of this, her actions are often misconstrued and used against her by her enemies.

(11) PURVA—(Leo 13°-20' to Leo 26°-40°)

Identified by an oval face whose features are well proportioned and a quiet, well modulated voice, soft and cultured. She is modest and unassuming but has a strong and fine character beneath her quiet demeanor. Very hospitable and sociable she likes to meet people and is interested in what they have to say and in their troubles. She likes to sew or to embroider and is often occupied with such tasks. She also is keenly interested in occult subjects and likes to listen to discussions on these matters and to read about them. She is scrupulous in her obligations and a favour done to her will always be repaid promptly with something else added.

A joyous healthy disposition yet quietly so. She has a very soft and pleasing voice, bubbling over with fun and humor. She is born to a family with social background and loves to mingle with her friends in various social activities yet she is not frivolous, but beneath her joyous manner, rather serious minded. She has fixed principles from which she will not deviate.

She prefers to choose her friends from among people who are artistically inclined and cultured. She is efficient and adept at managing her home and her domestic life.

(13) HASTA—(Virgo 10°-00' to Virgo 23°-20')

A rather good natured, lazy character with a tendency to bursts of effort. If work becomes necessary to her comfort she will tackle any hard task cheerfully and with zest in order to get it done. But she prefers to be lazy whenever she can. She is usually buxom in appearance with a rather fat stomach and ample bosom. A jolly disposition seldom angry and quick to forgive any slight or injury or wrong done to her. She is apt to suffer from chronic rheumatism and piles and should be careful in her diet; she should never over-eat.

(14) CHITRA—(Virgo 23°-20' to Libra 6°-40')

An expensive and luxurious person. One who is fond of clothes and beautiful surroundings and revels in them. She spends much money on jewels, perfumes, cosmetics and her taste in these matters is expensive. She likes to change costumes several times a day and always, looks like an animated fashion plate. Variety is the spice of life to this woman and she will be inconstant and fickle in love affairs, having many during her life and marrying often, Many actresses, musicians, artists and opera singers have Chitra rising. If she is born on the day before the New Moon, with this Asterism rising, she will have a husband who will die four years after her marriage to him and she will never have any children. If she is born with Chitra on the Rising Point on the day before the Full Moon, she will be immoral and promiscuous in her love affairs and will support some of her lovers or spend money on them and she will die in poverty.

(15) SWATI— (Libra 6°-40' to Libra 20°-00')

This woman has a truthful honest straight forward character. She can be identified by her speech and by her manner of walking. Her gait and speech are rather heavy and ponderous, at least deliberate and purposeful. She has a very friendly disposition and is popular with her own sex. She will marry into a large family and she will be very devoted to her husband.

(16) VISHAKA—(Libra 20°-00' to Scorpio 3°-20')

The woman with Vishaka on the Rising Point at birth will have delicate features and a soft pleasing voice. But do not let these deceive you. Underneath she has a strong character even hard at times. She will always follow her own inclinations and is not amenable to advice from others. She will be distinctly appealing to the opposite sex and will make a very fortunate marriage. Her husband will be well-to-do if not wealthy and she will have few if any children, not more than two. She will be fond of travel and change and will travel much with her husband. Her favorite color is red or crimson. She has beautifully shaped legs.

(17; ANURADHA—(Scorpio 3°-20' to Scorpio 16°-40')

A gay and fun loving type, clever and witty. She will always be surrounded by and admiring circle of friends and her popularity will cause envy and malice among those who are not included in this circle. Her married and domestic life will be very happy and she will be devoted to and be faithful to her husband unless the Seventh House of the Life Chart is badly afflicted in which case although she loves her husband some misunderstanding will result in a divorce.

- (18) JESTHA—(Scorpio 16°-40' to Sagittarius 0°-00')

This person is independent and self-sufficient, capable, dignified and proud. If she is not born in a wealthy or well-to-do family she will herself become wealthy through her own efforts. In such case her family will be dependent on her and she will be recognized as the head of the family. She is careful and canny regarding money matters. Being proud she has a tendency to dramatize herself and secretly glories in being the pivot or centre around which her family affairs revolve. She will at some time in her life occupy a very influential position and be greatly respected.

- (19) M ULA—(Sagittarius 0°-00' to Sagittarius 13°-20')

An unfortunate Asterism to have rising at birth in a female Chart. Very little happiness throughout the life is the result of Mula on the Rising Point, due to the secret and destructive thoughts of the native and her proud and stubborn nature. To understand this is a help. But a determined effort must be made to rectify it. The fault lies entirely within herself, her nature preventing her from being happy in any relationship. She will have many love affairs and trouble through them. If she marries she will be unhappy because of her inability to compromise and her husband will die in seven years from the time of the marriage. She has a weak constitution and her health will be uncertain, due again to the destructive thoughts which she harbours continually.

(20) PURVASHADA—(Sagittarius 13°-20' to Sagittarius 26°-40')

Lovely eyes set in a beautiful face, with small cupid's bow Ups and brown, naturally curly hair, describes the native with Purvashada rising at birth. She is also to be distinguished by her small well proportioned feet. She has a generous positive character and should be successful in some occupation which would enable her to employ her natural ability as an organizer and manager. She is apt to have been born in an influential family.

(21) UTTARASHADA— (Sagittarius 26°-40 to Capricorn 10°-00')

This Asterism rising corresponds with a contented nature. She is one who is interested in forming societies and clubs, and who makes a good manager and organizer. She is fluent in speech, forceful and logical in writing. She is extremely devoted to her husband.

- (22) SHRAVA N—(Capricorn 10°~00 to Capricorn 23°-20')

This denotes a charitable and benevolent person of strength of character and calmness of demeanor. She gives courage to others. The nervous and needy come to her for help, and get it. These women make good designers and interior decorators.

- (23) DHANISHTA—(Capricorn 23°-20' to Aquarius 6°-40')

This is a talkative and interesting person, particularly successful in lecturing and debating. She is capable of writing mystic novels and is good at story telling. She will be happy in domestic life. She loves nice dresses, especially blue, pink and purple and likes curios and antiques.

- (24) SHATATARA K A—(Aquarius 6°-40' to Aquarius 20°-00')

A person who is controlled in her emotions. She is not easily angered. Her own sex respects her. She is attached to her relatives and beloved by her elders. She will always maintain a good and respectable position in the community.

- (25) PURVABHADRAPADA— (Aquarius 20-00' to Pisces 3°-20')

This woman is usually born in a rich family, or she marries wealth. She likes to be identified with cultural activities and is extremely influential in the community in which she moves. She likes reading, and is a good judge of character.

- (26) UTTARABHADRAPADA — (Pisces 3°-20' to Pisces 16-40)

This native is affectionate to her husband. She is generous and is a good helper in bad circumstances. Her nature is forgiving. She is careful in any work she undertakes. She never indulges in silly or irrelevant discussions and will always answer straight to the point.

- (27) REV.ATI- (Pisces 16°-40' to Aries 0°-00')

This Asterism rising sometimes corresponds with a defect in hearing. The native is a person of clean morals and is popular with her own sex. She is fond of pets and animals. She is a very good housekeeper, and likes interior decoration and design. Her face is laughing. always with dimples, and she usually has black or dark brown eyes with curly hair.

CHAPTER SEVEN
*THE DIVISIONS OF THE RISING ASTERISMS
AND THEIR CORRESPONDENCES
IN MALE NATIVITIES*

As has already been noted, each Asterism extends over an arc of 13 degrees and 20 minutes. Specific changes, however, seem to occur between these divisions and, for purposes of greater accuracy, they are therefore divided into quarters of three degrees and twenty minutes each. A study of the correspondences existing between these divisions of the Asterisms rising at birth and the specific personal characteristics of the individuals born at these particular moments, will be found to be extremely helpful in cases where the exact time of birth is known.

Sometimes it will be found that the correspondences which are peculiar to the Asterism as a whole, are modified or even at times, contradicted in certain sections of the same Asterism. In spite of this, however, the general correspondences given in the preceding chapters for each Asterism are inherent in the character, and the conflict, if any, will manifest itself as a complex, or as a contrariness or periodical waywardness of character.

The following delineations apply only to male nativities except wh e otherwise specially stated. In a book on Female A trolgy now being prepared, detailed correspo dences between the Asterism divisions and female personal characteristics will be given.

ASHWINI

First Part: -Aries 0°-0' to 3°-20'

Fat, has short nails.—Eyes are large,—may have buck teeth. Fond of jewels, bracelets, rings and other ornaments of attire. Artistic.

Second and Third Parts:—Aries 3°-20' to 10°-0'

Fat, short nails, eyes are large. May be a scientist, philosopher, writer. Will be a leader in any walk of life. Walks very fast ; has a habit of pacing back and forth; likes sea voyages and may deal with or work in foreign countries.

Fourth Part:—Aries 10°-0' to 13°-20'

Hard, lean body. Fond of pets and animals. May be a preacher or minister.

BHARNI

First Parr—Aries 13-20' to 16°-40'

Florid, ruddy complexion, with brown curly hair and drowsy eyes, with red spots on them. Acquisitive but stupid—selfish but easily led. His stupidity makes him somewhat suspicious of other people. Laborers and domestic classes usually found here. People who do what they are told and lack initiative.

Second, Third and Fourth Parts:—Aries 16°-40' to 26°-40'

Not reliable, has loose morals, and is a philanderer. Liable to take advantage of friends and family; deceives the world by his engaging speech and manner.
Special Note

If the planet Mars is found in this Asterism on the Rising Point, the native will have an accident to his head which will leave a permanent scar at the age of 7 or 8, or at the age of 27 or 28.

KRITIKA

First Part:—Aries 26°-40' to 30°

From birth, he will have a scar on his head or face. When angry, his face gets very red, A vital temperament, easily excited and easily angered. A harsh speaker. A victim of insomnia ; has high blood pressure and suffers from bleeding at the nose.

Second, Third and Fourth Parts:—Taurus 0°-0' to 10°-0'

Bad teeth. Suffers from ulcers and abscesses in his teeth and jaw. Is quarrelsome and abusive. Likes spicy and starchy foods and loves to take cold water baths.

Special Note

If Uranus is found in Kritika on the Rising Point, the native will have an operation on his head, followed by high fever for many days, at the age of 14. After he comes of age, he is likely to choose a military career. He will be a gambler and speculator.

ROHINI

The fourth part of Revati rising indicates death of mother in the afternoon. Fourth part of Ashlesha indicates the father's death in the day-time. The fourth part of Jestha indicates the native's own death in the evening.

CHAPTER EIGHT
CORRESPONDENCES OF
THE MOON

IN THE ASCENDING ASTERISMS

The foregoing chapters have contained the correspondences existing, between the personal characteristics of individuals, and the particular Asterisms and parts of Asterisms on or near the Rising point at the moment of birth. These apply when there are no planets within the 13 degrees and 20 minutes of the Rising Asterism. When there are planets in this zone, particularly if they are situated at the Rising Point itself, the correspondences are quite different and will depend on which planet or planets occupy this territory. In the following chapters, therefore, the correspondences for each planet are given.

Those directly below are found to exist when, at the time of birth, the Moon occupies the Asterism which is on the Rising Point. Since these correspondences vary with the particular Asterism which happens to be rising, the effect of the Moon in each of the Asterisms is given below. These apply both to men and women.

CHAPTER TWELVE
MARS
IN ASHWINI

A proud, ambitious person, with a ruddy complexion, brown hair and eyes; is hot-blooded, and passionate. Respected in high circles; is the dominating executive type. Has the courage to face all difficulties; a mathematician—often a military officer in the engineering or ordinance divisions.

IN BHARNI

Ambitious and dependable; is always able to handle any situation which arises. Proud; selfish and easily angered; boastful of his knowledge and not popular.

IN KRITIKA

Is hot-tempered, quarrelsome, and easily excited. Fond of excitement; glories in a brawl or fight; likes medicine and would make a good surgeon. Will have an accident at the age of 27 or 28, which leaves a scar on the head; susceptible to blood diseases, such as hives, chicken-pox and infection of the gums and teeth. Should be careful in handling sharp instruments, as many accidents arise from this source.

IN ROHINI

Passionate and luxury-loving nature; usually born in a wealthy or well to do family. Has a beautiful round face, with curly hair and thin eyebrows; is popular, noted for love affairs; romantic; enjoys the good things of life. A dilettante.

IN MRAGA

Courageous, shrewd and diplomatic. However, has a false pride of education and of position in the world. Many large scale real estate operators and realty and farming financiers found here.

IN ARDRA

Good education; strict and law-abiding in behavior, to the extent of wishing to enforce his ideas of law and decency on the community at large. Reformers found here; very generous, if he is in a good mood, but has a teasing nature, somewhat sadistic in tendency; a good mathematician.

IN PUNARVASU

A versatile character; may be a writer who likes to write stories of valor and history; a satirist and philosopher with artistic tendencies. Is also interested in machinery and may be a mechanical engineer. If other indications confirm, may be a mathematician or Astrologer. Is fond of listening to singing and music.

IN PUSHYA

On the surface, a bashful and retiring nature—but predatory and arrogant underneath. A seducer, who with deliberate bashful manner and honeyed talk, intrigues the opposite sex. Marries many times. Is disrespectful of his elders and of all authority. If Mars is in Aquarius, these tendencies are less pronounced and a rather philosophical attitude towards life tempers these otherwise undesirable attributes.

IN ASHLESHA

A wicked nature, which has revengeful and murderous tendencies; always at variance with older people and with those in authority; has acquaintances, but not friends, and makes many enemies. Usually has a step-father or stepmother, with whom he is in continual dispute.

Special Note:

If Mars in Ashlesha is in the Third House, the native and his brother will die from the same cause, usually violently or suddenly. If in the Fourth House, the mother will die by accident in the home. If in the Fifth House, he will have few if any children, and if a female, abortion is indicated.

IN MAGHA

A very ambitious, unforgiving nature; attains to an influential position, by overcoming his enemies and gaining their respect; is both bold and cunning; cultivates friendship with people in high positions; has a large forehead, and is keen in mind and alert to opportunity.

IN PURVA

Industrious; acquires wealth through his own efforts; is able in business with high ambitions; is usually the owner of factories, especially those of iron, lead and copper. Is successful in securing the cooperation of associates and employees. Has a strong constitution and possesses good health.

IN UTTARA

Same as in Purva; a very hard worker; also helps other people who help him. Things come with more difficulty than in Purva and results are obtained later in life.

IN HASTA

Artistic, modest; a serious writer; is somewhat sarcastic; adept at satire; gentle on the surface but shrewd and searching beneath. Very versatile, a jack-of-all-trades but master of none; usually among the reformers working for the public welfare and the betterment of the community against those in authority.

IN CHITRA

Very grave and serious in demeanor with a hot temper. Easily amused, fickle-minded and passionate, changeable in thought and action; may change to many kinds of business. There will always be more talk than action here.

IN SWATI

An intelligent and cooperative person, rather too much influenced by persuasive talk. May be an engineer or a mathematician; is careful in action and behavior and is popular with most people.

IN VISHAKA

A revengeful and spiteful nature. Fond of poisonous drugs; uses them and may sell them; may be an opium addict; is sickly and takes a long time to recover from sickness; he is liable to have many small accidents, but never serious ones.

IN ANURADHA

Romantic and passionate with beautiful or handsome features; generous and thoughtful; of loose morals; is liable to have a scandal and ensuing unpopularity because of this; however, may rise to a position of prominence in spite of talk and scandal; should have a medical career, if possible, as best suited for medicine and surgery.

IN IESTHA

A moderate education; wicked and thoughtless. Has some chronic organic or venereal disease; is outspoken and revengeful.

Special Note:

If in the Sixth or Twelfth House, native positively suffers from chronic venereal disease. If in the Eighth, is liable to have an accident and bone fractures, or to die by a bullet wound or by accident. If Saturn is in the Fourth House from Mars or in square aspect, it indicates a bad accident and danger of life, also indicates bankruptcy. If Saturn is conjunct Mars, except in the Eleventh House, there will be accidental death while in insolvency. The same conjunct in the Eleventh House seems to give protection from these adverse conditions.

IN MULA

This person is courageous and bold and is fond of politics. Will suffer burns from fire or electricity and will have a stomach operation. There will be a scar on the upper part of the body. Is industrious and proud of his strength; outspoken and frank.

Special Note:

If in the Twelfth House, there will be fractured bones through an accident or explosion, or affliction from some blood disease or piles. If in the Seventh House, will not get married, or will be unhappy in marriage; this position also indicates loss of property.

IN PURVASHADA

Moderate education; may be a fighter, a wrestler, soldier or military officer, is self-respecting, proud and clean living; even in pleasures is clean and wholesome»

IN UTTARASHADA

Laborers with very little education. Uneventful lives, nondescript in appearance. Born in the lower classes.

IN SHRAVAN

Born in a famous family and is very gentle and cultured—highly respected. Wealthy; uses his wealth to help others; is progressive and not fond of old customs and traditions. Has rather radical tendencies; is good in business, careful in behavior, rather unorthodox as to religion, unconventional in his ideas. Possesses great intelligence and is always in the forefront of those who are trying to better the condition of mankind.

IN DHANISHTA

A dreamer who is fond of riches and wealth. Very extravagant, spends money thoughtlessly and recklessly. Is a heavy eater. He is very secretive; an artificial character with a tendency to dramatize himself. Is liable to go into bankruptcy through speculation and gambling. Has a well-proportioned somewhat hairy body.

IN SHATATARAKA

A scientist who specializes in research work; has a good education, and influences others by his speech and writing. He is fond of learning and studies the occult sciences, which he tries to rationalize and bring into harmony with modern scientific developments. Loves a friendly argument or discussion on serious subjects.

IN PURVABHADRAPADA

Intelligent and fond of learning; may be a mathematician or engineer and also is artistic. He will possibly do some research in colors and paints. Many different businesses may claim his attention and he will be wealthy.

IN UTTARABHADRAPADA

Moderate in education and quiet, this person is fond of luxurious things, and gets much enjoyment from thinking about them, but may not attain them actually, as he is somewhat lazy and seems to have difficulty in translating his thoughts into action.

IN REVATI

Intelligent, very joyous and happy; is fond of all sorts of harmless pleasure; loves the fami, and likes helping them. Is very thoughtful and ponders much before taking action; faces difficulties and setbacks courageously and joyously.

CHAPTER THIRTEEN
CORRESPONDENCES OF JUPITER

IN ASHWINI

Intelligent, generous, a leader and an excellent organizer. Fearless and honest; will make a good writer, author, or translator of ancient knowledge. Could be a philosopher and is keenly interested in comparative religion.

IN BHARNI

Only a moderate education. Is excessively fond of pleasure, but is careful and dignified in business. Will be wealthy and will have many children.

IN KRITIKA

Rather a showy and superficial education; jealous of people of high position or superior knowledge. A writer of critical articles, an iconoclast; gives to charity, but in an ostentatious manner. Has no children; is very bold and arrogant.

IN ROHINI

Passive disposition, quiet, clever, but ambitious. Capable of achieving anything he desires; bashful but rather appealing and lovable, and somewhat given to the pursuit of pleasure. Receives a good education and through it is successful in attaining influence over other people. Will accumulate wealth, gradually but surely; adores the marriage partner.

IN MRAG A

A moderate education; a rather phlegmatic disposition, slow to anger but difficult to appease when aroused. Stubborn and opinionated, but does not air opinions—simply holds them in spite of argument to the contrary.

IN ARDRA

A moderate education, but a thoughtful, intelligent demeanor. Realizing his cultural shortcomings, he likes to seek counsel and advice from others, and benefits therefrom.

IN PUNARVASU

A good character; intelligent and thoughtful; a philosopher and a poet. Lives carefully and wisely and will be fortunate in the latter part of his life.

IN PUSHYA

A good education and good business ability; is acquisitive and will become well-to-do, with many servants at his command. Will entertain lavishly and get the good things out of life.

IN ASHLESHA

A moderate education, shrewd and secretive; has a jealous nature, envious of the talents and successes of other people, although he himself will be moderately successful.

IN MAGHA

An ambitious person with a good education. Fond of society, mingles with people of position; is a good trader. As a leader, is shrewd and diplomatic and will be famous in the latter part of life.

IN PURVA

A wealthy person. Usually is a manager or director or treasurer of a large business or enterprise. Is always the head of the family; is superficially religious, but whether sincerely so or not, will be difficult to ascertain, since he capitalizes on his religious activities, perhaps unconsciously. He believes in the proverb: "To him that hath shall be given."

IN UTTARA

A proud, vain and careless person who is usually found in the lower middle classes. Too self-satisfied with his attainments, mediocre as they may be, to rise from the station to which he is born.

IN HASTA

A happy, carefree nature, fond of romance, luxury and the artistic side of life. May be unfortunate at times during his life, but his happy nature brings him through.

IN CHITRA

Lazy and thoughtless; theoretically fond of learning. Could be a scholar, but will not do anything to accomplish this end; lacks persistence and is not steady in thought; sometimes behaves very strangely and in an eccentric manner; a whimsical character, rather difficult to understand.

IN SWATI

A meticulous person who is very careful in behavior and is somewhat religious; believes in equality for all; has a long face and sharp eyes; may be a scientist.

IN VISHAKA

An opportunist, careless in personal habits, but always on the lookout for opportunities which will further his own selfish ends; cultivates and befriends only those who can do him some good; is sarcastic and fault-finding and stirs up jealousies among friends, whenever the result is likely to contribute to his own benefit.

IN ANURADHA

A dreamy, idealistic personality who is passive in his love affairs; prefers intellectual to physical contacts, even in the marriage state; is soft and kindly in speech; is fond of reading romantic and idealistic stories. Has a happy disposition, but lives in an unreality, far removed from the practicalities of a work-a-day world.

IN IESTHA

A mean smallmind, polite on the surface but bitter and sarcastic beneath. Has a sharp intelligent brain; is a hard worker; has a harsh timber to his voice. Envious of others.

IN MULA

A self-made person, who will occupy a high position through his own efforts. Will be an executive in business and the head of his family. He will undertake the most responsible and exacting work and execute it successfully; he is courageous and influential and will eventually be found in the highest circles. He is thrifty in business and stores up wealth, although he also spends judiciously on good constructive, charitable enterprises; usually has sons and no daughters, and these will be greatly benefited through him.

IN PURVASHADA

A happy, intelligent person who is usually found in a responsible government or official position.

IN UTTARASHADA

This person will be found in moderate circumstances in a middle class family. He is happiest in domestic life, and is careful and conscientious in his work. He will be a failure in the first part of life, but will be successful in the latter part. He dotes on his family.

IN SHRAVAN

A good character, who is orthodox in his views; he is religious, clean and pure in thought and action. He is philosophical in his attitude toward life and is somewhat versatile as to occupation—could be either a scientist or a clergyman, and would also make a success of the right type of business. He has an even temper, a happy, thoughtful and gentle disposition; is influential in society. He is a great traveller; takes long voyages and may become famous in foreign countries; he will have many friends and many children, more daughters than sons.

IN DHANISHTA

Not a very nice character; bold, stubborn, cruel and shrewd, and always found in bad company; brings much trouble to others; is a suave, smooth talker, but is cruel in thought and deed; is reckless and a gambler; is unfaithful to all who put their trust in him.

IN SHATATARAKA

Intelligent, but has only a moderate education. Is very active in everything he undertakes. Fond of the arts, and may follow an artistic career, but although he works very hard he will never be anything but mediocre.

IN PURVABHADRAPADA

A just and gentle person; a philosopher loving the acquisition of learning. Careful in his personal life.

Is a public worker; may be a scientist in some public or official capacity. Has a happy disposition, is dependable and responsible and will acquire wealth. Loves his home and family.

IN UTTARABHADRAPADA

A shrewd character, usually wealthy; talkative and quick in speech and actions; acts on impulse with usually gratifying results, because of his keen intuitions.

IN REVATI

A gentle, just and thoughtful person, has very curious sharp eyes. A financial executive, usually in a position of high authority; a person of means and responsibility; may be born in a wealthy family, but if not, will soon acquire his own wealth.

CHAPTER FOURTEEN
CORRESPONDENCES OF SATURN

IN ASHWINI

A dull slow brain. Hesitant in speech—sometimes stammers; poorly educated. Is usually a clerk, or minor office employee. A law abiding citizen, with too little imagination to transgress. Likes to read history and after the age of thirty-six may write a book containing historical facts. Will have no children.

IN BHARNI

Harsh in speech, a cowardly nature who, because of his lack of courage, gets into difficulties which may result in loss of honor and prestige. Will try hard to get it back, but will be unsuccessful.

IN KRITIKA

Sickly; has pains in the back; which are very serious between the ages of twenty-seven and thirty-six. Has secret diseases; is liable to be hurt by an accident or fall, wound or operation between the ages of thirty-two and thirty-six; has impure blood; withal, a courageous and fearless personality.

IN ROHINI

A shallow' and vapid talker with defects in speech; acquisitive by nature. Likes to live in the bosom of the family, but never achieves happiness therefrom, although he spends much money on family and relatives; occupation may be that of money-lender.

IN MRAG A

Although only moderately educated, is full of false pride in family traditions; at the same time, does not like to take a leading part; dislikes hard work and will do anything to escape it; is liable to commit any crime for the sake of money; is always talking about his troubles.

IN ARDRA

A very sharp and intelligent person; also cruel and secretive. Conscientious in his work for others; will not follow his own advice, but gives it readily to others. Likes flattery and is easily placated by this means.

IN PUNARVASU

A poet and writer, who is intelligent and honest. Talks very persuasively, though frankly. Unfortunately, never completes anything, although he starts many projects. Is apt to nurse a grudge and will always be waiting to exact payment for fancied wrongs.

IN PUSHYA

Intelligent in speech, courageous, modest, passive, honest and self-contained. Fond of family life. An analytical and critical writer. His first marriage will take place before twenty-four, and his second between thirty-four and thirty-six years of age. Would be successful as a lawyer.

IN ASHLESHA

Selfish, quarrelsome and extravagant; troublesome to his mother and is finally separated from her; hates his family and his relatives. Becomes a pauper after the age of thirty-six, dependent on state or government support, or begging.

IN MAGHA

Frank and outspoken, law-abiding and just. May be a judge or high official executive. Will use his own conscience in deciding cases. Is very serious in his work, and courageous in difficult situations. Is head of his own family, respected in his community and well thought of among important men.

IN PURVA

A happy and honest character; somewhat acquisitive, although he seems to like the game rather than the result. Will be wealthy, and likes a life of luxury, accompanied by hard physical exercise.

IN UTTARA

Unsuccessful, even in petty work; lives beyond his means to make a show and is unfortunate in money matters. Lazy—much dreaming but no achievement-hasty and impulsive in action; is always in difficulty because of this.

IN HASTA

Has a good education; may become an author and is artistic. He makes friends easily; is thoughtful of others and reciprocates any favors given him.

IN CHITRA

hazy and immoral by nature; is full of vices and careless in living; fickle-minded and changing; indulges in strange and eccentric behavior, the despair of his friends and associates since, withal, he is rather likeable.

IN SWATI

ed in high circles; is a philosopher. He is rich by heredity or in his own right.

IN VISHAKA

Arrogant and bold—slow in speech and disparaging to others. A revengeful; sarcastic nature, secretive and vindictive. Possesses at times even murderous tendencies. He makes many enemies; is extremely unfortunate and is liable to be sentenced to prison; is selfish and cruel

IN ANURA DHA

Passionate and secretive; envious of other people's wealth and would like to have it if he could. Likes the opposite sex and often travels illegally with them in foreign countries; he will take their wealth; there will be many scandals in his life through the opposite sex. He is treacherous and usually is in business in liquors, drugs, or oils. Is quarrelsome, spends money recklessly, particularly between twenty-seven and thirty-six years; after this, a sudden change for the better takes place. He may reform entirely, depending on the positions of the other planets.

IN JESTHA

A stubborn and revengeful person. Subject to venereal disease, and chronic ailments of the sex organs. A hard worker, but the end of his life is very tragic as he is then in poverty. There is an accident at the age of either fifteen—sixteen or thirty-four—thirty-five.

IN MULA

Courageous but also tactful; may be a diplomat or in politics; also works for large concerns on dangerous and delicate enterprises. Likes adventures; is ambitious and high-powered. He is fond of business as an adventure; if he fails, he keeps trying. Nothing can keep him down long. Is a leader, but is easily deceived by the opposite sex. He should always beware of feminine wiles. Is separated from his father early in life.

IN PURVASHADA

A happy nature ; loves his family and home. Most successful in the metal industry, especially iron and lead, but is not an executive type. Rather lacks initiative. He is fond of society and social activities. His education is more or less haphazard.

IN UTTARASHADA

Same as above, but this native is an executive type, and moves in higher circles than the native of Saturn in Purvashada.

INSHRAVAN

Religious and something of a fatalist in ail he undertakes. May be a missionary or a bishop, or a lecturer on religion. He is overfond of acquiring money, however, and some criticism and trouble may ensue because of this.

IN DHANISHTA

A heavy eater, who is subject to stomach pains. He is frank and outspoken in speech, full of vices, careless of his family and lazy in his work. He over-estimates his ability and tackles too much. Will go into bankruptcy. He suffers from asthma and colds, and is in danger of drowning.

IN SHATATARAKA

Smail of stature, nondescript in appearance ; intelligent but unsuccessful. Lives an uneventful life, very ordinary and colorless.

IN PURVABHADRAPADA

A philosopher ;—inventive ; has good personal habits. A leader, dignified and grave in demeanor yet with a twinkle in his eyes ; enjoys his own wealth and work and is very democratic in his relationships.

IN UTTARABHADRAPADA

A gende and generous nature, but one who is over-hasty in action and somewhat fickle-minded and changeable. He never finishes anything, but is a dabbler in many things.

IN REVATI

A happy nature ; enjoys his own wealth ; is high principled ; is rich himself and is found in the company of rich people. He enjoys taking on responsible jobs, particularly executive jobs in connection with large social welfare enterprises.

Active, but is inclined to spend time and effort uselessly. Is fond of travelling for pleasure in foreign countries. Is easily angered, and may do any rash act when angry.

IN KRITIKA

Usually miserable and always finding himself in difficulties. Has a vital healthy temperament when maturity is reached, but is sickly in childhood and is liable to accident in his early years.

IN ROHINI

A wonderful brain, far above the verage. Is fond of inquiry and research work and likes to delve into mysterious things; has a great knowledge of occult subjects. Is a hard worker and will rise to prominence in the latter part of his life.

IN MRAG A

A proud and boastful person, who is always finding fault with others ; ambitious and exacting. Outspoken but treacherous beneath a seemingly frank exterior and manner.

IN ARDRA

An incomplete education. Courageous, but having a bad temper ; is very frank, almost blunt. Has a heavily built body.

IN PUNARVASU

An honest person, who is given to a philosophical life. He has much wisdom and knowledge, and can mix in any society. He could be most successful as a writer or a lawyer.

IN PUSHY A

A generous, happy, passive disposition ; a person who believes in a Supreme Being. Keenly interested in magic and mysticism and is attracted to all pursuits of the mind"; personally is quite attractive ; will become wealthy through his own efforts.

IN ASHLESHA

A bold, shrewd and secretive character with murderous tendencies ; confounds and deceives his enemies and obtains power over them. Is very eccentric, and in his childhood is a source of great worry and trouble to his mother. She will live in poverty after he is fourteen years old, or die, or be separated from him.

IN MAG HA

A source of trouble to the father in childhood up to fourteen years of age ; his father dies or is separated from him at that time through poverty. An ambitious, fearless person with a sharp brain. Likes dangerous tasks and often undertakes strange and uncommon enterprises with an element of danger connected with them.

IN PURVA

Happy, respected, friendly and democratic. Is a good business man and a philanthropist. Lives an even happy life with but a few minor cares. Not a particularly eventful life.

IN UTTARA

Leads a common place life; is usually a laborer or a small shopkeeper with large family to support. He is nervous and cowardly, quite servile and easily intimidated.

IN HASTA

One who has an artistic and inventive mind, and is thoughtful and happy. May become moderately wealthy and is always ambitious for future success. Usually he is successful in anything he undertakes.

IN CHITRA

This person has loose morals but is very ambitious. If a man, he gets help from females. Is of a vital temperament and is given to many vices; he is fond of drinking and of rich food; is very eccentric.

IN SWATI

A balanced intellect, intelligent and sharply imaginative—active, but thoughtful. It is difficult for him to do anything thoroughly and he usually leaves many tasks unfinished. A philosopher and a keen student of philosophy.

VISHAKA

Resourceful and cunning, glorying in dangerous undertakings; he will leave no stone unturned to best his enemies. He is good for detective work; is outwardly polite, but is a dangerous opponent and must never be taken lightly.

IN ANURADHA

A lovable and passionate nature, but not a dependable one; he changes moods quickly and is unfortunate in love and marriage. It is difficult for him to stay with one partner for more than four years; a flirt and a philanderer. He is happy at times, but usually miserable as a result of his instability of character.

IN JESTHA

A stubborn person, who is shrewd and secretive. He travels much in foreign countries and may be in the secret service or a politician. His stubbornness will be a serious obstacle to his career.

IN MULA

Bad in boyhood, and the source of worry to his father until the age of sixteen. After that he improves, is courageous and ambitious and will eventually become a politician and an efficient administrator. He is trustworthy, frank and outspoken; he may get into trouble on account of others, but his importance will increase with advancing years.

IN PURVASHADA

Intelligent, vital and robust. A fighter, wrestler, boxer, or an amateur sportsman.

IN UTTARASHADA

Not fortunate; has only an ordinary education. Not a happy person; is unsuccessful in his work, but, through application, could be moderately successful. He should face his handicaps courageously and work consistently toward a fixed goal.

IN SHRAVAN

A backer of missionaries or of some religious or social service work, not for mere charity's sake, but for purely selfish reasons. A man who plans empires and looks far ahead into the future. Greedy for power, although he is wealthy. He has a keen mind and is by way of being a scholar

IN DHANISHTA

Thoughtless and unsteady, whimsical, and full of pleasant vices. Is extravagant, careless in work, and is liable to tackle too many things at a time and do nothing thoroughly or conscientiously.

IN SHATATARAKA

Has only a moderate education; is a dreamer. He takes things up enthusiastically but later drops them; he has need to develop concentrative powers. Has a flexible mind and is somewhat indifferent to happiness or misery.

IN PURVABHADRAPADA

A cynic and a skeptic; fond of learning and rather imaginative. He will develop his own philosophy and religion and teach it; he has high principles, is dignified; he thoroughly believes in his own philosophy and is somewhat scornful of others ideas.

IN UTTARABHADRAPADA

A person of a happy, lusty nature, who is quick in thought and action. He is a good organizer, especially of clubs and social activities; may be born a twin. Is acquisitive and must be paid for every service he performs.

IN REVATI

Good-natured, thoughtful, happy; wealthy and given to pleasure. Appreciative of the artistic, logical in thought, honest; considerate and gentle.

CHAPTER SIXTEEN

CORRESPONDENCES OF

NEPTUNE

IN ASHWINI

About 5' 5" to 5' 9" in height; has green eyes and a fair complexion. Face is grave and grounded; is very neat in personal habits and dress, and is fond of travelling.

IN BHARNI

A vital temperament; talks in his sleep, and in old age suffers from insomnia. Likes to live alone; is whimsical and very fond of occult and philosophical studies. He is particular about his health.

IN KRITIKA

A person with a sad face; rather lazy; gives up on hopes. Has suicidal tendencies, is apt to overdo if he ever exerts himself, which he does in spurts of effort which apparently leave him exhausted.

IN ROHINI

Constant family and financial troubles; changes his home often. Likes social life and entertains more than he can afford. Would be most successful in research work of any description, not necessarily scientific.

IN MRAGA

Distinguished by a defect in the eyes or mark on the throat; experiences the sudden death of his partner (marriage or business)—ends his life in poverty and debts.

IN ARDRA

Very inventive and imaginative, with a good education. Gains through travel. May have some brain trouble from overwork or worry; has trouble or quarrels with his mother, and may be separated from her permanently. He has very strange dreams. Can be successful by his own efforts, but must learn to conserve his strength. A mental type.

IN PUNARVASU

Will gain through water, or liquids, or their elements. Otherwise somewhat similar to Neptune in Ardra.

IN PUSHY A

Has a very intelligent mother; who plays an important part in his life, and is head of the family. He may have heart trouble early in life.

IN ASHLESHA

Changes his residence often, of his own will; is subject to fits or hysteria; has a nervous heart (not heart disease). Is unfortunate in his actions in early years of manhood, but will be successful in the latter part of his life in farming, gardening or working his own mines.

IN MAGHA

Likes magic and mystic things; likes to meddle in others affairs; has a very sharp and active memory. (If in the Fifth House and Jupiter is also in this house, there will be more than nine children and the family life and obligations will become a burden and source of disgust.

IN PURVA

If in the Fifth House, and favorably aspected by Jupiter, Venus or the Sun, then he is liable to gain through races and lotteries unexpectedly. If rising and badly aspected, he is immoral, given to heavy drinking, and suffers from stomach trouble. Not a good As terism for Neptune to occupy on the Rising Point at birth.

IN UTTARA

Very ordinary, commonplace and uneventful life.

IN HASTA

A painter, in water-colors not oil; also may be a mechanic employed on ships to operate turbines.

//N CHITRA

Is independent in thought and action; has an unhappy married life marred by many quarrels. Partner will have some physical defect; will have a fair complexion, short, with brown hair.

IN SWATI

Imaginative, but very passive. Will gain through the opposite sex. There will be some troubles in married life, caused by jealousy.

IN VISHAKA

If unfavorably espected from the Eighth House, likely to have a sudden and tragic death while travelling on water, or by an explosion or bullet wound; most unfavorable position for Neptune on the Rising Point.

IN ANURADHA

The wife or husband is troublesome and a source of great worry. Many disappointments in love affairs and marriage. Transactions in land or real estate will be lucrative.

IN JESTHA

Has many troubles as a result of his own stubbornness in the first part of life; but he may gain through a legacy or be appointed to a responsible official position in the latter part of life.

IN MULA

Remarkable dreams come true for this person. He has a good mentality; may be a philosopher or preacher; discussions on occult subjects are often indulged in.

IN PURVASHADA

A very peculiar character, born in a peculiar family or married to a queer, eccentric person. A wanderer—an itinerant, fond of music, perhaps a musician or a dancer. Many stage people—actors, actresses, opera singers, dancers, born with this Neptune rising. Usually generous to a fault, sharing when poor, giving away with a lavish hand when in funds—in later life, often having to depend on funds from associations or public subscriptions.

IN UTTARASHADA

Lazy; changes his business and job often is not steady or dependable. If Mars or Saturn are in the Tenth house, he will have a relative who dies a tragic death in the period of Neptune or in the periods of either of those planets (Mars or Saturn.) The best period of his life is from thirty-six to forty-eight years of age.

IN SHRAVAN

Religious, fond of religious discussion. May be a lecturer on religious subjects. Likes to form clubs and societies and does so without any expectation of monetary return. He is sincere and disinterested in his beliefs. Nevertheless, he is self-centered and opinionated.

IN DHANISHTA

A reckless nature, full of vices ; is very extravagant and always in debt. He is happy and carefree during the first part of his life, but dies in poverty and misery.

IN SHATATARA

A dreamer, who has very strange and mystic ideas. No happiness from his children ; suffers loss through his friends ; has a close friend who has a physical defect. Takes precautions against his friends because he is aware that they will deceive him.

IN PURVABHADRA PADA

If Neptune is Rising in this Asterism or in the Eleventh or Twelfth House, this person is an adept at hypnotism and mental telepathy, is a student of occultism and mysticism, and has psychic powers.

IN UTTARABHA DRAPADA

Will travel much and change his residence often ; is very acquisitive, and his love of wealth may bring trouble to him. He may be falsely imprisoned or fined, or receive bodily injury through treachery of some associate.

IN REVATI

A thoughtful, careful, honest person who should be well-to-do. His career will bring him in contact with hospitals, prisons, lunatic asylums. He could be a detective or a police commissioner.

Special Note:

If Neptune be in Revati in the Twelfth House, however, instead of having an honorable career he may be confined to an asylum or prison, or spend a good deal of his life confined in hospitals or public institutions.

CHAPTER SEVENTEEN

MALE NATIVITIES

In the previous chapters we have given the correspondences which seem to exist between the characters and potential destinies of individuals, and the conditions existing in the heavens at a certain point which, due to the diurnal motion of the earth, appears to be rising near the Eastern horizon at the time of birth. Next in importance are the characteristics which have been found to correspond with the various positions of the Moon at the moment of birth in each of the twelve signs of the Zodiac. This is another point at which Western Astrology and Hindu Astrology diverge.

In Western Astrology, character readings are given, based on the position of the Sun. Such readings are considered entirely worthless by Hindu Astrologers, since thousands of persons are born with the Sun occupying the same position in the Zodiac. The Sun moves through the Zodiac at the rate of one degree approximately each twenty-four hours so that it remains in one Zodiacal Sign for about 30 days. During a thirty day period many thousands of persons may be born, with entirely different characteristics, so that the position of the Sun, therefore, furnishes very little specific differentiation in character. On the other hand, the Moon moves through the twelve Zodiacal signs in approximately twenty-eight days, so that it occupies one sign for a period of somewhat over two days. Therefore, the general characteristics of all people, born during this short period, will vary much less and investigation will disclose a remarkable number of points of similarity between such people.

Again, however, we must warn our readers that even these characteristics will not be entirely accurate and are true only in a general way, since each degree of each sign must be taken into consideration and it is impossible in a book of this scope to give the characteristics, which correspond to each degree, which the Moon occupies in the Zodiac at birth. But these delineations, when balanced with those given for the Rising Point, will be found to fit very accurately in most cases and are far more valuable than the Sun readings used in Western Astrology.

Again we have to differentiate between men and women and to give separate delineations for the Moon in each of the twelve Signs, one for men and one for women. The delineations for men follow:—

Caution; Before applying these delineations, be sure that the position of the Moon has been corrected to the Fixed Zodiac.

MOON IN ARIES

These people are exceedingly active—somewhat excitable—egotistic and self-confident—selfish and ambitious. They are passionate and rather predatory in their dealings with the opposite sex. They are healthy and buoyant in spirits, talkative but with a slight impediment in the speech, perhaps caused by their thoughts running ahead of their words. They have rather harsh voices; they make good executives but are overbearing to their associates and employees. They are good friends to those whom they can impress. In their lives, they will have many journeys and changes of residence, but prefer to travel by land as they are either afraid of or dislike water travel or water sports.

While they are fond of reading in bed at night, they should avoid doing this as their eyesight is particularly susceptible to defects from strain. They are fond of eating and particularly of spicy food and drink, but partaking of intoxicating liquors upsets them and puts them at a great disadvantage and should, therefore, be avoided. They should live in large cities as they are restless and must have the noise and bustle of busy towns. Their chief physical defects will arise from their teeth. These people quite often can be distinguished by the reddish flecks in their eyes, bad nails, a scar or mark on the head, a scar or mark on the palm of one hand—and protruding or buck teeth. If under severe strain, they may become mentally unbalanced. Their lucky stone is Coral. Thursday is the day on which they should start any enterprise.

MOON IN TAURUS

These persons are steady, but rather stubborn; they have controlled natures and tempers, but are almost insane if aroused. Their morals are good, their natures conservative. They make good citizens and assume responsibility easily and naturally. They are inclined to be lazy, however, and will work hard only if they have to. However, when necessity arises, they can be depended on to do their share. To those whom they love, they are generous to a fault, but are inclined to be rather niggardly in their dealings generally. They are very reliable and thrifty, and because of this trait they will slowly build up and accumulate and will be wealthy, or well to do in the middle or latter years.

They are fond of music. Underneath a calm exterior, They are really passionate and excitable and can be aroused to jealous rage in love affairs. They are great eaters, indeed inclined to overeat, and because of this will get heavy and constipated unless this tendency is curbed. They should avoid crowded communities and large cities and live in the country, since they like solitude and the wide open spaces. They are fond of family life and particularly of brothers or sisters. If married, they will have more daughters than sons. They are fond of the opposite sex. They have very old-fashioned and conservative ideas regarding the opposite sex and are inclined to stick to settled customs and ideas generally. Usually they are very handsome, with big legs and thighs and a large round face—moderate height — fair complexion — white, even teeth — blue eyes, with bluish whites. Their fortunate stone is the Cat's Eye; their fortunate day is Friday.

MOON IN GEMINI

These are very thoughtful, intelligent, and sometimes brilliant people. They have a quickness of mind which may appear changeable to others, but which is nevertheless logical and orderly, and they make the most formidable opponents in agreement, because of this ability to skip from one aspect of the subject to another, with seeming irrelevancy, yet never for a moment losing sight of the main argument, which will return to after having led their opponents through devious paths, into traps, from which it is difficult to extricate themselves.

They have a flair for scientific investigation and, indeed, are fond of all education and learning. They are talkative and are excellent linguists. They are extremely active mentally and restless physically, and are subject to mental breakdowns because of this. They should take much exercise in the open air. Ideas simply crowd though their minds, many at a time. They are really not as superficial as they appear to be and can give authoritative information on any subject. Their real and secret thoughts, however, are hidden from view beneath a superficial wit and brilliance as they are quite secretive. Their most successful occupation would be writing or journalism, publishing, etc.

They are excellent mimics and absorb like a sponge the thoughts of other people, quite often appropriating them as their own. They are rather inclined to be physical cowards, since living in the mental world, they shrink from bodily contact or injury and can be easily intimidated by a show of physical violence. They suffer from asthma and diseases of the heart and respiratory organs, and should be careful of their food, refraining from eating when the mind is disturbed. They are self-confident, and sometimes vain and arrogant, and are extremely skeptical of anything which cannot be proven scientifically. Very romantic, but not deeply touched by love or passion, they find great pleasure in the company of the opposite sex, being very fond of music, entertainment, dancing, speculation and gambling. They are usually slim, of over average height, well - shaped straight noses, dark eyes, soft persuasive voices with a habit of hunching the shoulders when walking. Their faces resemble either a stag or deer. They should live in high altitudes, in the mountains or in the desert. Their lucky stone is the Emerald and the best day for commencing any important activity is Wednesday.

MOON IN CANCER

Tender-hearted but selfish, these people are possessive and expect gratitude and love in return from those on whom they lavish their affections. Theirs is a possessive regard and as friends, they are jealous because of their wish to absorb the entire time and affection of those whom they befriend. They are receptive to and pleased by flattery, and are easily hurt and upset by slights from those from whom they expect friendship.

They are proud of family and ancestors, and like to relate their family history and lineage. They are also very patriotic to the country of their birth or adoption and are offended if it is criticized. They love domestic life and make good husbands and fathers. They are inclined also to be social climbers and it is important to them to be respected and looked up to in the community in which they live. They are thrifty and most careful and scrupulous in financial matters. They love to live near the water, and to take sea voyages or to travel in foreign lands. They are successful in businesses having to do with exports or imports, particularly of food commodities, but in any merchandise which can be quickly turned over. They usually possess some property or real estate, but their incomes are not steady. They are sometimes successful at gardening or truck fanning.

Many musicians are born with the Moon in Cancer. These people are rather robust in their morals and language and are apt to be lacking in refinement. They are quite courageous and accept calamity or disaster philosophically and placidly. They are fond of the theatre and life is incomplete to them without the make-believe of the stage. These people are rather serious in their affairs of the heart, but because of their possessive love, the marriage partner is apt to chafe under it and as a result, more than one marriage is common in the lives of Moon in Cancer people. They can be recognized usually by a heavy, rather rolling walk, which consists of small fast steps. They have thick short fleshy necks and chests, and large front teeth. They have large hands with short fat fingers and large feet. They are of moderate height with round faces and fair complexions. They are inclined to worry and should avoid a tendency to drown their worries in drink. Their fortunate gem is Pearl, preferably of a pink or bluish color and their favorable day is Monday.

MOON IN LEO

These persons are courageous and generous to a fault. They are leaders and make wonderful executives. They have a commanding manner. Sometimes they use this to the point of arrogance, but they are condescendingly kind and generous in a grand manner to their subordinates when they wish to be so. They are quite selfish, however, and their generosity is often prompted by self-interest, except when it is extended to those they love. They have the knack and power to influence other people, and the personality to mould opinion. They are positive and fixed in their ideas, somewhat conceited, and showy, and love to be the center of attraction. They are not conventional but rather bohemian in their mode of living, not caring what society thinks of their actions. The mere fact that they do a certain thing makes it all right and they do not easily brook criticism. They have a fearless frank independent nature, quick to take offense but just as quick to forgive. They prefer to have their own business and failing this, they are usually found at the head of someone else's business. Put them in any subordinate position and they will soon rise from the ranks to a position of authority and responsibility.

In a male chart, Leo is one of the most fortunate signs for the Moon to be in at birth. In appearance, they are rather tall, but if short they give the impression of height because they stand erect with chest out and head thrown back. Broad of chest, and wide of forehead large chins and mouths, fair complexion, large heads. On the whole, they are very healthy and optimistic but easily angered. Their appetites are keen, and they are great meat eaters. They will have few, if any, children. Their fortunate gem is the Ruby, and the most favorable day is Sunday.

MOON IN VIRGO

These people are dignified, reserved and bashful. They talk softly with dignity, not ponderously but rather persuasively and logically, commanding respect for their expressed views. They are somewhat religious, yet their religion is not orthodox and they may appear on the surface to be atheists or skeptics, since they are extremely analytical in their attitude and all religious ideas must appeal to their reason. Because of this, they quite often are found in the ranks of Christian Scientists or of occultists. They are fond of reading and investigation and are always striving to combine science and religion, and to rationalize the emotions.

They like travel, and will take many short and long journeys during their lives. They are not domes- tic, preferring to live in hotels, or in apartments where there is a maximum of service. If they are in their own homes, they make rather exacting demands on those who serve them. They are meticulous as to details and adaptable to any business requiring exactitude of method. They are on the whole fortunate in business. The men with Moon in Virgo have some feminine characteristics and viewpoints which are sometimes disconcerting to the opposite sex, and they are at all times coldly analytical in their attitude, even to those they love, although they may not show it. As a rule, they are slim, of average height, quiet and dignified in appearance, with a habit of laughing while telling a joke, but rather grave otherwise. These people should be very careful about diet as they are subject to diseases and ailments of the stomach. They should try to live in the country even though they prefer the city, since the constant nervous tension of the city upsets their digestion. Their lucky gem is the Emerald, and the best day for starting any enterprise is Wednesday.

MOON IN LIBRA

Intelligent, rather happy-go-lucky persons, who are inclined to let the world go by, just so long as it does not disturb them. At times this attitude leads to laziness and shiftlessness, yet they are charming people to know and, if forced to by circumstances, they will apply themselves conscientiously and agreeably. Whatever their lot, they will never grumble or find fault, but if things get too much for them, will quietly get out of the way, avoiding dispute wherever possible.

They are never mean or vicious and are kindly in their thoughts of others • resenting criticism of themselves, working on the axiom "You mind your business and I'll mind mine." They are attractive to the opposite sex and because of their amiability, may find themselves in rather complicated situations at times, since they have very romantic natures. Their relatives and friends are quite likely to impose on their good nature, and may do so up to a certain point, but past that point these persons suddenly become difficult. They are very extravagant, fond of clothes and luxuries of all kinds. While they appear frank and open, and even ingenuous, they are really quite secretive about their affairs and it is quite difficult to really know them or get on real terms of intimacy. They are fond of the arts and are usually well-educated. They are inordinately fond of music, dancing and entertainment. The theatre has a great attraction for them, and many will be found on the stage. They are susceptible to skin diseases, caused from over-indulgence in delicacies of the table, and should be more moderate in this respect.

They are honest in business, but somewhat involved in their moral and social outlook, with the ability to slide out of difficult situations with an agility which to others might appear to border on dishonesty. Their motives, however, are usually good and they could give sound and adequate reasons for their actions if they cared to. Their tendency is, however, to avoid the real explanations and only if pushed will they ever reveal their real motives. They are usually of dark complexion, moderate height, and have soft voices. They should live in large cities rather than in the country, for they are cosmopolitan and somewhat bohemian in their tastes. The gem which they should wear is the Diamond and Friday is their fortunate day.

MOON IN SCORPIO

These people are not on the surface. Their real character is hidden deep within them, by no means apparent to superficial observation. They are strong and selfish, jealous and vindictive, bold and aggressive, hard-hearted and ruthless. They never forget a fancied wrong and must have vengeance, the thought and design of which they will muse on and develop over a period of years, if necessary. They have the set purpose and determination of the opposite sign Taurus, but not the same frankness and openness of motive. They make powerful and ruthless adversaries, but are too secretive to make good friends, since even a friend of long standing will not know the true nature of a Moon in Scorpio individual. In business they rise to positions of authority through their determination and their will-power, which is strong. They have the aggressiveness of Moon in Aries persons, but their forces are more sustained and they have more endurance.

They are very passionate and possessive and are capable of making plans years in advance, to accomplish their desires. Their passionate natures lead them into many difficulties and where women are concerned they are quite without any sense of chivalry. They expect a struggle and glory in it, but ruthlessly push aside all obstacles to the fulfillment of their desires. This passionate powerful nature, however, can be used to great advantage in other directions, but it must be remembered that these people are never altruistic in their motives, and although they may appear to be using their inherent forces for the good of humanity, their own ambitions are the main issue. They are secret sinners and there may be dark chapters in their lives, which the world knows nothing about. They are extremely interested in the occult sciences and the devotees of black magic are quite often found with Moon in Scorpio. They make excellent surgeons and research chemists.

They are usually dark in complexion, with large aquiline features, and may have a birthmark or scar on the face or head. They have small hands and feet, short necks and hairy bodies. They must be careful of infection and should never drink intoxicating liquors. They should live close to the water. Their gem is Coral and their favorable day is Tuesday.

MOON IN SAGITTARIUS

Jovial, frank, kind-hearted and joyous are the persons who have Moon in Sagittarius at birth. They may be recognized by their long necks, long straight noses, large ears and mouths, and big foreheads. Above medium height, slender, but with well-developed shoulders and chest, more often than not with fair complexions and brown eyes. These people are generous and loyal, industrious and artistic. They are clever and while mentally they are on a high plane, yet at the same time they are also fond of physical exercise, sports—especially horse-back riding, boxing and wrestling. They are most loyal to family and relatives and are almost clannish in this respect. While they are amiable and jovial when in good humor, they have quick tempers which can easily be aroused and they are hasty and arrogant when angry, being apt to lose their sense of proportion entirely. They should avoid making any decisions when angry as their judgment at that time will be invariably at fault. They are quick to forgive and forget however. They are very interested in Astrology and allied subjects and will read and study along these paths. They would make good lawyers. Their fortunate gem is the Yellow Diamond and they will find that Thursday is a favorable day in which to start new enterprises.

MOON IN CAPRICORN

These people may be recognized by their slim bony figures as a rule, but there are a few, usually when Mars is conjunct the Moon, who have rather heavy bodies. In both cases, however, the bone structure is large and prominent. They usually have large heads with bushy or prominent eyebrows, throats which resemble the throats of crocodiles, rough, coarse hair, long necks. They speak slowly and rather ponderously, and when excited have a trick of suddenly raising the voice. Often their talk seems pointless and rather pedantic and they may be quite boring to people of quicker wit and more versatile minds. They are hard workers, very thrifty and are punctilious in their obligations.

They do not like to borrow or to lend money, and will give many a lecture about the evils of borrowing money to their less provident friends. They are almost puritanically orthodox in their religious views and are scornful and antagonistic to ideas of a mysterious or occult nature. They simply cannot accept Astrology or any branch of learning which is metaphysical in character. They are, as a rule, hard-headed business men or accountants and deal in things they can see and accumulate. Their religious views are entirely separate from and have no bearing or influence on their business or material life. They are devoted to their wives and children but as a rule have none, or very few, children. They are a curious mixture of practical business horse sense and romantic ideals. They either marry very young, and are left widowed, or there is a big difference in age between them and their wives.

They are self-confident, quite opinionated, and do not hesitate to show their likes and dislikes openly. They will rise slowly in life, and through their thrift and hard work will have sufficient but not necessarily an abundance for their old age. Their health is good, they usually live quite long—many octogenarians being found with Moon in Capricorn. Their ailments are more mental than physical and senility will often come on while the physical body, although old, is still robust. They may suffer from rheumatism in the body, which affects the ankles and feet. They should avoid eating cold foods. The Star Sapphire is their fortunate gem. Saturday is the day on which they should start new enterprises. Their favorite colors are blue and green.

MOON IN AQUARIUS

Tall slender persons, somewhat raw boned and muscular muscles with prominent in face and body—rather long necks, big feet and hands. When young, the hair grows down over the eyes—with a tendency to baldness as they grow older. Usually sandy or of fair complexion with a somewhat long face. These people are strong and hard, physically courageous yet passive, passionate but kind hearted. While their bodies are made for hard physical work and endurance, yet their lives are nearly always lived on a high mental plane and they prefer mental activity to physical endeavor.

They are intelligent, deep thinkers, and extremely logical and scientific in their thought processes. They are quite likely to make a mark in the world because of their scientific attainments, although these are more often in the research field. They read extensively and all the metaphysical sciences attract them. Yet they always keep both feet on the ground and do not permit their philosophical concepts to run wild, without the constant check of logical and scientific reasoning. They are extremely scornful of convention and are considered radical in their views because of their impatience with stupid and worn out ideas. They are the pioneers of new ideas, new thought, new inventions. Their outlook according to their opportunity and environment, is national rather than provincial, international rather than patriotic, universal and cosmic rather than terrestrial, humanitarian rather than sectarian. They abominate doctrine or dogma, custom and tradition, and for this reason are misunderstood and subject to criticism and even contumely from their fellow 'men. But they remain indifferent and even joyous, being quite aware of their superiority, yet at no time being arrogant or condescending about it. They may suffer from weak or impaired eyesight due to reading too much. The gem corresponding to this nature is the Blue Sapphire. The fortunate day is Saturday, and the colors are sea green and scarlet.

MOON IN PISCES

These people are short and rather stocky or plump. They have round small heads with bulgy eyes, complexions medium to dark. They are very romantic and dreamy and through love they are easily led by the opposite sex often to the point of being dominated by the loved one. Easy, pliable natures, somewhat unstable and independable on the surface, but with a quiet determination to accomplish if their minds are once made up. However, they should learn to say "No" since they are easily influenced by others, and they may often be forced into the embarrassing position of having committed themselves to two conflicting forms of action simply because they allow themselves to drift in both directions at the same time. Not that they are dishonest or trickily, but simply that they seem to be incapable of resisting pressure; from others. They are kindhearted, charitable and generous, and enjoy being of service. In fact, they often carry the idea of service to extremes and sacrifice themselves unnecessarily. They are found in such positions as nurses, hospital attendants, voluntary workers in charitable institutions waiting on others, attending to the personal wants of others.

They are modest and retiring, lead very quiet and unobtrusive lives, never initiating anything or leading any movement but content to do their part no matter how irksome it may be. They are fond of music the sound of which will always bring the tears to their eyes as these people are quite emotional, yet not excitable. Reading and writing are their relaxations from service of others and they may write fiction, particularly stories of romance and intrigue. These people do not enjoy the best of health, being subject colds, kidney and stomach trouble. They must be extremely careful of their diet and should never drink alcoholic beverages.

They are somewhat absent-minded and forgetful of the little everyday things, but have long memories of past events. The gem corresponding with this position of the Moon is the Yellow Diamond. The favorable day for any enterprise is Thursday. The best time is from early evening Thursday to day-break of Friday. The color is sea green.

CHAPTER EIGHTEEN
IN EACH OF THE TWELVE SIGNS OF THE ZODIAC*

FEMALE NATIVITIES

The correspondences given in the foregoing chapter are primarily true for males. Many of the delineations given for male natiivities, however, are in general applicable to women also. The following delineations are specifically applicable to women and where they contradict or modify the male delineations, preference must be given to the female characteristics outlined in the following paragraphs. Again we must caution our readers, particularly those who are already familiar with Western Astrological methods, that these delineations are worthless if the position of the Moon in the Western Ephemerides is used, since the Ayananish Correction—which must first be applied—may conceivably change the Sign which the Moon occupies in the Ephemeris reading. Be sure, therefore, to correct the Moon to the Fixed Zodiac position of Hindu Astrology before applying these correspondences.

MOON IN ARIES

These women possess vital temperaments, healthy, rather wiry and muscular bodies. They are not particularly attractive to men ; of a strong masculine nature they are apt to make with men whose characteristics include a compound of the feminine. The women with Moon in this sign are ambitious and acquisitive to the point of being avaricious. They are independent and domineering and will be the heads of their families. Their husbands will be hen-pecked, and it takes a very patient and easy going man to live in harmony with one of these women. They are selfish too, expect their husbands to be good providers. Since they usually marry weaklings, the married life is not usually a happy one. Their speech is sharp and scolding. They are vain and easily swayed by flattery. Their ailments are usually caused by unnecessary mental worry and anxiety, and this tendency in later life is apt to cause some brain disorder. They suffer continually with headaches, and eyesight is apt to be somewhat impaired. They are subject to accidents and are in constant fear of fire or burns.

MOON IN TAURUS

The characteristics of these women are in direct contrast to those with Moon in Aries. They are usually good-looking, with small round faces and beautiful well-proportioned figures. Their eyes are lustrous and beautiful. They usually have rather large noses for their faces, but their noses are not angular like their Aries sisters. The tips are nicely formed, cupid's bow in shape, with rather thicker-under-lips, somewhat sensuous in appearance. They are modest, respectful to older and more experienced people, passive yet positive in their thoughts and actions. Stubborn but not aggressive. Shrewd but not clever or brilliant. Somewhat lazy and sensuous with a love of luxury and good things to eat. They are essentially pleasure loving, fond of society and the social life and particularly the company of the opposite sex. They usually marry well and are well looked after by their husbands. They make good housewives where they are useful as well as ornamental. They like to read, are fond of travel.

They like to be dominated by their husbands, but because of their attractiveness and their sex appeal, their husbands are really under their domination without being aware of it. They love beautiful dresses, and perfumes. They are artistic themselves and are often found in artistic and musical circles. Withal, they are careful and conscientious in any work which they have to do, and if they do not marry are capable of supporting themselves and of accumulating the world's goods. They are apt to become stout as they grow older since they do have a tendency to overeat. Their chief ailments are of the throat and neck—usually they have infected tonsils, caused by toxic poisons in the system, the result of constipation and indigestion.

MOON IN GEMINI

Keen intelligent faces, rather attractive, beautiful figures, particularly well shaped legs and ankles and small hands and feet are the most evident physical characteristics of the women with Moon in Gemini at birth. Quite often they have natural curly hair which lends a feminine touch to faces which might otherwise be somewhat boyish in appearance. These women are on tight wires all the time. Nervously temperamental and excitable as a result of extreme mental activity and the tendency to do too many things at a time ; they even read three or four books at a time going from one to the other. They have the faculty of quickly grasping the essentials of a book by reading here and there in the book, preferring to do this rather than to start the book at the beginning and read consecutively through to the end. They are talkative, with the habit of skipping from one subject to another. They are highly imaginative and romantic but not warmly affectionate. They are best fitted for clerical jobs, writing, or work in the advertising departments of large concerns—file clerks, copy writers, research information, etc. If married, they will collaborate in their husband's business or work out some career of their own. They are not good housewives, detesting the menial details of housework, but they make splendid organizers both at home and in the office, as they have a mental grasp of details, while abhorring the physical tasks of carrying them out.

They are interested in Art, sculpture particularly, and are fond of reading poetry. They have strong constitutions as a rule. Their chief weakness is in the lungs, and they should avoid eating or drinking cold food or beverages, since this seems to affect the lungs. Intoxicating liquors are very dangerous to these women as while they are mentally stimulated by their use, the effect on the lungs is very disastrous. They should also avoid the use of drugs or medicines whenever possible, as they have the power to cure themselves and will recover quickly from most ailments. Medicines and drags seem to affect them adversely and act contrary to expectations.

MOON IN CANCER

These women are of moderate height, round faces, inclined to puffiness,— (unless Mars be conjunct the Moon, which renders the face sharp and thin)—bodies inclined to stoutness and as, age increases, even to obesity. They are essentially family women, being greedy attached to home and husband and children, almost to the exclusion of all other interests. They are possessive and sensitive to fancied slights from people from whom they expect love and kindness. They are social climbers and love to talk of what they possess,—of me and mine, particularly with reference to home, family and friends. These women are kind and sympathetic to the point of being fussy, and in their attitude towards their children they are just like fussy mother hens. Outside of the home, they make good hotel managers, real estate supervisors or restaurant hostesses or owners. They are very thrifty. They do not have strong constitutions, but suffer from heat and stomach troubles. As they grow older they become rheumatic with many pains and aches in consequence ; they also become heavy on their feet. Throughout their lives, they seem to worry much over fancied diseases and take many patent medicines.

MOON IN LEO

In appearance, these women are rather attractive. They usually have fair complexions, wide and generous features, big round eyes. Height above medium with rather large bones and bodily structure. They are generous, independent, and jolly, although easily offended or hurt, and if offended or slighted are apt to be jealous and vindictive. While they do not talk very much, they have fiery tempers and can be rather robust and boisterous in their epithets when aroused to anger. They are essentially carnivorous in the matter of food and love to eat and drink; They are proud and somewhat arrogant to those whom they consider their inferiors, but are generous and free-handed to -their equals and associates.

They are not at all religious, but live from day to day, fully and joyously, with no particular thought for the future. They take their greatest pleasure from being alive and able to satisfy their physical contacts and cravings. At times, as if in eagerness to get away from the common herd, they like to go away alone and stay in solitary places. They are sincere, frank and open in their contacts with other people and do not know the meaning of the word subterfuge. They may marry, but if so will have few or no children, but they prefer an independent career and must be ruler in the household. This does not contribute to happiness in the married state, although these women are affectionate and passionate and as long as they love the partner they will deem "all well lost for love."

MOON IN VIRGO

Women with Moon in Virgo are beautiful in face and figure. - Especially do they possess beautiful tips and eyes. They have • dainty noses set on piquante dainty faces. Their bodies are slender but well proportioned. They usually have dark hair and creamy or dark skin, with flashing eyes. They are happy by nature, but are annoying to other people because of their extreme neatness and punctiliousness, and their habit of attempting to correct carelessness in others. Their homes are models of good taste in decoration and orderliness in appearance and operation. They may be termed fussy by less punctilious standards. They are good conversationalists, sweet and persuasive in speech, intelligent and logical in argument. They are fond of music and the dance, but abhor anything that smacks of vulgarity. Daintiness is their "motif."

They are hard working but get tired easily as their physique and constitution is by no means robust,

While they are fond of reading and the acquisition of knowledge, they are quite skeptical of new ideas, and critical of fads. They possess a quiet confidence in their own beliefs which are the result of investigation and study, and while they do not force these beliefs on others, yet they quietly resist every effort to upset them and usually have sounder and more authoritative premises than their opponents. They are quite attracted to men, and peculiarly enough to married men. They are quite psychic and because of this their behavior may at times seem uncanny or strange. Their physical troubles all originate in wrong diet, and their chief complaint is constipation.

MOON IN LIBRA

Usually these women possess dark magnetic eyes set in dark faces, almost oriental in appearance. Occasionally, however, the conjunction of some other planet will result in a fair complexion, but the shape of the face is always towards the aquiline with long nose, regular features and rather a delicate skin spoiled, quite frequently by skin eruptions or acne. These women have good morals, are romantic, sociable, fond of perfumes and ornaments, yet not particularly careful as to dress, although in all other things they are orderly and neat. They are very impulsive and hasty in thought and action, creatures of emotion rather than reason, affectionate, alluring in speech with low pleasing tones to the voice. While they are careless in attire, they are scrupulously clean in person and orderly in their surroundings. They are somewhat selfish and very secretive.

Since they are agreeable on the surface, even though they may be antagonistic within, they are deemed insincere, although their motives are to avoid offending or hurting other people. They agree to avoid argument and to avoid annoying, but they may think the opposite to that which they profess. These women nearly always marry, and make intelligent and helpful partners.

If they have independent careers, they will usually be found in educational activities as they make good teachers and are philosophically inclined. The kidneys and generative organs are weak, and illness usually results from these sources.

MOON IN SCORPIO

Small figures, usually fat and rather heavy with fair or dark complexions, depending on other planetary aspects, but marked particularly in each case by superfluous hair on the face and body. The body is not well proportioned but is either angular and ungainly or short, plump and irregular. Short necks in each case. These women are arrogant, proud and quite jealous and vindictive. Their morals are loose or altogether bad, and among many other vices, they indulge in drinking to excess. They have plenty of endurance, however, and strong constitutions, and are usually so robust that in spite of their excesses they live to an old age.

They are shrewd to the point of craftiness, and have deep passionate natures capable of conceiving and carrying out any crime of revenge or passion, unless modified by favorable indications elsewhere in the chart. Intrigue is food and life to them, and they are often used as spies. They have little or no tender sentiments, but are rather cold-blooded and heartless. They are extremely proud and arrogant. They have many secret friends and associates, and may become wealthy by various questionable methods. Their diseases are almost always peculiar to the generative organs and to the throat. They are also easily affected by infectious diseases. such as small-pox, chicken-pox, etc.

MOON IN SAGITTARIUS

Small women, somewhat thickset, not fat, but rather with a tendency toward angularity of face and structure. Large foreheads large teeth. The thighs and legs are strong and muscular, but as they grow older, they develop weaknesses in those parts of the body. They are religious by nature, joyous, generous and lovable, always giving a helping hand to others in times of difficulty or trouble. They are ambitious and always have a circle of friends around them who help them along when need arises. They are healthy, partly because they make a fetish of good health and buoyant spirits. They are jolly souls, who hold no grudges but are generous and forgiving to those who hurt them.

They are usually accounted fortunate and successful and they attain these states not only because of their helpful and cooperative dispositions but also because they work conscientiously and joyously. These women love life and get the most out of it. They are artistic in their homes and in their careers if they do not marry. They usually have more sons than daughters, sometimes having all male children. Their mental attitude toward life and its problems seems to keep them sailing joyously through any troubles.

MOON IN CAPRICORN

When these women are quite matured, they are slender to the point of thinness, with long faces, large feet and large, rather bony hands. In childhood, how ever and up to puberty, they are apt to be quite fat or with bulky, ungainly bodies which appear to be fat but which in reality may be partly adult frames in immature bodies. They have long chins and of rather large jaws. The mouth also is made generously. In childhood, also, they are not strong constitutionally, but seem to be prey to most children's diseases, particularly skin diseases and colds, whooping cough, etc. In adult years, they develop rheumatism, arthritis, and similar diseases which affect the bones and joints, especially of the knees. These women are ambitious and usually carve out careers for themselves in business. They are thrifty and may be thought to carry this to the extreme of stinginess. They are active and if they do not marry they will be independent, and be capable of supporting themselves especially during the earlier years of their careers.

They are rather argumentative and have a pedantic, dogmatic manner of stating their views, which is quite annoying to others. They are fond of music and may actually play some musical instrument very well. They are honest and truthful, indeed it is almost impossible for them to lie, and if they try to, the lie is usually quite obvious. They are fond of the opposite sex, but are more apt than not to remain single.

MOON IN AQUARIUS

The women who are born when the Moon occupies the sign Aquarius, are noted for their beauty. In the Hindu legends, they are said to be as beautiful as the Moon. They are gifted and sometimes brilliant, but fickle and at times odd in their behavior. They usually are born into wealthy, or at least well-to-do families, and if they are not, they will acquire wealth and social status by marriage. They are imaginative and inventive, but their knowledge is not acquired from books, but rather is intuitive and inspirational. In fact, they dislike to apply themselves to any educational activity and are apt to fail in examinations at school, and generally the school years seem to be wasted. They love to be idle and seem to be able to absorb or to arrive at a knowledge of things without effort or study. They are somewhat wayward and vain, and at times their actions are exasperating to their friends and associates.

If they can get along without working, they will and usually do. They love the outdoor life and outdoor sports, but as spectators rather than participators. While in the main they are healthy, they suffer from various troubles in connection with the feet and lower limbs, which are slender and weak in comparison with the other parts of the body. As they grow older, the eyesight will become impaired and in old age they are apt to have all sorts of queer, unusual diseases which may baffle diagnosis.

MOON IN PISCES

Recognized by their round, pleasant, affable faces—cheeks which are inclined to be puffy, large liquid eyes, which are very prominent and which may protrude, retroused noses and soft mobile mouths. When they talk or laugh, the gums and teeth are very noticeable. These women are quietly emotional and their eyes will fill with tears at the least provocation. They are dreamy and inactive, easily influenced to a point, but extremely stubborn once their minds are made up. They are sensitive, not only with regard to what they consider affronts to themselves, but also with regard to the feelings of others. They will go to great lengths even to the point of involved and complicated deceptions simply to avoid hurting other people... They are modest, kind, courteous and lovable, soft and good-natured, have somewhat nervous temperaments and are exceedingly romantic. They love poetry and music and their enjoyment of the arts is emotional rather than intellectual.

These women are always ready to help the needy and to sacrifice themselves to those in distress or want. They prefer to give actual services for charitable purposes rather than money and one quite frequently finds them in social service work and allied endeavors, not generally as organizers but as workers. They may be teetotalers if other signs point that way, but many of them are addicted to drinking, in spite of the fact that they are not able to cope with it. They are very seldom found owning wealth or property of their own, which has been acquired by their own direct efforts in a business way. Rather, they are the recipients of gifts, of legacies, of inheritances, and if they have any property, it is because someone to whom they have been of voluntary service has expressed gratitude by bestowing it on them. The health of these women is not robust, but they are capable of enduring quietly, uncomplainingly any ills from which they may suffer.

CHAPTER NINETEEN

THE MOONS PHASES AND THE MOONS NODES

As we have noted in a previous chapter it is a scientific fact that the tides correspond with the phases of the Moon. Why this is so, no scientist has been able to satisfactorily explain, except on the theory of magnetic attraction. But since nobody has yet been able to give a satisfactory ultimate explanation of magnetism which does not define it in terms of results rather than causes, this answer to the parallels which exist between tides and moon phases, still remains incomplete.

So, too, is the mystery of the connection between the phases of the moon and the menstruation periods of the female. That this is a fact nobody denies. But why it is so, is unknown. In Astrology, we merely submit the fact that an infant born at a certain phase of the moon differs in certain characteristics from another infant born at another phase. Why this is so we are unable to say. The fact, however, remains that observation made on thousands of subjects reveal these variations and parallels in character. Each day of the Moon seems to correspond with definite and specific idiosyncracies of character which are peculiar to that day. This fact has been well known for thousands of years in India and can be verified by scientific investigation if anyone considered it worthwhile to make the effort. The complete Moon cycle from Dark of Moon back to Dark of Moon is composed of two main divisions of time as follows :

First— The Shuklapaksh—or period of increasing light, extending from the Dark Moon to the Full Moon.

Second— The Krishnapaksh—or period of decreasing light, extending from the Full Moon back to the Dark Moon.

The first fact, which was noted by the Ancient Star Scientists regarding the Moon phase correspondences was, that those people who were born during the First period were better equipped to get the best out of life than those born during the Second period. Observation will confirm this. The Shuklapaksh people may not be rich or even wealthy, but they seem to know what to do to develop what talents they possess and to enjoy life to the fullest extent, permitted by the station in life to which they are born. They have the power to rise in life through their own efforts. They multiply and increase within their own scope and environment.

On the other hand, those born in the Second period seem to have difficulty adjusting themselves to the world and its requirements. If other indications support this testimony, they may be drifters and in any case there is a tendency to degenerate. Krishnapaksh people who are born in wealthy families quite often die in misery and poverty. It indicates a certain decadence in the family and life of the individual. It was also found that if the birth takes place in the Shuklapaksh period, namely between the new Moon and the Full, the increase in wealth, the rise in life, the fulfillment of ambitions, the growth and expansion of the individual will be more gradual and will, therefore, extend over a longer period of the life span, the closer the date of birth to the New Moon.

As the birth date approaches the Full Moon, how- ever, expansion will come more rapidly in the earlier years, but would tend to slow down or cease in later years. The time of life, when culmination of expansion will be reached, bears a definite ratio to the number of days after the New Moon or before the Full Moon on which the birth takes place. Thus a person born at the New Moon might conceivably be born in a poor and decadent family, yet rise slowly and surely during his lifetime to a position of respect and prominence or even fame. Such increase would probably extend over the entire life until at the time of death he would be in a higher position than at any previous time in his life. Similarly, a person born midway between the New and Full Moon would realize his ambitions at about middle age and might start to degenerate from that time to the close of his life. While an individual born at the Full Moon or a day or two previous to the Full Moon would quite likely be born in a wealthy or distinguished family and start his youth full of promise and talent and opportunity; yet his life would be a record of gradual decadence and poverty, and oblivion might be his fate at the close of life.

What the exact ratio is between the length of the Moon cycle and the life span will not be dealt with here, but that such a ratio does exist was confirmed by the observation of the Hindu Star Scientists thousands of years ago.

Conversely, persons born in the Krishnapaksh period i. e., the period after the Full Moon and before the New Moon, will show a more gradual decadence extending over a longer period of the life span, the closer the birth date is to the Full Moon. As the birth date approaches the New Moon, however, this degeneration, while developing more rapidly will culminate at a more youthful age, and from that point a gradual increase may be expected. An individual born just before the New Moon would be frivolous and vapid in his early years, but would at some time in his youth reach a turning point, from which he would slowly and surely build and multiply. The culmination of his decadence would occur at an early age.

That the growth and expansion of Shuklapaksh people on the one hand, and the decadence and degeneration of Krishnapaksh people on the other, are the result of forces set in motion in some previous life and are for the moment beyond the control of the individual, seems to be the only explanation of the identical correspondences in character which have been found to exist between an individual born a certain number of days after the New Moon and another individual born the same number of days after the Full Moon. One is born in the Shuklapaksh period, the other in the Krishnapaksh, yet they have been found to have similar traits of character. That is to say, a man born, for instance, ten days after the New Moon may have basic characteristics similar to one born ten days after the Full Moon. The chief characteristic of both these men may be that they are both conscientious hard workers, both may be honest, both may have the same ambitions. Yet the Shuklapaksh man will expand and grow, and the Krishnapaksh will degenerate. The explanation of this according to Hindu philosophical concepts is that each is working out the consequence of acts or thoughts in past lives, that these thoughts and acts have set in motion certain forces which must spend themselves until equilibrium is again established.

The specific characteristics which correspond with each day of the Moon cycle are given below. It must be noted that the days are numbered both from the New Moon and the Full Moon since, as has already been stated, the characteristics are identical in each case.

If the Birth Takes Place on :

The day of the New Moon or the Full Moon :

An excellent worker, clean and wholesome in thought, always helping others.

If on the day of the Full Moon, his family are more than likely to be wealthy by the standards of the community in which they live.

Second Day : From the New or Full Moon

Very active, wealthy, and fond of animals ; is the support of his family.

Third Day ' . From the New or Full Moon

A fine character, but one who is somewhat lacking in courage. He is talkative ; has a weak constitution.

Fourth Day : From the New or Full Moon

An ambitious person, who is fond of travelling ; a vital character ; would be good in a medical career.

Fifth Day : From the New or Full Moon

Religious and philosophical yet vital, Has a thin body and is active and nervous.

Sixth Day : From the New or Full Moon

He is intelligent and fond of power ; easily angered ; somewhat delicate and sickly.

Seventh Day : From the New or Full Moon

An executive dominating type ; a big voice. He suffers from colds and coughs.

Eighth Day : From the New or Full Moon

A passionate character, who is fond of the opposite sex ; loves the marriage partner and children. He has a weak backbone and suffers from coughs and colds.

Ninth Day : From the New or Full Moon

A quarrelsome, passionate nature: not domestically inclined but popular and well known socially. Marriage and children are not good for this person.

Tenth Day : From the New or Full Moon

Religious tendencies; one who loves children and the marriage partner ; talkative.

Eleventh Day : From the New or Full Moon

A wealthy person ; has servants and gets much pleasure through them and through his subordinates.

Twelfth Day : From the New or Full Moon

Is intelligent and has a clean and wholesome nature ; is charitable, and fond of study and writing. He is usually wealthy.

Thirteenth Day : From the New or Full Moon

A vital avaricious and grasping nature; usually wealthy: may be a money lender.

Fourteenth Day : From the New or Full Moon

Hot-tempered and passionate ; is fond of the opposite sex ; enjoys the society of wealthy people and benefits through them.

Note : The fourteenth day is divided into six periods, each with a certain characteristic as follows :

- (1) From 6 a. m. to 10 a. m. :
Success from his own efforts.
- (2) From 10 a.m. to 2p.m. •:
Father's death in childhood,
- (3) From 2 p. m. to 6p.m. :
Mother's death in childhood.
- (4) From 6 p. m. to 10 p. m. :
Death of a maternal relative in childhood.
- (5) From 10 p. m. to 2a.m.:
Death of brothers or sisters in childhood.
- (6) From 2 a. m. to 6 a. m. :
The man himself may die in childhood.

THE MOON'S NODES

The path of the Moon around the earth intersects the Ecliptic at two points. These points are imaginary and are known as the Moon's Nodes. The ancients called the north intersection the Dragon's Head and the southern intersection was known as the Dragon's Tail. Today they are known as the North Node and South Node of the Moon. In Hindu terminology, the Moon's North Node is called Rahu and the South Node is known as Ketu.

The position of these points (which only exist as a mathematical concept) in the birth chart of an individual, correspond with certain traits of character, but more important still, they correspond with hereditary peculiarities and seem to link the individual to the family. The relationship of Rahu and Ketu to the family and the individual and the manner in which this relationship affects the destiny of the individual involves certain philosophical concepts which naturally will be met in some quarters with ridicule and skepticism. Nevertheless, we shall touch on them briefly here, since an elementary understanding of the functions of Rahu and Ketu is necessary before the reader will be able to use the information regarding the Planetary Periods given in the ensuing chapters.

And the Sins of the Fathers shall be visited on the children, even unto the third or fourth generation."

No better aphorism could be devised to describe the significance of Rahu (The Dragon's Head) than the foregoing quotation from the Christian Bible. For hidden in that quotation is a truth which will be apparent to anyone, who, like the ancient Hindu sages, has observed the wheel of destiny turn through generation after feneration and has noted the part which Rahu plays in linking the family destiny to that of the individual.

Rahu and Ketu (The Dragon's Head and the Dragon's Tail) and the legends concerning these imaginary points of intersection between the path of the Moon and the path of the Earth in their journey around the Sun, form the subject matter of any volumes of the ancient Hindu texts' on Astrology. For the significance of these two points in the life chart of the individual is considered to be one of the most important factors in determining the past, present and future destiny of that individual. Moreover, the terms—past, present and future—as far as Rahu and Ketu are concerned, do not apply only to the short span of time which elapses between the birth and death of the individual, but include that period of time which embraces his past lives, and the lives and actions of his family ancestors, as well as this life and its effect on future destiny.

In the Hindu philosophical system, in which Astrology has its roots, this short span of life, whose problems seem beyond our ability to solve, is but a small section of our entire destiny and the chief value of Astrology lies in its use in determining the relationship which this life bears to the whole.

Only after this knowledge has been vouchsafed to us, are we in a position to weigh the results of our past actions and to analyze the possible outcome of present action. We can then exert the power of our free will to liberate ourselves from the chain of circumstances, caused by these past actions, this chain which binds us to the wheel of life and oppresses us often to the point of desperation. Rahu and Ketu are keys to one of the many locks which must be opened, before we can stand face to face with our destiny and see it in its entirety.

Destiny is the result of eight kinds of action :

- (1) One's own actions—(The key to which is Saturn.)

- (2) The accumulated Family action through the generations—(The key to which is Rahu.)
- (3) The action of the Mother—(The key to which is the Moon.)
- (4) The action of the Father—(The key to which is the Sun.)
- (5) The action of the Wife or Husband—(The key to which is Venus.)
- (6) The action of the Children—(The key to which is Jupiter.)
- (7) The environment or actions of outside relationships—(The key to which is Mercury.)
- (8) The accumulated force inherent in the home or house in which one lives and which is the result of past actions of others within its walls—(The key to which is Mars.)

Rahu then is the key to that part of one's destiny, which is the result of accumulated family action through several generations and indicates the hereditary trends for bad or good, which culminate in the present individual. Through a knowledge of Rahu's significance in his life Chart, the individual, therefore, is enabled to overcome or throw off those hereditary handicaps which tend to shackle him, and to capitalize on those which will assist him to achieve the destiny which he desires, provided he exerts his will power in an intelligent manner toward that end. Conscious evolution takes the place of blind obedience to fate and from that moment the man starts to climb the ladder which finally leads him to his rightful place among the Gods.

The Hindu mythological story of Rahu is amusing and interesting, and at the same time instructive. To quote from one of the ancient books.

"I remote antiquity the gods and demons together constructed a churn. The body of the churn was a huge mountain (MANDAR) and the handle of the churn was VASUKI, the largest snake in the universe. With this contrivance they started to churn the ocean and out of the ocean they churned first fourteen beautiful jewels of unsurpassed lustre. After the jewels had been admired and distributed, the gods and demons continued the churning of the ocean until finally a stream of nectar came flowing out.

"Thereupon a dispute arose between the gods and the demons as to who should have the nectar to drink. To settle the dispute Lord Vishnu was asked to arbitrate and he appeared on the scene disguised as a beautiful damsel, MCHINI. She persuaded the gods and demons to sit in line, in alternate order, first a god and then a demon and to allow her to portion out the nectar to each in equal amounts. Unknown to the assembled gods and demons, however, she filled two jars, one with nectar, the other with wine. As she passed down the line she gave the nectar to the gods and the wine to the demons.

"Among the demons was Rahu, who sensed that all was not as it should be. He was seated between the Moon and the Sun, both of whom of course were Gods. As Mohini approached him, he disguised himself as a God and drank deeply from the jar of nectar. Moon and Sun, however, saw through his disguise and made a secret sign to Lord Vishnu, who immediately threw his wheel (SUDARSHAN) at Rahu's throat and cut off his head.

"The Head, thus severed by the Wheel of Vishnu, became immortal, and from that day to this the enmity of Rahu towards the Sun and Moon, who had exposed his fraud, is a well known Astrological and Astronomical fact Every year ne afflicts the upper part of the body of the Moon and the lower part of the body of the Sun and this affliction occurs every time the Sun and Moon come near him. This is evidenced by what we now know as the eclipses of the Sun and Moon. When he afflicts the Sun and Moon in this manner, it naturally has an effect on human affairs and that is why the period of an eclipse is so disastrous to many people on the earth."

So goes the myth, but it serves to illustrate the truth of what the Acharyas through many years of observation discovered—that Rahu is important in human destiny and his position and aspects in the Life Chart are of paramount significance.

Rahu in the Ascending House : The native, who has Rahu in the first house is usually of short stature—dark complexion and has a habit of looking down while walking—careful, a deep thinker and even in temper —a strong character, dependable and stable, if Rahu be well aspected or placed as to Sign.

If on the other hand, Rahu is in the first house badly aspected or placed as to Sign, the native is sickly but arrogant ; very talkative, with a somewhat quarrelsome disposition. He has loose morals ; does not believe in religion and is always involved in romantic and some what shady love affairs ; he is even apt to make money for himself or others out of his affairs and connections with the opposite sex. He is lazy, deceitful, careless and very selfish. He is improvident and is always borrowing money from his relatives and friends. If he is wealthy, to start with, he will dissipate his wealth and finally come to ruin. At the age of five, he is in danger from an accident and throughout his life he will suffer from frequent headaches and has little chance of survival to old age. If he marries, he will get very little happiness from the partner and will have very few if any children.

Whether or not Rahu is well placed or favorably aspected, all people with Rahu in the first house should be extremely careful during the period of Rahu, since at that time unexpected difficulties will be encountered ; strange and unexpected things will occur ; and many mistakes and errors will be made, which will be regretted afterwards. The theory of Planetary Periods will be explained in a subsequent chapter and the events which are likely to occur during the Period of Rahu are enumerated later.

The mere position of Rahu in the first house will result in the characteristics outlined above, but naturally the Sign in which Rahu is found in the first house will mitigate or intensify these conditions.

If Rahu in the first house be placed in Aries, Leo or Sagittarius from zero to fifteen degrees, then the native will be stubborn, persistent, proud, and his actions are likely to result, at times in his life, in the open enmity of his associates and friends. In g eral, however, Rahu in Aries in the first, imparts a frank and generous disposition. If in Leo, the native is social minded, honorable, and endeavors to live a clean and wholesome life. He is usually wealthy or becomes so. If in Sagittarius, he will be wicked, cruel, fond of wild and reckless deeds, morally loose, and scornful and intolerant towards his associates—extremely selfish.

If Rahu in the first house be placed in Cancer, Virgo, Capricorn or Pisces, the native will be a fault-finder; full of foolish pride ; will have many secret enemies because of his attitude and actions. These enemies will pose as friends and lead him to his undoing ; quite often making him an enemy of society even to the extent of his becoming a thief, a robber or a gangster.

If Rahu in the first house be in Taurus or Scorpio, the native will be unreliable in money matters ; unfaithful in married life. In Taurus, Cancer, Virgo or Scorpio, the native will be dramatic in his actions and gestures and a good talker ; such people become popular on the stage or screen, if they play the part of villains. They will either have a stepfather or step-mother or will have been adopted early in life.

The best signs for Rahu in the Ascending House are Aries, Taurus or Cancer. If Rahu is in Aries, the native will be taller than in any of the other signs. Rahu in the signs Aries, Taurus, Cancer, Gemini and Scorpio will tend to lengthen the life somewhat.

Again the difference between Hindu Astrology and the Western systems is apparent. In the Western system the Dragon's Head (RAHU) is considered to be the most fortunate wherever placed. The Dragon's Tail, or opposite point, is considered to be unfortunate. The reverse has been found to be true by ancient Hindu Astrologers. Rahu corresponds to the culmination of past sins committed within the family and now working themselves out on the individual, whose destiny is linked with the family, on the other hand, Ketu is the means through which this family curse or destiny can be altered, by intelligent constructive effort, backed by the will of the native and directed again into sane and wholesome channels, after the past Karma has been worked out in the pattern of destiny. Ketu is the bal.ancing power and as such is more or less constructive although perhaps unpleasant in its effects. In Ketu lies the promise for the future generations of the fam-ily.

For the purposes of this book, no further description of Ketu will be given. A whole volume could be written on Ketu alone and will be at some future date.

CHAPTER TWENTY

GENERAL THEORY OF THE PLANETARY PERIODS

The Aphorisms given in the foregoing chapters, apply to correspondences between the characteristics of individuals born at a given time and:

A—The particular Asterism or section of Asterism located at a point near and above the horizon at that time.

B—The Planet or Planets, if any, which were found to be situated within the boundaries of that Rising Asterism.

C—The Zodiacal Sign occupied by the Moon at that time.

Now we shall show how, by the use of Planetary Periods, it is possible to predict in a general way the conditions which are likely to surround an individual at various periods of his life. We can judge, too, by studying his character which we have already sketched, how he is likely to behave in the face of those conditions. Predictions made on the basis of Planetary Periods are only general in character, however, and must be checked and modified by the findings of the Progressed Chart. But for the purposes of this book, we shall not need to go into the detailed predictions of the Progressed Chart and it will be sufficient to outline the general conditions which will prevail in each of the Planetary Periods.

The normal span of life for all persons born in the Shuklapaksh, or between New Moon and Full Moon, should be 120 years. That of persons born in the Krishnapaksh, between Full Moon and New Moon, should be 108 years. It was not at all extraordinary for men and women in ancient civilizations to live longer than this normal span, but the nervous tension and toxic poisons which are the concomitants of modern civilization have cut down the normal span of life considerably.*

This normal span, of 120 years for Shuklapaksh people and of 108 years for Krishnapaksh individuals, is used to divide the entire life into periods, and the Theory of the Planetary Periods is that the conditions which seems to correspond with each Planet will appear in the life of each individual in a certain definite sequence and for a certain duration, depending on the Planet whose correspondences are in evidence at that time. Table 5 shows how the 120 year period is divided. This is called the Vimshotari Table and is to be used for all persons born between the New Moon and the Full. Table 6 called the Ashtotari Table, shows the division of a life span of 108 years, which is to be used for persons born between the Full Moon and the New Moon; i. e., during ~~the~~ waning period of the Moon.

The first step in the use of the Planetary Period Tables is to determine exactly in what period the birth took place and how many years, months, days and hours of that period had elapsed at the time of birth. Here, a philosophical concept plays a part, since the very fact that the birth time is to be placed at a point in the Planetary Periods presupposes that the event of birth is but a point or intersection in what is really a continuous existence in time. In passing, one might suggest that in this theory is contained the only satisfactory answer to the question as to why all men are not born equal.

The point of birth, therefore, must be fixed mathematically in relation to the Planetary Periods. The key in the determination of this point or intersection, is the exact position of the Moon in the Asterism Map at the time of birth.

In order to determine this exact position of the Moon in the Asterism Map, for the purposes of fixing the Planetary Period in which birth occurs, it is necessary to apply a slightly different Ayanaunsh correction to that given as an example in Chapter Four. This correction is to be used only when dealing with Planetary Periods and not for determining the true position of the Moon in the Fixed Zodiac. It is to be used instead of the regular Ayanaunsh correction, not in addition to it.

AYANAUNSH CORRECTION FOR THE MOON FOR PLANETARY PERIODS ONLY

1. From the year under consideration subtract 578.
2. Multiply the result by 50.1. This result will be in seconds.
3. Convert these seconds into degrees and minutes. This is the Ayanaunsh correction for planetary Periods.
4. Subtract this correction from the position of the Moon in the Movable Zodiac as given in the West- ern Ephemeris for the time, day and place of birth.

Example

Let us suppose that the year is 1933:

1. From 1933 subtract 578, result=1355.
3. Convert these seconds to degrees and minutes, result=18°-51'.
4. This must be subtracted from the Moon's position in the Movable zodiac, as given in the Ephemeris for the day of birth after, of course, the Ephemeris position has already been corrected to the time and place of birth. (See Chapter Four.)

We shall take it for granted, for the sake of example that the Moon position as given in the Western Ephemeris on the day. of birth has first been corrected to the exact time and place of birth. (See Chapter Four.) Instead of making the Ayanaunsh correction of 19°-38' shown in Chapter Three, we shall for the purposes of determining the point of birth in the Planetary Periods, use the Ayanaunsh correction of 18°-51' for the year 1933. We shall further suppose that after all these corrections have been made, the Moon is found to be in:

Cancer 16:25*

We next consult the Asterism Map (Figure 2) where we find that 16:25 Cancer is in the Asterism Pushya. The Moon at birth therefore is in Pushya Asterism. Now if the birth had taken place between the New Moon and the Full, we must find the Asterism Pushya in the Vimshotori Table (Table 5.) Consulting this table, we find that Pushya is in the Saturn Period. Therefore, this birth occurred during the Saturn Period.

This is a hypothetical case and not the particular example used in Chapter Four.

But the Saturn Period is divided into three parts. The first part is 6 years 4 months in Pushya—the second part is 6 years 4 months in Anuradha—and the third part is 6 years 4 months in Uttarabhadrapada.

Further, since the Asterism-Pushya extends from 3:20 Cancer to 16:40 Cancer, the Moon being in 16:25 Cancer is really almost out of the Pushya Asterism, so that most of the 6 years 4 months of the Pushya Asterism have already passed at the time of birth. How much, is a matter of simple proportion, thus:—

Total span of Pushya=13°-20'

Span Moon has travelled:—

16:25—3:20 Cancer=13°-05'

Reducing both to minutes, we have:—

$\frac{262}{266}$ of 76 months = 74 months 26 days.

Therefore, of the first 6 years 4 months of the Saturn period, almost 6 years 3 months have already passed at the time of birth. The native, therefore, has one month of this period to live, plus 6 years 4 months of Anuradha, plus 6 years 4 months of Uttarabhadrapada. He will, therefore, live in the Saturn period until he is twelve years nine months old, at which time he will enter the Mercury period.

From then it is a matter of simple addition to find at which ages he passes from one period to another, since the planets follow each other in the rotation given in the table, the Sun following Venus and starting a new cycle in an endless wheel.

If the birth had taken place during the waning light of the Moon, in the Krishnapaksh, we would have had to find the Asterism Pushya in the Ashtotari Table (Table 6.) There we find it in the Sun Period. The Sun Period lasts six years altogether and these six years are divided between Ardra, Punarvasu, Pushya and Ashlesha, $1\frac{1}{2}$ years in each. The entire span of Pushya then lasts $1\frac{1}{2}$ years, and thus we again have a problem in simple proportion, using the same ratio as before of the Asterism Pushya:

$$\frac{262}{266} \text{ of 18 months} = 17 \text{ month 22 day}$$

Therefore, of the 18 months of Pushya, 17 months and 22 days have already elapsed at the time of birth. This leaves approximately 8 days, still to pass before Pushya is completed, and another $1\frac{1}{2}$ years of Ashlesha still remains to complete the Sun Period. The child will therefore be 1 year 6 months 8 days in the Sun Period and at that age he will enter the Moon Period. For 15 years, he will be in the Moon Period before he enters the 8 year Period of Mars, and so on. By the process of addition, after having obtained the exact point at which the birth occurred, we can find out what Planetary Period is current in the life Of any individual if his age be known and if the position of the Moon at the exact time of his birth be also known.

During any given Planetary Period, the individual will be confronted with and will have to live through whatever conditions and correspondences are peculiar to the Planet of that Period. These conditions and correspondences will depend on five factors:—

1. The Sign of the Zodiac occupied by the Planet at birth.

2. The Sign of the Zodiac occupied by that Planet in the Progressed Chart.
3. The House occupied by that Planet in the Chart of Birth.
4. The House occupied by that Planet in the Progressed Chart,
5. The Aspects which other Planets are making to that Planet at Birth and in the Progressed Chart.

Since we do not intend in this book to discuss the Progressed Chart, or the Houses of a Birth Chart, or the Aspects or Angles between the Planets, the delineations of the Planetary Periods which follow are very general in character and apply only to the sign of the Zodiac in which the Planet in question is placed at birth. For detailed predictions, each of the five factors mentioned above must be balanced with great skill, and these methods will be described in later books.

Prediction is a fine art, and requires great skill and a thorough knowledge of Astrology. It is a moot question whether in so far as the average individual is concerned, prediction of possible future events is not really harmful. It is this writer's opinion that although predictions can be made accurately, it is neither advisable or safe to disclose the future conditions which will confront the average individual. To live through certain conditions philosophically and to mold adverse circumstances to our own wills, is within the power of so few of us, that little good can come by being forewarned. At any rate, this has been this writer's experience.

Prediction by means of Planetary Periods used in conjunction with the Progressed Chart can be made with amazing accuracy by an Astrologers who is really skilled. Each Main Planetary Period given in the Vimshotari and Ashtotari Tables may be and should be subdivided and still further divided until it becomes possible to give almost the exact time of a given future condition. The Main divisions are called Dashas. Each Dasha may be divided into Antardashas, these in turn may be divided into Vidashas. The Vidashas may be divided again into Cuksmdashas and the final divisions of the Cuksmdashas are the Pranadashas. Prana is the Sanskrit word for breath and the elapsed time of a Pranadasha is little more than a moment.

As an example, let us take the Period of Rahu in the Vimshotari Table. This Main Period of Dasha lasts 18 years. But during these eighteen years, the life will not be the same for every year. Rahu conditions will be paramount, but there will be certain hills and valleys, so to speak, or variations in these conditions, and these will be marked by the Antardashas or subdivisions of the main period. To get the subdivisions or Antardashas of the Main Period of any Planet, we divide the period of that Planet among the other Planets in proportion to the periods for each Planet in the Main Table. For example in the Vimshotari Table, the Period of Rahu is 18 years. For 18 years, therefore, conditions will surround the individual which will correspond to all that Rahu signifies in his charts, both in the birth chart and in the Progressed Chart. But that period of eighteen years will have shorter periods of intensification or modification of the general trend. The 18 years, therefore, is broken up into smaller periods which will be in proportion to the Main Periods of each of the other Planets.

The first Antardasha or sub-period of Rahu will be a combination of Rahu and Rahu or an intensification of Rahu correspondences. The second Antardasha of Rahu will be a combination of Rahu and Jupiter. The third, a combination of Rahu and Saturn. The fourth, a combination of Rahu and Mercury and so on. The time duration of each of these combinations will bear the same ratio to the 18 year span as the combination Planet does to the 120 year span. Thus :—

Rahu & Rahu	—	$\frac{18}{120}$ of 18=2	years	—	8	months	—	12	days
Rahu & Jupiter	—	$\frac{16}{120}$ of 18=2	"	—	4	"	—	24	"
Rahu & Saturn		$\frac{19}{120}$ of 18=2	"	—	10	"	—	6	"
Rahu & Mercury	—	$\frac{17}{120}$ of 18=2	"	—	6	"	—	18	"
Rahu & Ketu	—	$\frac{7}{120}$ of 18=1	"	—	0	"	—	18	"
Rahu & Venus	—	$\frac{20}{120}$ of 18=3	"	—	0	"	—	0	"
Rahu & Sun	—	$\frac{6}{120}$ of 18=0	"	—	10	"	—	24	"
Rahu & Moon	—	$\frac{10}{120}$ of 18=1	"	—	6	"	—	0	"
Rahu & Mars	—	$\frac{7}{120}$ of 18=1	"	—	0	"	—	18	"
Total		18	"	0	"	0	"	0	"

The table given above shows the duration of each of the Antardashas or subdivisions of the Main Period of Rahu. Table 7 gives the duration of the Antardashas for all the Planets in the Vimshotari span. Table 8 shows the duration of the Antardashas of all the Planets in the Ashtotari span. For the purposes of general prediction and to remain within the scope of this book, the Antardasha Tables are sufficient to illustrate the system of subdivision of Planetary Periods.

For greater refinement, however, and in order to make predictions to the day and hour and minute, further subdivisions—the Vidasha, Cuksmdasha and Pranadasha may be used. The Vidashas would be obtained by taking each of the Antardashas and dividing them in the same proportion.

For example, let us take the Rahu-Venus Antardasha of Rahu. Consulting Table 7, we find the duration of the Antardasha to be 3 years out of the total of 18 years of the Main period of Rahu. These 3 years would be divided in sequence as follow :—

$$1. \text{ Rahu-Venus-Venus } \frac{20}{120} \text{ of 3 years.}$$

$$2. \text{ Rahu Venus-Sun } \frac{6}{120} \text{ of 3 years.}$$

$$3. \text{ Rahu-Venus-Moon } \frac{10}{120} \text{ of 3 years.}$$ and so on through the complete cycle, the 3 year period being a Venus subperiod of Rahu, and therefore subject to the proportionate division starting with Venus. In this way, we get the duration of the Vidashas. By subdividing each Vidasha in the same proportion, we get the duration of each Cuksmdasha and by further dividing each Cuksmdasha in like proportion we finally get the duration of each Pranadasha or Breath Period. These refinements, however, are beyond the scope of this book and we mention them only in passing to illustrate the extreme accuracy of the ancient systems.

The delineations for the Planetary Periods which follow are for the Dashas only. In later books, delineations will be given for Planetary Periods according to the House position of each Planet, but since the technique of constructing a birth chart with all its houses can not be given at this time, the definitions of Planetary Periods must necessarily be confined to the Zodiacal Sign in which each Planet is found at birth.

CHAPTER TWENTY-ONE

THE MAIN PERIOD OF THE MOON AND ITS CORRESPONDENCES

According to the Zodiacal Sign the Moon occupies at birth, the following conditions and problems will confront the individual at that time of his life, which corresponds with the Main Period of the Moon. We have already shown in the preceding chapter that for those individuals born during the increasing light of the Moon, the duration of the Main Period of the Moon during the life is 10 years. While for individuals born during the decreasing light of the Moon, the Main Period of the Moon lasts 15 years. Therefore, during those years, the general conditions surrounding the individual will depend on the sign in which the Moon is placed at birth, as follows :*

IF THE MOON BE IN ARIES AT BIRTH

A period of journeys and travels, long and short. Visits to foreign countries or many trips within the confines of his own country. Also a period of thought along religious paths, with contacts with people connected with some religious movement or activity.

IF THE MOON BE IN TA URUS AT BIRTH

A fortunate period all around. One in which the individual should be active and push forward, since enterprises started or completed during this period will be generally successful. By making the most of opportunities and contacts during this period, the individual could rise in whatever station of life he may be situated, and should reach a position of authority and responsibility. The purchases of automobiles or other vehicles of transportation are likely to be made during this period.

*Be sure to first make the Ayaraunsh Correction for the position of the Planet in the Fixed Zodiac.

IF THE MOON BE IN GEMINI AT BIRTH

A period of social contacts, talking, writing, exchange of ideas. If sufficiently educated, the person may write articles, books, or give lectures. He may come in contact with publishers or writers or be instrumental in signing contracts. Generally, this period will be marked by literary and educational activities.

IF THE MOON BE IN CANCER AT BIRTH

If the Moon be in Cancer at birth, the main period of the Moon will be marked by a tendency toward domesticity. The individual will live in a place which is either very rocky or is surrounded by mountains, or high ground and trees. He will have domestic animals around him according to his means and he will spend more money on animals than he will at any other time in his life. There is some danger during this period of contracting a secret disease and every care should be taken to avoid contagion.

IF THE MOON BE IN LEO AT BIRTH

Not a good period for the health of the individual. Sickness is likely to be a serious handicap to general welfare and must be avoided by extra care and precautic 1 if possible, since otherwise this period pre-Sents opportunities for progress, especially financially, Business affairs will prosper and promotion in position, increase in trade, or success in a professional career will be found to come easily and with little effort. The individual will receive the respect and admiration of his associates.

IF THE MOON BE IN VIRGO AT BIRTH

If the individual is not yet married, he is very likely to marry during this period. If he is already married, he will be unfaithful to his marriage partner, and be in serious danger of separation from her. His spirits are high during this period, and he chafes at the bonds of domesticity. He will be rather fortunate at this period if his affairs take him to foreign countries, but although he will make money, he is likely not to save it.

IF THE MOON BE IN LIBRA AT BIRTH

He lives in hopes during this period, seeming not to be able to complete anything, or to be continually frustrated in everything he undertakes. Association with the opposite sex may take on the color of intrigue and unless he is particularly cautious will lead to open scandal. He is liable to find himself the victim of some racket which uses a woman as a decoy, and may have to pay blackmail in the form of coin or services which are unworthy. Keep to the straight and narrow path is the best advice to those living in this period.

IF THE MOON BE IN SCORPIO AT BIRTH

A particularly unfortunate period, during which the cards seem stacked against the person with Moon in Scorpio at birth. He will be far from happy during this period. He will be discontented, continually worried over finances, and may become very bitter and disgruntled with the world and the people in it. He will become estranged from his relatives and may be separated entirely from his family, He may experience poverty at certain times during this period. Unless he is particularly careful of his diet for some years prior to the beginning of this period, a functional disorder of the stomach may assert itself at this time, and it may become so aggravated that an operation will be found necessary.

IF THE MOON BE IN SAGITTARIUS AT BIRTH

During this period the individual must not expect to benefit from the voluntary deeds of others. His friends will not help him financially, not because they do not wish to, but rather because they are unable to do so. Expected legacies or bequests from family or relatives will not materialize, in fact may be lost entirely. However, this is a period of vitality and through his own determined efforts the individual can and usually will attract to himself the good things of life. If he makes this effort, his finances will be considerably improved.

IF THE MOON BE IN CAPRICORN AT BIRTH

A period of growth and productivity, increase in all departments of life. If up to this time the individual has no children, he will have an addition to the family of one or more children, either of his own or through adoption. He will add to his wealth. He will purchase real estate and generally accumulate possessions, become a man of substance in relation to his community and environment.

IF THE MOON BE IN AQUARIUS AT BIRTH

A period of feckless expenditure. The individual is prone to spend much more than he earns and will have great difficulty in paying his debts. A close curb should be kept on these tendencies and a person entering this period should carefully budget his expenses and live within his income. The urge towards hard reckless living and towards dissipation of his resources—not only his money but his health as well—is strong and can only be held in check by an exertion of will power.

IF THE MOON BE IN PISCES AT BIRTH

From a health standpoint, this period may be almost tragic. The individual will be a source of worry and anxiety to his family at that time. Many individuals with Moon in Pisces at birth, during the Moon period, contract spinal meningitis or infantile paralysis, and unless great care is taken, there is difficulty in recovering. The chances of contracting this disease and of recovery from it, will depend in large measure, on the aspects which other planets make to the Moon. They may either aggravate or modify what seems to be inherent in the conditions which confront the individual during this period.

Special Note :-

It must be fully understood by the reader, that the conditions given for each of the planetary main periods are general conditions, prevalent throughout the duration of the period, but that since each period is divided into subperiods of Antardashas, there will be an ebb and flow to these conditions or a direct contradiction of them for certain shorter intervals during the main period. Such modifications or contradictions will depend for their quality and intensity upon the relationship which exists in the birth chart, between the Planet whose main period we are considering and the Planet which affects the subperiod. If, for instance, Moon and Mars were in bad aspect at birth, the Moon being afflicted by Mars, then even though on the whole the Main Period of the Moon was a fortunate one, yet for the duration of the Mars subperiod (which is seven months out of the 10 years of the Moon period in the Vimshotari divisions, and one year, one month and ten days out of the 15 year Moon period of the Ashtotari divisions) there would be present some very- adverse conditions which might seem to contradict or at least seriously modify the fortunate influences of the Main Period. The reverse would, of course, be true if the subperiod under consideration were that of a Planet in good aspect to the Planet of the Main Period. This note is important enough to be read at the close of each of the ensuing chapters.

CHAPTER TWENTY-TWO
THE MAIN PERIOD OF
THE SUN
AND ITS CORRESPONDENCES

Duration of Period—6 years.

The conditions with which an individual will be surrounded during the Sun Period of his life will vary with the Zodiacal Sign in which the Sun is located at birth. Thus :—

IF THE SUN BE IN ARIES AT BIRTH

He may not be particularly religious at any previous time of life, but during the Sun Period he will turn towards religion and take up some religious activity. During this period also, either by inheritance or by gift, he will receive from his father, money, real estate, houses or some permanent and substantial bequest. It will be a period of contentment and happiness in domestic life and affairs.

The Sun Period will be a time of loss ; loss of money, property, possessions ; loss of wife and children ; loss of position and standing in the community. During this period also, he will be rather run down in health and particularly will he suffer from some heart disease or functional disorder of the heart.

IF THE SUN BE IN GEMINI AT BIRTH

During the Sun Period, he will take to reading intensively, particularly poetical and mystical books. He will study mysticism and be interested in occult subjects. He will have many discussions about these matters. He will take up farming, may purchase a farm and will cultivate produce, which he will use for his 'own' requirements, but not for trade or as a business.

IF THE SUN BE IN CANCER AT BIRTH

The Sun Period will be marked by jealousy and possibly some enmity on the part of people whom he considers to be his friends. This will be caused by his promotion to a position of authority and responsibility, possibly over the heads of friends and associates or in competition with them. He is apt, during this period, to become somewhat more nervous and excitable than usual and should strive to overcome this tendency and to remain calm in all situations. If a man, he will have much contact with women at this time, at home, in a social way and in business. If a woman, she may marry during this period or have an affair.

IF THE SUN BE IN LEO AT BIRTH

A period of desire for quiet and solitude. An urge to live in the country rather than in the city will be manifest ; a longing for remote places. If the individual purchases a farm or takes up farming as a means of livelihood or as a business during the Sun Period, he will be very successful in this pursuit.

IF THE SUN BE IN VIRGO AT BIRTH

The Sun period will be one of contentment and happiness, especially in domestic life. The individual will enjoy his home and its surroundings. He will make contact with neighbours and friends, and particularly with older people who will like and respect him and be of assistance to him. He will be surrounded by pets and domestic animals.

IF THE SUN BE IN LIBRA AT BIRTH

The reverse of the Virgo Sun is experienced during the Sun Period of those people who had their Sun in Libra at birth. It is a period of loss—loss of position—loss of wealth—and this loss is experienced through the deceit and envy of so-called friends. Friends, instead of being helpful and beneficial during this period, will undermine and try to destroy. There is also danger from some injury or accident, particularly from burns.

IF THE SUN BE IN SCORPIO AT BIRTH

Not a good period. There will be separation from the parents to whom the individual is greatly attached. He will grieve on account of this, because the separation will be permanent and may be caused by death. Also, he must be extremely careful of infection during this period, particularly from that which comes from wounds inflicted by sharp instruments. There is more danger from poisoning and from fire during this period than at any other time during life.

IF THE SUN BE IN SA GITTARIUS AT BIRTH

Financially especially, this is a very good period. All financial ventures seem to prosper. Money is made either by investment or by increase in earnings. Position is improved—promotion is received. Responsibility and authority are also increased. The individual will be comfortable and well-off and will take pleasure in musical and cultural development. Will attend the opera and concerts and his tastes in this direction will improve and expand. A period of quiet and dignified pleasure and happiness.

IF THE SUN BE IN CAPRICORN AT BIRTH

Everything seems to go wrong during this period. Activity will be restricted, possibly enforced idleness will be encountered. Loss of position and money. He may even experience poverty and lack of proper food and the necessities of life. Added to these physical restrictions, his mind is anxious and worried and he is most unhappy and miserable, particularly as he is almost wholly dependent on others during these years.

IF THE SUN BE IN AQUARIUS AT BIRTH

A time of quarrels and disputes, litigation and argument during which, unless helped by other conditions, the individual will seldom be victorious. His enemies will take this opportunity to embarrass him and it would be better if any issues at stake could be postponed rather than joined. -Even in his domestic relationships there will be disagreements and misunderstandings, sometimes actual opposition and antagonism. As if these conditions were not sufficient, he also will suffer from some heat complaint which will be aggravated by outbursts of temper and the general tension of mind and body produced by the continual bickering which marks this period.

IF THE SUN BE IN PISCES AT BIRTH

The health will be the chief concern of this individual during the Sun period of his life. He will suffer from a general rundown condition due to principally to gastric disorders. These may become so acute as to require a stomach operation or treatment for ulcers. Diet and health should be watched carefully before this period starts and some effort made several years previous to improve and tone the system. Otherwise, 'As ye sow, thus shall ye reap.'

CHAPTER TWENTY-THREE
THE MAIN PERIOD OF MARS
AND ITS CORRESPONDENCES

Duration of Period—Vimshotari—7 years

Duration of Period—Ashtotari—8 years

The conditions surrounding the individual during the Mars Period of his life will vary according to the Zodiacal Sign in which Mars is found at birth as follows :

IF MARS BE IN A RIES AT BIRTH

This period will be marked by the occurrence of a rather serious accident to the individual. An accident in which his head will be injured and on account of which he may be confined to his bed for several months, depending in which part of the Mars Period the accident occurs. In business he will be very successful. He will be aggressive and dominating and because of his efforts and industry he should rise during this period to a position of responsibility and authority.

IF MARS BE IN TAURUS AT BIRTH

The individual seems to undergo a sort reformation. He may not have been a bad character up to this time, but yet his religious instincts and feelings seem to undergo a stimulation during these years. His life begins to be colored by religious thoughts and concepts and he becomes actively engaged in some religious activity. This may or may not be orthodox in the strict sense of the word but at least it will conform with the pattern of many of those around him.

IF MARS BE IN GEMINI AT BIRTH

The Mars period will be a very active one, crowded with change and a variety of events. There will be many short trips and journeys by land. There will be on the part of the individual an avid longing to see new things, to acquire knowledge of current events. He will study and his mind will be very actively engaged on many subjects. He will develop the artistic side of his nature. He will be extravagant with money and will spend all he earns and more. During this period, there will be some disagreement with his family, particularly his father, and they may quarrel and separate for a time.

IF MARS BE IN CANCER AT BIRTH

If any inharmonious conditions formerly existed in the home and domestic life of the individual, they will come to a crisis during this period of his life. If none existed previously, then this period will be marked by disturbances in his home, quarrels with his wife, and family, leading eventually to separation from them. Probably as a sort of a natidote or relief from these domestic troubles, he becomes interested in flower gardens or orchards, and is likely to be found pruning his trees while his wife is scolding inside.

IF MARS BE IN LEO AT BIRTH

Also a period of separation from the family and children, not so much as a result of disputes or quarrels but rather from the fact that during this period the individual is busy with all sorts of outside interest. He may go in for politics, but at any rate will be found leading or organizing some community or civic organization which makes many demands on his time and effort. He will be more or less a public figure within his own community. He should be careful at this time of falls as the results of a bad fall are apt to be serious. Also, he will be more than ordinarily susceptible to accident as the result of fire.

IF MARS BE IN VIRGO AT BIRTH

A time for thought and study. The individual during this period takes stock of himself, subject himself more than usual to rigid self-analysis. He checks up on his habits and behaviour and while not being sanctimonious or prudish he is meticulous in his actions and is prone to think carefully before embarking on any course of action. He will study philosophy and comparative religion and order his life accordingly. He is apt to be a crank on food, will enjoy cooking himself, and will develop the taste of an epicure, being at the same time extremely careful not to over-indulge. He will be interested in and may at this time carefully observe the effect of diet on the mental states.

IF MARS BE IN LIBRA AT BIRTH

If up to this time, the individual has remained a bachelor he will be almost sure to marry during this period, unless other indications in the chart are against his doing so. At any rate, he will think a lot of being married and will become engaged or may have an affair. If he is unemployed and is seeking a position, now is the time to leave no stone unturned because he will have less trouble during this period. In fact, many offers may come to him at this time. He must, how—ever, take care of his health during this period as his resistance to disease will be much lower than usual.

IF MARS BE IN SCORPIO AT BIRTH

The purchase of land, particularly farm land, will be the most important feature of this period. If the individual takes up farming at this time, he will be most successful, not only supporting himself from the produce, but also becoming well known by reason of the excellence of his farm products. As a business it will thrive and bring eventual independence.

IF MARS BE IN SAGITTARIUS AT BIRTH

Not a good period for lawsuits, litigations or disputes of any kind, but the individual is likely to be faced with these conditions nevertheless. He will be involved particularly with family affairs and his relatives will be against him. He will live in a large family and there will be very little in his life at this time which does not bring family matters to the forefront.

IF MARS BE IN CAPRICORN AT BIRTH

The Mars period will be a most fortunate one. All matters will prosper. A most opportune period in which to embark on new enterprises, change positions, apply for promotion. If there is any litigation, this is the time to press for a decision. Law suits will be successfully conducted, disputes will be amicably settled and profitably. A very happy and fortunate period.

IF MARS BE IN AQUARIUS AT BIRTH

A period during which the individual seems to be extravagantly reckless in everything he does. His extravagances quickly get him into debt and he seems to lose all sense of responsibility. He will borrow money, knowing it is quite impossible for him to return it, and indeed with no intention quite often of ever repaying it. His domestic life is very unsettled and happy in consequence, and throughout this period his actions are careless and thoughtless.

IF MARS BE IN PISCES AT BIRTH

High living and extravagance mark this period. The individual will indulge to excess in all the good things of life. Desire for children, which seems to be paramount, will be thwarted through the disability of the marriage partner or of the individual himself. Disappointment in this regard may be the underlying cause of his indulgence. There will be much travel in foreign countries. The result of over-indulgence in things to eat and drink is chronic skin affections such as hives, acne, pimples, eczema.

CHAPTER TWENTY-FOUR

THE MAIN PERIOD OF

MERCURY

AND ITS CORRESPONDENCES

Duration of Period—Vimshotari—17 years

Duration of Period—Ashto tari—17 years

The conditions surrounding the individual during the Mercury Period of his life will vary according to the Zodial Sign in which Mercury is found at his birth as follows:—

IF MERCURY BE IN ARIES AT BIRTH

A most unsettled and improvident period. There will be many changes of residence and of work. The individual, if an employee, will change his position often; if he has his own business, he will change from one type of business to another. It is a period of speculation and gambling. Everything is a gamble at this His losses, however, will more than offset his gains. At times he will need money so badly that he will be tempted to steal it. He is obliged to resort to lying and deceit in order to live.

IF MERCURY BE IN TAURUS AT BIRTH

A period of waste and extravagance. The individual, on account of his utter lack of ideas regarding the value of money, will become a source of worry and anxiety to his family and friends. His parents will help him financially from time to time, but he will waste the money they give him on all sorts of foolish enterprises. His wife and children will suffer privation because of his recklessness.

IF MERCURY BE IN GEMINI AT BIRTH

The Mercury period will be on the whole a very happy one. The only incident of any importance during this period will be caused by a misunderstanding between the individual and his mother. This misunderstanding may develop into a dispute over money matters. If married, his domestic life will be pleasant and happy during this period. He will read a lot and take many short trips.

IF MERCURY BE IN CANCER AT BIRTH

The chief feature of this period will be a change of residence to foreign countries. The entire period will be spent away from the land of birth. Not just a question of travel, but rather of domicile. The native is quite likely to earn his living during this period by writing, more particularly the writing of poetry or of poetical or fanciful prose. His viewpoint on world affairs will be broadened and his attitude towards his fellow men will be humanitarian and universal.

IF MERCURY BE IN LEO AT BIRTH

Naturally the native with this position of Mercury will be courageous and will possess outstanding ability. This ability and courage will be called into play during this period and he will surmount great obstacles and rise to a position of power and influence. He will be come widely known and respected in public life. However, his domestic life will be anything but happy and will not afford him a particularly pleasant background for his public activities.

IF MERCURY BE IN VIRGO AT BIRTH

This period will be one of esthetic and cultural development. The individual will have a wide circle of artistic acquaintances and will himself probably earn his living by artistic pursuits or writing. His cultural attainments will increase at this time to such an extent that, within the limitations of his chart and in proportion to the testimonies of other planets, he may become known as an author or poet. It is a good period and even his enemies will grudgingly grant him his due.

IF MERCURY BE IN LIBRA AT BIRTH

This will not be a good period on the whole. The health will be poor and there will be a tendency to lose weight. The individual may embark on some sort of designing career either in textiles, decorating or architecture, being drawn to these, however, because of lack of definite purpose or vision of his life's work rather than from any marked aptitude, and as a result he will be unsuccessful.

IF MERCURY BE IN SCORPIO AT BIRTH

A marked natural tendency towards extravagance becomes apparently uncontrollable during the Mercury period. Reckless, foolish and selfish expenditures succeed eventually in estranging the individual from his family and relatives.

IF MERCURY BE IN SAGITTARIUS AT BIRTH

A period of extravagance and loss of money. The individual seems to find it impossible to accumulate. He spends as fast as he earns. Investments turn out poorly. Speculations are disastrous. He will live alone, away from his family and relatives. Not a good period.

IF MERCURY BE IN CAPRICORN AT BIRTH

Continued travel and many short journeys mark this period. One trip after another is taken, chiefly by land. During this period the native comes in contact with people who are his inferiors. He cultivates the society of those with whom he is aware of his own superiority. He succumbs to flattery. In company with these associates, he schemes against his employers and those who are in authority over him. He spends money foolishly in an endeavor to show off to those who flatter him.

IF MERCURY BE IN AQUARIUS AT BIRTH

Loss of money—loss of position—loss of belongings—changes of residence—in all a period of retrogression, a period of decadence. He will seek help from his friends who will deceive and mislead him. He will suffer from the treachery of those who seem to be closest to him. An unhappy period.

IF MERCURY BE IN PISCES AT BIRTH

A period of loss through illness. The health will be impaired; some ailment will become chronic. The individual will take to his bed and his illness will be costly. Doctors and hospital bills will take his earnings and his capital. He may have to remain in an institution for a long period even extending into the next period, or permanently, depending on other testimony.

CHAPTER TWENTY-FIVE
THE MAINPERIOD OF JUPITER
AND ITS CORRESPONDENCES

Duration of Period—Vimshotari—16 years

Duration of Period—Ashtotari—19 years

The particular- Zodiacal Sign occupied by Jupiter at birth of an individual determines the nature of the conditions and probable events which will occur in the life of the individual, during the Jupiter period. The correspondences are as follows :—

IF JUPITER BE IN ARIES AT BIRTH

If the individual has not previously married, he will be almost sure to marry during this period. Further, the chances are greatly in favor of his marrying into a wealthy family. If he is already married, his wife will present him with a son. He will become prominent in business or professional affairs, within his own circle and environment. His name will appear in society columns and possibly in some social register.

IF JUPITER BE IN TA URUS AT BIRTH

A successful but not a happy period. There will be a considerable amount of travel—long and short journeys in foreign countries. The individual will carve out a career for himself away from his native land. He will acquire a reputation for daring and initiative. He will make money and accumulate wealth in proportion to his capabilities. However, any romance in his life will be disappointing and he will be unhappy, either because of this, or because of estrangement from someone he loves.

IF JUPITER BE IN GEMINI AT BIRTH

A very unhappy period, particularly in domestic life. He will become estranged from his wife, incur the enmity of relatives and lose his friends. At some time during the period, he is quite likely to take a leading part in some religious activity and in any event will attend church regularly and seek solace in religion.

IF JUPITER BE IN CANCER AT BIRTH

This period will be marked by general improvement in living conditions. It will be a period of prosperity, promotion, gain in wealth, gain in power, honor and respect, in proportion to the circumstances and abilities of the individual.

IF JUPITER BE IN LEO AT BIRTH

Also a most fortunate period. The native will rise to a position of responsibility and authority. He will have many employees who will look up to him and respect him. Respect will be mixed with a certain amount of awe. He will become wealthy, but will be known and liked for his generosity to those less fortunate than himself. All the forces for good in the individual will be paramount at that time.

IF JUPITER BE IN VIRGO AT BIRTH

The Jupiter period will be one to remember and look back to, because of the happiness, contentment and general welfare which mark this period. The domestic life will be pleasant and enjoyable. The position in the community will become more secure than at any other period in the life. The business will thrive and the affairs prosper. The family will be happy and contented. Only one unpleasant factor mars this period. The individual becomes stricter and sterner to his inferiors and subordinates and from time to time there will be open dissension among them.

IF JUPITER BE IN LIBRA AT BIRTH

The period of Jupiter will be indeed a calamitous one. It is a period of rained hopes, of thwarted desires, of sterile effort. Everything seems to go wrong. No undertaking is successful. Investments fail. Jobs or positions are lost ;—apparently through the stupid and careless actions of the individual. His brain seems to be sluggish and impotent, his actions without constructive purpose. He cannot provide for his wife and children and actually incurs their enmity on account of his foolish and exasperating actions. Decidedly a poor period.

IF JUPITER BE IN SCORPIO AT BIRTH

The individual will develop a natural bent towards outdoor sports and military activities. He will have a wide circle of friends among sportsmen and army men. He may join some civilian army corps or, if other testimony supports, take up the army as a career. At any rate, he will shoot, hunt, or ride to hounds and play polo, join athletic clubs or sport associations. He will own dogs and horses and have many animals about him. His health will be superb and he will be bubbling over with animal spirits and enthusiasm.

IF JUPITER BE IN SAGITTARIUS AT BIRTH

The native is naturally philosophical and religious. During this period he will most likely be found teaching philosophy or religious subjects as a professor or lecturer. He will acquire a reputation as a scholar and authority on philosophy and comparative religion, and may make translations of philosophical and religious books, or write essays or poems on these subjects. During this period, more than ever in his life, he will be most punctilious and careful in his thoughts and actions and will weigh everything carefully. He will love animals and will have dogs and horses. A period during which he will regard his past life and actions, and place them in their true perspective weighing them against present and future events.

IF IUPITER BE IN CAPRICORN AT BIRTH

The Jupiter period will be a most difficult one. The family life may be broken up and changed through death—at least the individual will become separated from his family. Functional disorder of the system will occur. Indigestion and constipation will make his life miserable and may finally result in an operation. There will also be some trouble in the genital or reproductive organs. Money matters will go from bad to worse, and the native is likely to experience actual poverty during this period.

IF JUPITER BE IN AQUARIUS AT BIRTH

The period will be marked by a great deal of writing and correspondence. The mind will be clearer, the intellect keener, than at any time of the life. The artistic sensibilities will be sharpened. This individual may find himself writing criticisms of art, painting, or sculpture. He will be very analytical ; discriminating yet appreciative. He may acquire the reputation of being an expert in such matters and will certainly write with authority. His work will bring him in closer contact with women than formerly, and he will benefit from and enjoy these associations. May be a critic with some art magazine.

IF JUPITER BE IN PISCES AT BIRTH

Although this position of Jupiter usually corresponds with the service type of person—domestics, chauffeurs, minor clerks and employees of every type of service—during the Jupiter period such a person is likely to become wealthy as a result of past application and endeavor. At any rate, there will be rapid promotion during this period and an accumulation of wealth and belongings. He will achieve success beyond his apparent capabilities or station in life and command the respect and admiration of his superiors because he will be a self made man.

CHAPTER TWENTY-SIX

THE MAIN PERIOD OF

VENUS

AND ITS CORRESPONDENCES

Duration of Period—Vimshotari—20 years

Duration of Period—Ashtotari—21 years

The particular Zodiacal Sign occupied by Venus at the birth of any individual seems to determine the nature of the conditions and probable events, which will occur in the life of the individual during the Venus period. The correspondences are as follows :—

IF VENUS BE IN ARIES AT BIRTH

A very changeable and crowded period. A kaleidoscope of events, a variety of experiences will be encountered. There will be many short trips and journeys, chiefly by land. The individual will live a varied existence, almost a nomadic one. He will Certainly change from one occupation to another, from one location to another. He will reside in many cities and many homes. There will be no fixed idea. His mind apparently will lack purpose and any concentrated goal. He will be fickle and independable, and as a result will have many ups and downs, but in spite of this, he will manage to exist, even comfortably at times.

IF VENUS BE IN TA URUS AT BIRTH

A mellow period of study and philosophical contemplation. The individual becomes intensely interested in occultism and mystical philosophies. His home life is hanpy and contented. He makes much of domestic pets and animals and has a home full of cats, dogs, canaries and other domestic pets. He may even breed and train dogs. Out of his abundance or what seems to be abundance to him, he gives generously to charity. Children born to his wife during this period will be all girls.

IF VENUS BE IN GEMINI AT BIRTH

This person is a writer of romantic and historical novels, which are founded on fact. During this period, he will complete his novels and publish them. If he has not yet written any, he will start work on magazine stories or books and will be successful in selling them. His works will become popular. His attitude towards life and its problems will be one of cheerful optimism and he will succeed in passing this feeling on to others. On account of this, he will be popular.

IF VENUS BE IN CANCER AT BIRTH

A period of varied experience and education. The individual will travel by land, taking many short and long journeys. While his occupations may change fre-quently, it will be of his own volition and each change will be for the better because his work will always be well, and conscientiously done. Any enterprise he undertakes will be carefully worked out and successfully accomplished.

IF VENUS BE IN LEO AT BIRTH

The individual will have much to do with members of the opposite sex during this period. If a man, he man have a woman employer or receive money in some legitimate manner from women, or gain through them.

He will have many women friends and may benefit through their influence or friendship in some manner. During this period he must exert more caution than ordinarily to protect himself from animal bites, as he is open to infection from this source and may accidentally receive a bite while ministering to a sick animal.

IF VENUS BE IN VIRGO AT BIRTH

The less said about this period, the better. A good time to go fishing if the individual can afford it, since no undertaking for profit or gain will be successful, except through superhuman effort and caution. Hopes and wishes go unfulfilled and well laid plans turn out to be mere "castles in the air."

IF VENUS BE IN LIBRA AT BIRTH

No matter what the previous occupation may be, the individual will be likely to follow a strong urge to purchase a farm, plantation or ranch. If he yields to this urge, he will make money through it and may actually become wealthy, particularly if the product be white in color such as milk or cotton.

IF VENUS BE IN SCORPIO AT BIRTH

A period of settlement of past debts. The individual will count up his obligations and liquidate them. He will also try to be helpful to others, but must guard against a short temper during this period which might upset the good he is trying to do. During this period, he will have many changes of residence.

IF VENUS BE IN SAGITTARIUS AT BIRTH

A period of increase and of profit. The native will rise in the world. He will increase his earnings and add to his wealth and belongings. His position will increase in influence and power. He will be in authority. To do this, however, he will have many obstacles to overcome. He will have many opponents and enemies, but he will overcome them all successfully.

IF VENUS BE IN CAPRICORN AT BIRTH

outside of his home, he will be successful. Disputes and lawsuits in business will be settled profitably for the individual during this period. The home life will not be happy, however, and he will have many worries and anxieties in his domestic relationships.

IF VENUS BE IN AQUARIUS AT BIRTH

The individual will be interested in and collect antiques during this period. His home will be full of antique furniture and ornaments, and they will be artistically arranged. He will take pleasure in showing them to his friends and in relating the history of each piece. He will become a student of occult and mystical lore and eventually become an authority of these subjects.

IF VENUS BE IN PISCES AT BIRTH

The Venus period will be happy and successful. During this period, all enterprises and undertakings should be pushed to completion as they will be successful if completed within that time. The individual will rise to a position of honor and possibly fame in his own community and everything will prosper for him.

CHAPTER TWENTY-SEVEN

THE MAIN PERIOD OF

SATURN

AND ITS CORRESPONDENCES

Duration Of Period—Vimshotari—19 years.

Duration Of Period—Ashtotari—10 years.

The conditions surrounding the individual during the Saturn period of his life will vary according to the Zodiacal Sign occupied by Saturn at birth as follows:—

IF SATURN BE IN ARIES AT BIRTH

The Saturn period will be one of great concern over the health. There will be a general weakening of the constitution and the individual will be more than ordinarily subject to various diseases. Those most common will be diseases caused by an impure condition of the blood. Boils, skin eruptions and other such manifestations will be the obvious results.

IF SATURN BE IN TAURUS AT BIRTH

These people are very intelligent. They have the faculty of seeing clearly and of grasping not only the essentials, but the details of any problem. During the Saturn period, they will be much occupied with matters of finance, particularly as applied to land and property. Legal disputes regarding such matters should be pressed during this period as they will be successful and profitable.

IF SATURN BE IN GEMINI AT BIRTH

Not a good position for Saturn. The period will be marked by a tendency on the part of the individual to associate with shady and irresponsible characters. He may even stoop to theft or at least the procuring of money dishonestly. If ordinarily the correspondences with other planets in his chart are conducive to good traits of character, during this period he becomes a kleptomaniac. His romantic nature may lead him into shady and undesirable associations with the opposite sex and if the other planets in his chart seem to strengthen the testimony, he may even be involved in white slavery or profit from the business of prostitution.

IF SATURN BE IN CANCER AT BIRTH

A period of happiness and contentment, especially in domestic and home life. The individual will be surrounded by friends whom he likes and who are fond of him and will be of assistance to him. He must be more than ordinarily careful of his health during this period however, and particularly he must guard against undue eye-strain, since he will have trouble with his eyes, his right eye especially.

IF SATURN BE IN LEO AT BIRTH

The Saturn period will be a time of quarrels and strife. Domestic life will be upset and unhappy. There is every indication of a quarrel with the marriage partner which may lead to separation. The children also are quite likely to be separated from him. A toxic condition in the system will cause bad headaches which come so often they seem to be chronic.

IF SATURN BE IN VIRGO AT BIRTH

During the period of Saturn, he will come in contact with financial men and problems. These problems will not be of a personal nature but rather pertinent to whatever business he may be in. During the entire period, he will deal with money and finances. May be employed in a brokerage or banking house.

IF SATURN BE IN LIBRA AT BIRTH

An excellent position for Saturn. During the Saturn period, the individual will be most fortunate. Everything he touches will turn to gold. He will make a great deal of money. He may even purchase gold during this period. He will buy and sell jewelry and precious stones at a profit. He will invest in gems and keep them on his person and in his home and safety deposit boxes in preference to actual cash in the bank.

IF SATURN BE IN SCORPIO AT BIRTH

A very bad period. The individual will become more headstrong and reckless than he usually is. His vindictive nature will be uppermost and his actions will finally lead to his consorting with criminals. He may himself commit crimes. From one act to another, he will sink lower and lower. Toward the end of the period, unless the testimony of other planetary correspondences are strongly contradictory, he will be found in the lowest strata of humanity. He will become a tramp and wander from place to place.

IF SATURN BE IN SAGITTARIUS AT BIRTH

The individual who has Saturn in this position at birth, is a man of action, a fighter who glories if the odds are against him. This period for him will be a happy one. He will succeed in his enterprises. He

IF SATURN BE IN CAPRICORN AT BIRTH

A period of work—hard work. Although he is conscientious, this individual is far from being brilliant. Everything he gains he has to work very hard for, and even more so during the Saturn period of his life. This person is inordinately fond of the opposite sex. During this period his ideas with regard to sex relationships undergo a change. He is quite apt to be found in the company of androgynes and he manifests abnormal tendencies in this direction. He must be careful during this period about taking others into his confidence regarding his finances or to have any financial dealings with anyone, unless he is fully protected against fraud, as money may be lost through the treachery of some associate.

IF SATURN BE IN AQUARIUS AT BIRTH

During the Saturn period, the individual will realize a wish he has always had to buy or build his own home. He will plan for it and finally purchase and build it to his desires. He will own his own property. He will enjoy a happy domestic and home life. The period is on the whole tranquil and uneventful and the building of the home is the high peak of existence at that time.

IF SATURN BE IN PISCES AT BIRTH

The individual will gradually become absorbed in municipal or community affairs. He will take part in the government or administration of the municipality, possibly occupy a position on the city council. become an alderman or mayor of his city. At any rate, he will attain some degree of prominence in the public affairs pertaining to his immediate environment.

CHAPTER TWENTY-EIGHT

THE MAIN PERIOD OF RAHU

AND ITS CORRESPONDENCES

Duration of Period—Vimshotari—18 years.

Duration of Period—Ashtotari—12 years.

Unlike the periods of the Planets, the importance of the Zodiacal Sign in which Rahu is found at birth is overshadowed by the importance of the House in which he is placed. This book has not dealt with Houses, therefore it was thought advisable not to describe the events and conditions corresponding to the House position of each planet in the Birth Chart during that Planet's period. Many readers of this book, however, will understand what the House position means, and since the House positions of Rahu and of Ketu are far more important than the Sign positions, we shall give an outline of the events and conditions peculiar to the Rahu and Ketu periods in terms of House as well as Sign positions.

However to those who are accustomed to the Western method of computing House cusps, we have this to say again, that in Hindu Astrology the beginning of each House is a point halfway between the cusp of the House and the cusp of the preceding House, while the end of each House is a point halfway between the cusp of the House and the cusp of the succeeding House. This is most important when determining the House positions of any planet or the House positions of any significant points in the heavens such as Rahu and Ketu.

RAHU IN THE ZODIACAL SIGNS

The period of Rahu is not a fortunate one unless in the native's birth chart it is extremely well placed. The period is a painful and a troublesome one. It is usually accompanied by poverty and disease. The morals become loose and this condition may result in actions, which may have serious consequences, even to the extent that the native may commit a crime during this period, if Rahu be badly placed or aspected.

Usually the first part of the period is favorable or at least not as unfortunate as the latter part, in which many tragic events are likely to occur. The native while associating with honorable and respected people, who like him and are very well disposed towards him, still becomes entangled in all sorts of trouble and his high hopes fall to ruin. Imprisonment, poisoning, enforced travel in foreign countries may occur during this period and it is very important to note the position of Rahu in the birth chart as to house, sign and aspect, particularly its relationship with the Sun and the Moon.

Rahu, however, is exalted in the sign Taurus and if he be found there, all the bad effects will be mitigated to a great extent.

If Rahu be in Taurus or Cancer in the life chart, then when the native is going through Rahu's period, conditions will be greatly improved—there will be a gain in wealth—opportunities will present themselves through which the education will be broadened—there will be some promotion or honor in the business or profession —if not married, the native will marry—his servants taor subordinates will be honest and loyal and the native will enjoy good health throughout this period.

If Rahu be in Pisces, Virgo or Sagittarius in the life chart, that also is good during Rahu's period providing it is not placed badly as to house or badly aspected. If it is favorably placed in house position and well aspected, its position in Pisces, Virgo or Sagittarius will give a male child and some rise in position—gain through death of brother.

If however, Rahu be in Sagittarius or Virgo, badly placed as to house or badly aspected, then conditions will be extremely bad. There will be a loss of health and family ; the occupation will be a dangerous one ; there will be much deceit and treachery on the part of enemies. The native may suffer injury from gangsters or be one himself ; he will have to work very hard to make an honest living, at times not having enough to eat or having to subsist on food of very bad quality, He will of necessity be forced to do menial work ; his health will be had and he will suffer from some venereal disease, asthma, tuberculosis or disorder of the glands. His marriage partner will cause him trouble and he will have bad children.

If Rahu is found in the Asterisms Kritika, Uttara or Uttarashada in the birth chart, such position will intensify the bad effects of the Rahu period.

In the following table is shown the relative general effects of the Signs, where Rahu is found :—

Exalted Sign	Good	Bad	Very Bad
Taurus	Scorpio	Aries	Sagittarius
	Pisces	Gemi ni
	Capricorn	Virgo
	Cancer	Libra, Leo
		Aquarius

RAHU IN THE HOUSES
IF RA HUBE IN THE FIRST HO USE AT BIRTH

During this period the native will be in danger from poisoning, from fire and from wounds inflicted by sharp instruments, which will leave a permanent scar on the head or face. He will suffer the loss of a brother and be unsuccessful in any disputes. If in Taurus, Cancer, Leo, Virgo, Scorpio, Capricorn or Pisces, then because of his ambition he will undertake responsibilities and work beyond his power to achieve. He will dream a lot and will behave entirely differently in his public life than in his private life and although he will be very intelligent, people will judge him either as crazy or a fool. If Rahu be in Aries, Gemini, Libra, Sagittarius or Aquarius then he will always be busy snooping into the secrets and vices of other people and will himself be subject to many vices and mixed up in many scandals.

IF RAHU BE IN THE SECOND HO USE AT BIRTH

A period of loss of money and honor. Will suffer from eating bad food, will find himself in a subordinate position to people who ordinarily would be his inferiors; will be easily excited and be subject to unstable emotions. If favourably placed he will work hard in business and will suddenly have some unexpected wealth or promotion but in the end will not be successful. He may gain unexpectedly through the discovery of some old records and at the end of the period will inherit the wealth of some friend or close relative. In spite of this he will always be short of money. If Rahu be unfavorably placed then the native will suffer poverty, family disgrace, disputes with relatives which may result in lawsuits, which he will not win; the partner will die or be separated from him ; he will either starve or exist on very poor food and will become more and more careless and slovenly in his work.

IF RAHU BE IN THE THIRD HOUSE AT BIRTH

This is a good position for Rahu and during this period the native will gain in wealth and position through his relatives. If he has no children he will have children ; he will take up farming and gain through it ; he will prosper from association with people of high standing. If Rahu be in a fixed sign then he will remain in one place, if it be in a movable sign there will be much travel by land unless the sign be a water sign, in which case there will be ocean travel to foreign countries. There will be death or separation from brothers and sisters. If the Rahu period comes in old age, there will be happiness from the children but if in middle age or youth, although there will be children some of them will die during this period.

IF RAHU BE IN THE FOURTH HOUSE AT BIRTH

There will be separation from the mother either by her death or by the death of the native himself during this period ; there will be loss of property and position ; much trouble through the marriage partner ; danger of injury from fire ; will suffer loss through theft ; may be imprisoned falsely ; may suffer a nervous breakdown due to mental worries ; there will be sickness among the children; the native may leave his family and live in seclusion ; he will lose respect for his partner and change his views of religion or discard it entirely.

IF RAHU BE IN THE FIFTH HOUSE AT BIRTH

Loss of memory ; will have difficulty in getting food ; if Rahu is in a favorable sign then this period may be very fortunate. In that case, the native will work for social and public welfare and will become famous in this connection; he will speak publicly and become well known through his writings on the subject of public welfare but while he will be popular in public, he will have very little domestic happiness. If Rahu be in an unfavorable sign, there will be no male children and therefore if one should be born, it will not survive. It will simply mean unnecessary trouble to the partner ; there will be much friction between husband and wife and one will be deserted ; the marriage partner is likely to be very sickly and conditions during this period will be so bad that the native is likely to lose his mind or at least become somewhat crazy and eccentric.

IF RAHU BE IN THE SIXTH HOUSE AT BIRTH

Danger from theft and fire and loss of relatives ; some disease-to the secret parts of the body ; venereal and skin diseases; tuberculosis or disease of the glands. If it be favorably placed, then with hard work will achieve success, although it will be an uphill struggle. In order to earn sufficient money, he may find it necessary to fight in public. If in an unfavorable sign, then there will be much opposition from the brothers and relatives and a public scandal will ensue from it ; there will be strange disease difficult to diagnose or cure ; the mind will gradually be forced away from a materialistic life to a spiritual life.

IF RAHU BE IN SEVENTH HOUSE AT BIRTH

Loss of the marriage partner ; death of the son ; loss of property ; danger of injury and infection from the bite of an insect. If in a favorable sign, the partner will not die but there will be much sickness ; many changes of business and much travel on business, particularly in foreign countries. If unfavorably aspected, there will be loss of health and wealth through a love affair and if the chart is that of a female there will be likelihood of an abortion ; the native may become a pauper ; will be greatly in debt and will be in danger of imprisonment.

IF RAHU BE IN THE EIGHTH HOUSE AT BIRTH

Death of the native or death of the son of the native --danger from robbery and fire and from injury inflicted by criminals. If favorably aspected may suddenly have a tremendous gain in wealth. This may happen through a bad aspect also, in which case, the wealth will come through a robbery or a hold-up, the native himself being a gangster or robber. In this case the native will strike terror into the hearts of people who will be afraid of him. He will try to become happy in domestic life but will be unsuccessful. If Rahu is unfavorably placed, the native will suffer from an incurable disease or become an incorrigible criminal, always vicious and bad in thought and deed.

IF RAHU BE IN THE NINTH HOUSE AT BIRTH

The death of the father or mother--separation from brothers and sisters and family--travel in foreign countries--will live near the sea or on the side of a river. If in a favorable sign will have a good education, will become well known and influential, will live luxuriously and in the most up-to-date modern manner and if in a watery sign, will travel much by water and visit and live in important places. If in an unfavorable sign, will wander from place to place, will become a tramp, utterly without ideals--will associate with people of very low type and have love affairs of a very sordid character--will suffer scandal and disgrace and if any children are born, they will not survive— will have very dreadful and strange dreams.

IF RAHU BE IN THE TENTH HOUSE AT BIRTH

Very religious ; fond of reading spiritual books ; bibles and sacred literature ; is an ardent church-goer ; charitable ; pure ideals ; clean life. When unfavorable, however, quite the reverse ; will have such disgrace that he will have to use a false name and there will be much trouble from the marriage partner and the children. However, Rahu is favorably placed in the 10th, and if well aspected and in a good sign the wealth will increase and the position improved during this period, and if the period comes in old age, the native will give his money to charity and become famous before his death. •

IF RAHU BE IN THE ELEVENTH HOUSE AT BIRTH

Will rise in position and gain respect of his associates and friends ; if not married, he will marry ; he will accumulate wealth ; he will get much help and happiness from relatives and friends ; he will be fond of pets and animals and will have more male children than female. If in an. unfavorable sign he will spend his money on speculation and he will constantly be in search of sudden wealth through the races, lotteries, games of chance, but will be unsuccessful.

IF RAHU BE IN THE TWELFTH HOUSE AT BIRTH

Will suffer from some mental weakness ; nervousness ; will be separated from or lose the partner and children ; will suffer dishonor and lose land and property ; his eyesight will be affected and there will be some injury to the feet—he will be very much attracted to—wards spiritual life and will study philosophy and psychology. He is subject to deportation from one country to another and will live in a country other than his place of birth—he will always have heavy debts until very late in life.

CHAPTER TWENTY-NINE

THE MAIN PERIOD OF

KETU

AND ITS CORRESPONDENCES

Duration of Period—Vimshotari—7 years

Does not occur in Ashtotari Lives

In the Planetary Periods Rahu is more powerful than Ketu. Ketu's positions in the Signs are unimportant but his position in the houses will indicate the following events during his period :—

IF KETU BE IN THE FIRST HOUSE AT BIRTH

A bad position. During this period, the native will suffer from fears and anxieties. There will be some feverish illness as the result of an epidemic ; an accident through machinery or some vehicle, such as an automobile, train or airplane ; worry in connection with the opposite sex may be experienced.

IF KETU BE IN THE SECOND HOUSE AT BIRTH

At this time he will become a cynic, harsh in speech and rather hard-hearted because of loss of money, sorrow and friction in the family ; bankruptcy and loss of credit in business will be his lot ; will suffer from some face disease.

IF KETU BE IN THE THIRD HOUSE AT BIRTH

On the whole during this period the native will be happy ; however, there will be disputes and quarrels with the brothers and unhappiness over the death of or separation from the mother ; because of these troubles he will rely much on occult sciences, philosophy, etc., and have many dreams which will help him.

IF KETU BE IN THE FOURTH HOUSE AT BIRTH

Many calamities and little happiness will mark this period ; separation from the partner and children ; trouble and sorrow from the father and from friends; many disappointments and failures, often accompanied by disgrace ; the house or home will be lost or burnt down.

IF KETU BE IN THE FIFTH HOUSE AT BIRTH

He will encounter loss of children through death or separation ; loss of position ; constant worries ; financial losses ; will have to work hard, probably as a laborer ; he may have a mistress during this period and have children by her ; he will be subordinate to other people and will be always in trouble because of this ; may have some stomach trouble resulting in an operation.

IF KETU BE IN THE SIXTH HOUSE AT BIRTH

During this period, the native will undergo the most serious illness of his life, but except for this he will be healthy. He will be respected by his friends and associates and will have many friends among religious people; he may become wealthy, but will not get along with his maternal relatives.

IF KETU BE IN THE SEVENTH HOUSE AT BIRTH

The partner will die during this period or be separated from the native. He will suffer from urinary complaints and some disease of the generative organs ; he will encounter many obstacles to his career and will lose money because of the rivalry and competition of enemies.

IF KETU BE IN THE EIGHTH HO USE AT BIRTH

The fathers's death is indicated during this period; the native, himself, will suffer from coughs, and may contract tuberculosis; he will be the cause of trouble and anxiety to the partner and may be associated with or work for men of unscrupulous character.

IF KETU BE IN THE NINTH HOUSE ATBIRTH

This period will be marked by many troubles and difficulties on account of the father; leading to business failure. He will do work for the state or for the community in a semi-political field; he will be most persistent and will carry his plans through to the end; he will be charitable and generous but will suffer from some anxiety about the children and wife.

IF KETU BE IN THE TENTH HOUSE AT BIRTH

During this period he will be found in the company of disreputable characters; will himself be a laborer or work with his hands on some menial occupation; he will have disputes with the father and with his employer, but towards the end of the period is likely, after a great straggle, to become a popular leader; will suffer from gastric complaints.

IF KETU BE IN THE ELEVENTH HOUSE AT BIRTH

An enjoyable and luxurious existence will be experienced. He must, however, be on guard at this time against infection; during this period the native will be happy and have poetic aspirations.

IF KETU BE IN THE TWELFTH HOUSE ATBIRTH

During this period there will be much travelling; many changes of residence; no steady position or profession; constant change; the native will be very extravagant; he may become famous and be featured in the newspapers; he will make money and be very fortunate without doing much work; he will dress well and with rich materials.

CHAPTER THIRTY

ASTROLOGY AND CONSCIOUS EVOLUTION

In the foregoing chapters, we have tried to be as elementary as the subject permits, in our explanations of the rationale of Astrological Science. Our object has been threefold.

First, we desired to make clear to the layman some of the fundamentals of Astrology, and to disperse once and for all, the idea that Astrology is merely another system of fortune telling, another so-called occult or mystical method of divination or one of the many forms of necromancy based on superstitious belief.

Second, we wished to open up to serious students of Astrology in Western countries, an astrological vista, which stretches considerably further back into ancient civilizations, than they had perhaps supposed to be the case. To such students it must be quite evident that there are wide gaps in our knowledge of the Science, which are not capable of being filled by the fragmentary records still extant, of Egyptian, Persian, or Greek contributions to the subject. The knowledge that in India may be found a record of Astrological Science, which is ; continuous and anything but fragmentary, and that this information is available to those, who will take the trouble to search for it, must in itself be welcome tidings to such students.

Third, we have hoped, although not without a great deal of misgiving, that some interest might be aroused in those scientific circles, which today are not confining their research efforts to mere measurements of space and time. To these, the idea of correspondences between earthly phenomena, both physical and psychological, and what might be termed, astral mechanics, may be found worthy of closer and more scientific examination. Hitherto such scientific examination has not been vouchsafed to those systems or theories of Astrology, which seek to find in the planets and stars, the direct cause of these phenomena and perhaps rightly so. Correspondences may at least be observed and tabulated, without conjecture as to the reasons for their existence and such observation and tabulation would at least confirm or disprove the findings of the ancient star scientists.

We have merely opened the door, so to speak, to the archives which contain the history and development of this vast Science, which embraces all other so-called sciences. In this book we have examined briefly two factors and only one of the maps, which are used to chart the heavens at the exact time of the birth of an individual. There are many other factors which must be considered. These must all be weighed and balanced in order to determine:

1. The characteristics inherent in the individual at birth.
2. The conditions which are likely to surround him at various periods of his life.
3. The manner in which he is likely to react to these conditions.

The two factors we have examined are :

1. The Rising Point at the time of birth.

2. The Zodiacal Sign occupied by the Moon at Birth.

We have given the correspondences which seem to exist at any given moment of time, between these two factors and certain definite traits of character possessed by all individuals born at that moment. These traits of character are mere outlines which can be filled in only after an exhaustive study of many other points in the heavens at birth and a balancing of all the factors, which enter into the relationships between these points. Some of the other factors which must be taken into consideration in this balancing process are given below:—

THE PLANETS

We have shown that each Planet which is found in the Rising Asterism at birth seems to correspond with certain basic characteristics in every individual born at that time. To fully understand the apparent effects of each Planet, not only when it appears at the Rising Point, but also when it appears at other points in the heavens at the time of birth, one must fully understand the character correspondences which are inherent in the Planet itself, so that these correspondences may be applied, not only at the Rising Point but also at other points in the birth chart. A detailed study of the conditions corresponding to each of the Planets—per se—must therefore be made. These correspondences will be enumerated in future books. A study of such Planetary correspondences will include those of the Sun, Moon, Mercury, Venus, Mars, Saturn, Jupiter, Uranus, Neptune, Prana and Gulik.

THE HOUSES

We have examined in the foregoing chapters only the Rising Point, i.e., the first point of the First House of the Asterism Chart. Each map of the heavens at birth is divided into twelve parts or sections. These are known as the Houses of the horoscope. The Planets and other significant points in the heavens at birth must be placed in their time locations in the Map of Birth and each Planet may fall in any one of the twelve Houses. Each House represents certain routine activities and conditions of everyday human existence. The correspondences inherent in each Planet must be applied to the particular House in which that Planet is found at the time of birth. A full knowledge of the scope of each House is therefore necessary in order to determine the effect, which each Planet manifests when acting through the House it occupies. The Houses and their significance and scope will be fully described in the book which is to follow the present volume.

THE ZODIACAL SIGNS

The inherent characteristics corresponding with each Zodiacal Sign must also be fully comprehended. A given Planet will produce a different set of correspondences in each Zodiacal Sign in which that Planet may be found at birth. It is therefore necessary for the student to be familiar with each of the twelve Signs of the Zodiac and with the modifications or intensifications imparted by each Sign to the Planet found within its limits.

THE DEGREES

Not only is the Sign position of each Planet of the utmost importance in judging a birth chart, but the particular degree of the Sign in which the Planet is located must be taken into consideration. A Planet in ten degrees of Taurus, for example, results in a combination of specific correspondences, quite different from those which occur if the same Planet is in, say, eight degrees of the same Sign. Since each Zodiacal Sign extends over an arc of thirty degrees, it can readily be understood that each degree of each Sign or a total of three hundred and sixty degrees must be studied so that the effect of any particular degree upon the Planet, which is stationed on that degree, may be ascertained.

THE ASPECTS

Each Planet and each significant point in the heavens (such significant points for instance as Rahu, Ketu, the Rising Point etc.) has a certain geometrical relationship in space to each of the others. In Astrology, when the geometrical relationships of two planets are expressed in terms of certain angles, one planet is said to aspect the other. Thus, if two Planets are situated 180° apart in the map of the heavens at birth, these two Planets are said to be in opposition aspect to each other. If they are in the same part of the heavens, not more than six to eight degrees apart, they are said to conjunct each other. Other aspects which depend on angular relationships are the Square (90°), The Trine (120°), the Sextile (60°), the Semi-Sextile (30°), and others of less importance. When one Planet aspects another, it has a definite effect of modification or intensification, or even alteration on the correspondences usually found as a result of the Planet's position as to Sign, and House. Aspects between Planets, therefore, are extremely important in judging a birth chart.

THE DIGNITIES AND STRENGTHS

There are certain sections of the heavens, certain degrees of the Zodiac, certain Houses in the birth-chart, where the influence of a particular Planet is stronger than in others. The Planet is said to be powerful when it occupies these positions. Conversely, there are sections, where the power of the same Planet will be very weak. The particular sections, in which each Planet is powerful or weak, vary according to the Planet. It is essential therefore to know the powerful and weak positions of each Planet in order to be able to balance] the correspondences of one Planet against another,

THE BIRTH CHARTS

We have already explained the mechanics of constructing an Asterism Chart of Birth. The object of this was to determine the Rising Point in order to discover what Asterisms and Planets were at that point. Having obtained this information, we proceeded to give certain correspondences peculiar to each Asterism on the Rising Point and to each Planet, which occupied that Rising Asterism. We were concerned only with that particular point. But since it is necessary to obtain more than a mere general outline of each individual's characteristics and potentialities, and these can only be obtained by a balancing of all the factors predominating at the time of birth, full Birth Maps must be constructed, which show the position of all the Planets in addition to those which may have been at the Rising Point.

In Western Astrology, only one chart of the conditions of the heavens at the birth of an individual is constructed. In the Hindu System, however, no less than seven birth charts must be drawn and sometimes it is necessary to use ten charts. These must all be erected and read together, because they interlock each with the others.

As pointed out in previous articles, each individual's Present destiny is the result of several factors as follows :

- (1) The past thoughts and actions of his ancestors.
- (2) His own past thoughts and actions.
- (3) His own past aspirations.

His future destiny will depend on the following factors :

- (1) His present environment and family ties (the result of the first three).
- (2) His present aspirations.
- (3) His will to attain and to free himself from his present self-imposed limitations.

It is impossible to determine all these factors from one chart and, unless all these factors are known it is impossible to give any conclusive advice. Indeed, any conclusions arrived at may under certain conditions be actually contrary to the true facts.

In Hindu Astrology, many charts must be erected and read separately and the evidence contributed by each one must be balanced with all the others, in order to arrive at a concise and clear picture of all the forces which have culminated in that particular individual.

The Charts which must be erected for each birth are as follows :

- (1) The Asterism Chart-NAKASHATRA KUNDALI.
- (2) The Life Chart-JANMA KUNDALI.
 - (a) Chart for rectification of the houses-BHAVA-CHALIT KUNDALI.
 - (b) Moon Chart-CHANDRA KUNDALI.
- (3) The HORA KUNDALI—one-half division of the Ascending House.
- (4) The DRESHKAN KUNDALI—one-third division of the Ascending House.

- (5) The NAWAMAUNSH KUNDALI-hidden in the Life Chart and the Asterisms. One-ninth division of the Ascending House.
- (6) The DASH-AUNSH KUNDALI-one-tenth division of the Ascending House.
- (7) The DWADASHAUNSH KUNDALI-one-twelfth division of the Ascending House.

THE LIFE CHART

Within the Life Chart is hidden all the various factors which have come to fruition in the present life of the individual. But it must be dissected into the various other charts so that a separate history can be obtained of each one of these factors, and also the relative importance of each in shaping the future destiny. Quite often evidence which seems to be important in the Life Chart is nullified or modified by the evidence furnished by the subsidiary charts. Many times, events occur, which are startling and revolutionary in character and they are not even potentially indicated in the Life Chart. Yet a study of the subsidiary charts would reveal their presence in the most unmistakable terms.

THE HORA KUNDALI

This is the chart of the emotions and the personal emotional ties, already contracted or to be possibly contracted by the individual himself during this life.

It is called the Heart (PRAN) and is a true picture of the individual and the emotions which are likely to control and direct his actions in this life. It is the real key to his character. By means of this chart it is possible to judge in what manner the individual is likely to behave during certain emotional conflicts or experiences. It indicates his vitality, his temperament, the color and intensity of his nature, and is an indispensable guide to prognostication, since events themselves depend, to a large extent, on how an individual reacts to certain conditions and certain degrees and types of external pressure. The chart will reveal whether he is likely to break under such pressure or to surmount the difficulties, obstacles, stresses and strains which are shown in the Life Chart and which will occur at certain periods of his Life.

The Hora Kundali is the measure of the man, and this chart must not be confused with what is known in the Western systems as an Horary Chart. It is definitely a part of the Life Chart and is evolved from it like the other subsidiary Life Charts.

THE DRESHKAN KUNDALI

This is the chart, which describes the family ties and indicates the limitations which these ties impose on the native's hopes and aspirations. It must be remembered that such ties in this life are the result of actions in past lives, so these limitations have really, to a large extent, been self-imposed. They conflict many times with the desires and the career of the native and the manner in which these two opposing forces may be resolved or made to co-operate, will be shown in the Dreshkan Kundali. The middle way between duty and personal aspiration can be pointed out to the individual by the skilled Astrologer, by means of the evidence contained in this chart, in which all family skeletons are exposed.

THE NA WAMA UNSH KUNDALI

Investigation of this chart will reveal conditions which may contribute to periods of happiness and misery in the life of the native; the periods of well being and the periods of stress and strain. The causes leading up to them will be shown and also the lessons to be learned from them. A knowledge of the evidence revealed in this chart will prepare the individual and enable him to meet adversity and prosperity, loss and gain, praise and censure, misfortune and success, illness and health with equanimity and poise and in a cheerful and hopeful spirit, secure in the knowledge that each state is but a phase through which he must pass to the succeeding state.

The knowledge to be gleaned from the Nawamaunsh Kundali and the correct application of this knowledge to the Life Chart, helps to banish fear of what is constantly "around the corner" and aids in strengthening the moral fibre of the individual.

THE DASH AUNSH KUNDALI

This Chart describes the hopes and aspirations of the native and shows the degree of success which it is possible for him to attain in this life. It has to do with his career, his place in the world. It designates the channels through which he should direct his efforts in order to develop his talents to the best advantage. It deals with contacts outside of the family circle. It shows the obstacles to be encountered and how to overcome them.

A wealth of information regarding the life of the individual, not apparent in the Life Chart, is obtained from this Chart, as it concerns his contacts with others, and this chart is appropriately named by the Hindus the Pyramid of Life (SWARGA-SHIKHAR).

THE DWAD ASH AUNSH KUNDALI

This is probably the most interesting chart of them all. It is called the Wheel of Destiny by the Hindus (DA1VA-CHAKRA), and is the Chart which links this life to past and future lives. A knowledge of this chart is essential to those whose higher consciousness makes it possible for them to envision a continuity of existence, which includes this life as but a small section of the whole.

The evidence contained in this chart brings point and meaning into this short span of life. Through it we can, if we have attained to a certain degree of cosmic consciousness, place ourselves in relation to the universe, and we can scan our whole existence and relate this life to a continuous whole. It is very seldom that this knowledge can be vouchsafed to any individual, and this chart should not be lightly read. It takes a skilled Astrologer, well versed in philosophy and metaphysics, to delineate this chart, and most individuals are not yet ready for the knowledge of themselves which is to be found in the Dwadashaunsh Kundali.

FEMALE ASTROLOGY

The Hindus recognize a vast difference between the psychological reactions of men and women and they have developed through the ages an entirely separate and distinct technique for Astrological interpretation of Female Charts. This particular branch of the Science has been refined and evolved to the highest degree. The Hindu and Sanskrit works on Female Astrology contain pages and pages of aphorisms on female function alone—on menstruation, childbirth, predetermination of the sex of the child, eugenics—and all other feminine functions and their correspondences with various planetary positions and configurations. So accurate are these aphorisms that the sex of any individual will be evident to the Astrologer merely by observation of the birth chart without any prior knowledge. Female Astrology, therefore, is an entirely separate branch and actually is more far reaching and significant in its implications than the Astrology of the Male.*

In closing, let us say again that Astrology is the Father of all the Sciences. It is the Science of Life itself and of Human Destiny. It is a fallacy to imagine that Astrology is based on Fatalism. Destiny and Fate are not synonymous. Fate is the Law of God. Destiny is the fruit of collective actions in past lives. Destiny is linked to the human being but it must be accompanied by Action. Without action :destiny is incomplete. In Astrology is found the keynote of discriminative action.

HINDU CHART OF HOUSES

This chart of Houses is constructed as a rectangle whose sides are in the ratio of 3 to 2. Each side is bisected and adjacent bisection points are connected by lines forming a diamond. The sides of this diamond are bisected, and these points are connected by lines to form a small rectangle. The corners of the smaller rectangle are joined by lines to the corners of the larger. Each small triangle thus formed represents a House

A—is the Ascendant or Eastern Horizon Point

B—is the Cusp of the Twelfth House

C—is the beginning of the First House

E—is the Cusp of the Second House

F—is the end of the First House

X—is the Cusp of the Fourth House

Y—is the Cusp of the Tenth House or Mid Heaven

Z—is the Cusp of the Seventh House

A—is the Eastern Horizon or Ascendant

B—is the Cusp of the Twelfth House

C—is the beginning of the First House. THIS IS THE RISING POINT IN HINDU ASTROLOGY. It is a point exactly midway between the Cusps of the Twelfth House and the Ascendant

E—is the Cusp of the Second House

F—is the beginning of the Second House and the end of the First House in the Hindu System

X—is the Cusp of the Fourth House

Y—is the Cusp of the Tenth House or Mid Heaven

Z—is the Cusp of the Seventh House

WESTERN CHART OF HOUSES

This method of representing the Houses, is practically obsolete, but was used exclusively in the Middle Ages. The construction is a Square whose sides are bisected and connected to form a second square. The sides of this second square are then bisected and these points joined to form a third square. The corners of the smallest square are then joined by lines to those of the largest.

- A—is the Horizon Point or Ascendant
- X—is the Cusp of the Fourth House
- Z—is the Cusp of the Seventh House
- Y—is the Cusp of the Tenth House
